NO 'UDDER' DEALER CAN MAKE THIS OFFER

DETROIT (AP) — How do you price a cow to be sold to an auto dealer?

The farmer's "list price" was:

Basic cow, $2. Two-tone exterior, $45. Extra stomach, $75. Product storage compartment, $60. Dispersive device, four spigots at $10 each, $40. Genuine cowhide upholstery, $125. Dual horns, $15. Automatic fly swatter, $35. Total, $595.

'Mackasey Flu' Bug Strikes

Inside postal workers in Victoria, Vancouver and some Vancouver Island post offices booked off sick today, beginning what one of their leaders called a 24-hour bout of "Mackasey flu", a reference to Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey.

A total of 24 inside postal workers in the Victoria area booked off sick, slowing down the city mail sorting process and leaving some customer wickets unmanned.

In Sidney, all three members of Canadian Union of Postal Workers phoned in sick early today.

Mail already sorted in the post offices hit by the book off was delivered as normal.

Some CUPW members in Nanaimo and Campbell River also participated in the book off, but post offices in Duncan, Ladysmith, Port Alberni, Courtenay and Port Hardy were not affected.

In Ottawa, Mackasey said the Canadian Union of Postal Workers should rid itself of a small group responsible for "patterns of violence."

Mackasey told the Commons that "95 per cent who are decent, law-abiding citizens will sooner or later have to stand up and be counted and rid their own house of the five per cent who have no place in the legitimate trade union in the first instance."

He was responding to questions from Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon Souris) about acts of violence in the CUPW "as indicated by the vandalism inflicted on the house of the national secretary treasurer of the union recently."

A public relations officer inside the main plant in Vancouver said about 88 per cent of the 600 employes, didn't turn up for work.

He said 98 per cent of the workers in the foreward division where mail is dispatched for centres outside the city booked off and 65 per cent in the city division where mail is sorted for greater Vancouver delivery stayed away.

The Victoria spokesman said workers were mostly city sortation and wicket clerks. The 24 people off work represent about half of the total number of employees in those two areas.

Three of the seven wicket clerks in the main post office failed to report for work and signs asked customers to have patience as they waited in line to buy stamps and mail parcels.

Elsewhere across the country, the move to have inside postal workers book off met with a spotty response.

There was no particular pattern as some offices remained fully manned — some had all clerks and sorters off the job and others had vary-

LEBANESE MILITARY TAKEOVER

BEIRUT (AP) — A military government was formed in Lebanon tonight under Nureddin Rifai, a retired police colonel, to deal with a bloody war between rightist Lebanese militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas, it was officially announced.

The casualty toll rose to more than 25 dead and 150 wounded.

Residents on the eastern outskirts of Beirut said special police forces that tried to establish a buffer zone between the warring factions Thursday night withdrew when they were caught in a crossfire.

This morning they were reported observing the shooting but not participating.

Israel reported the first clash in more than six months along the eastern border with Jordan.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said Arab gunners ambushed an Israeli patrol Thursday, wounding an Israeli soldier in the village of Naharayn about 60 miles northeast of Jerusalem near the Sea of Galilee.

A Break For Small Business

By The Canadian Press

The B.C. legislature gave unanimous approval in principle today to a bill which would increase the tax on utilized capital of corporations to one-fifth of one per cent from one-tenth of one per cent.

The legislation would also exempt from capital tax all corporations with less than $100,000 of taxable paid-up capital compared to the current exemption of $25,000.

Premier Dave Barrett said the legislation resulted from a study of the impact of the capital tax on small businesses.

He said the government would be looking at other means of assisting small businesses.

The legislature also gave unanimous approval in principle to a bill which would exempt from succession duty taxes property given to the provincial government, municipality or regional district.

Barrett berated the Social Credit members for their stated policy of abolishing succession duties if they were returned to power.

"If you vote Social Credit, the rich are going to get away without paying their fair share," he said.

The premier said if people want to leave the province because of its succession duty laws they are welcome to go, but if they stay "they have to pay their fair share."

He said the money collected from the succession duty taxes goes to pay for pharmacare, a program, he said, which cost $18 million last year to provide free prescription drugs to those 65 and over.

He said it was only right that the rich help to finance the needs of the province's elderly citizens.

FEATHERS FLYING

BOGOTA (AP) — Overstocked poultry producers proposed whetting the Colombian appetite for their product by parachuting 1,000 live chickens over the city Sunday.

Anyone lucky enough to catch one could keep it, they said.

But the publicity campaign caught the attention of the Society for the Protection of Animals, which protested that the birds might be injured in the descent.

City hall agreed. It said the chicken drop is still on, but no live birds — they must be killed first.

NEWS BRIEFS

Trio Shot Dead

ST. BRUNO, Que. (CP) — Three men and two women were found shot to death late Thursday night in a rented bungalow in this community, 15 miles southeast of Montreal. A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said early today it was "still too early to talk about the case as a gangland settling of accounts."

Talks Break Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract talks between the Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the pulp and paper industrial relations bureau broke off today following a wildcat walkout at Kamloops, Wednesday. About 8,000 PPWC members working in sawmills, plywood plants and pulp mills across the province are affected by the contract talks.

Gov't 'Breaking Law' On Rent Grant Cutoff

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The provincial government is breaking its own laws by stopping payment of the $30 renter's resource grants in mid-year, Liberal leader David Anderson charged Thursday.

Tenants who apply for the grant are being told by letter that because of forthcoming changes in housing legislation the grant has been interrupted, said Anderson.

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson later said in an interview that although grants to senior citizens are being continued, the $30 renter's grant has been stopped.

Because of legislation which likely will provide a formula allowing renters to claim a $100 deduction on income tax returns, the renter's grants for this year will not be issued, he said.

Applicants are thanked for their application in a department letter signed by H. C. Rounds, director of finance for the department.

"We will advise you when we receive any additional information on the proposed legislation referred to in the budget speech," says the letter.

The department anticipates the claim would be made on 1975 income tax returns, it adds.

He said it is a "weird situation" when grant applications to some renters were approved, and later applicants were turned down.

The minister's only excuse, Anderon said, is that he believes the law may be changed. "But he's abrogating the law now."

Local Liberals To Oppose Unity

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Greater Victoria Liberal associations will send full contingents to their party policy convention this weekend in Richmond and all will oppose Liberal participation in the unity movement.

About 500 delegates are expected to attend the two-day conference which was planned long in advance of the recent resignations of three Liberal MLAs.

Party president Doreen Braverman said Thursday departure of the three is bound to be a major concern of the convention delegates but she and other party spokesmen insist the new policy resolutions will still be the main focus of debate.

Party policy is even more important now, she said, to prove the Liberals are a moderate alternative to the other free enterprise parties.

No challenge of David Anderson's leadership is expected at the convention, said Braverman, but anyone has the right to do so at 24 hour's notice.

The issue of unity and the defection of MLAs Garde Gardom, Pat McGeer and Allan Williams are expected to come up on the floor of the convention Saturday, when the delegates debate "direction of the party."

Braverman said no resolutions were submitted in support of joining a unity or coalition party but several constituencies sent in motions calling for rejection of unity.

A composite resolution to be discussed Saturday reads:

"That the Liberal party in B.C. rejects any suggestion that it surrender its responsibility to the people of B.C. by entry into any form of coalition, accommodation, collusion or arrangement with any other political group, extant or proposed, in B.C."

Presidents of the four Greater Victoria Liberal constituency organizations confirmed Thursday they will be sending full delegations to the convention.

All four indicated their members are opposed to any movement towards unity of the free enterprise parties.

Irma Dann of the Victoria association said about 20 to 25 of her members will attend the convention.

The British Columbia government will be asked to assume a larger share of the costs of provincial policing by the RCMP, solicitor general Warren Allmand said Thursday.

In an interview with the Times during a recess at the federal-provincial corrections ministers' conference being held at the Empress Hotel, Allmand said the province will be asked to pay more than 50 per cent of such costs.

His cost-sharing proposal, details of which he declined to release, is bound to meet with disfavor by B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald who earlier announced he would go "right to the mat" with the federal government over the cost of the RCMP to the province.

Under the present 10-year contract which came into effect in 1966 the province was required to pay 40 per cent of the RCMP policing costs the first year, the rate increasing one per cent each year.

Negotiations are now underway for a new contract replacing the existing one which expires next year.

Allmand said the province should pay more as the RCMP was becoming increasingly more involved in provincial policing duties.

However, Macdonald, citing a critical police manpower shortage in the province, has maintained the need for more federal funds was never greater.

Allmand indicated his department was not prepared to take the initiative in increasing the RCMP staff engaged in provincial policing duties, though added there had been staff increases in the areas under federal jurisdiction such as the drug and commercial crime sections.

The B.C. Police Commission has said more than 1,700 officers were needed to bring the RCMP strength in the provicne up to par with the national average.

Allmand blamed the shortage on the previous Socred administration which, he said, consistently ignored RCMP recommendations to increase the police strength in the province.

"We are willing to supply the men as soon as we are able to train them," he said, "but it's up to the provincial government . . . the problem is theirs."

During the two-day, closed, ministerial conference which ends today Allmand announced the formation of an national advisory network for correctional manpower planning, training and development.

He said the network will be composed of 14 top federal and provincial officials who will review staffing of Canada's prisons and corrections institutions.

The costs will be shared 50 per cent by the federal government and 50 per cent by the provinces and territories prorated on the basis of the number of corrections staff they employ.

The first project of the advisory network will be to oversee a study by James Albert of Carlton University in Ottawa of existing correctional training programs.

Allmand said the main objectives of the study would be to improve the performance of corrections staff and attract staff of high calibre to the service.

U.S. LEAVES LAOS

VIENTIANE (AP) — A planeload of women and children took off from Vientiane today, launching the evacuation of many of the 1,000 United States citizens in Laos.

The Communist-dominated government announced that Washington had agreed to withdraw all U.S. AID personnel except a few experts and to dismantle the 24-year-old AID program in this country.

Eighteen women and 61 children were aboard the first chartered Laotian jetliner that took off for Bangkok seven hours late because government clearance was delayed without explanation.

The husbands of the women, all employees of the U.S. AID program, will not leave until all their dependents have been evacuated.

The number of Americans to be evacuated was not known, but State Secretary Henry Kissinger said the U.S. presence in the land-locked kingdom that has come under Communist domination in the last month would be substantially reduced.

There are about 1,000 Americans in Laos, including 320 government employees, 150 private civilians and 500 dependents.

Plunge Kills 28

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — A packed truck carrying pilgrims to a religious service plunged over a 500-foot precipice, killing 28 persons, Dominica police said Thursday. Police in this British possession in the Caribbean's Leeward Islands said 12 others were injured, many of them critically.

Fingers Crossed for Lunar Show of Decade

But at this point the outlook is cloudy, plus the chance of light rain to make things worse.

Forecasters say there may be some clearing toward evening, giving a 50 per cent chance of seeing the moon, but it will be cool and weathermen advise wearing a sweater if you drive up Mt. Tolmie or stroll out Cattle Point to see the sight.

If clouds are scattered, however, the opportunity for more interesting pictures presents itself. Amateur photographers may be advised to seek a good vantage point to set up their tripods, with something like a cityscape or trees to give perspective.

Although this will be a total eclipse, the earth's shadow into which the moon will pass will have refracted light which with atmospheric filtering will produce a coppery color and make color photos more interesting than black and white.

The eclipse spans 3½ hours from 9 p.m., permitting a series of shots showing the different stages and progression from white to yellow, tan, copper, deep red and back to white under ideal viewing conditions. Darkest moon will occur at 10:48.

Everyone in North America may see this lunar spectacle, provided they are not screened by cloud or fog.

As a rough guide to amateur photographers, George Ball, the director of telescopes for the Victoria chapter, Royal Astrosomical Society of Canada, suggests using ASA 400 black and white or high speed Ektachrome transparency film.

For the uneclipsed, bright moon, settings may be 1-1,000 sec. at f8, slowing to 1-500 sec. as the eclipse gets under way, 1-25 as the darker shadow moves across the moon, and between 2 and 6 seconds at mid-point of the total eclipse.

Pensioners' Spouses To Get New Benefits?

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hopes to give pensions by next Oct. 1 to many pensioners' spouses age 60 or older, it was announced Thursday night.

The plan would mean that a person between ages 60 and 65, married to a pensioner, would be eligible for the old age pension.

A means test would be involved.

A bill implementing the change is expected within the next two weeks.

"I hope to introduce it next week, possibly the week after," Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said in an interview after announcing his intentions in the Commons.

He said it will apply to about 85,000 spouses whose marriage partners are 65 or older, the eligibility age for normal old-age pensions.

The proposed pensions basically would be an extension of the existing pension and guaranteed income supplement GIS, which ranges up to $400.06 for a couple both 65 or older. It would depend on an income test.

"Some people would get only $5, others would get the full amount," Lalond said. "It would depend on their outside income."

In other words, if a couple with one pensioner and the spouse between 60 and 65 had no extra income, their pension and GIS would be boosted to $400.06.

Lalonde said his proposal is designed basically to assist couples forced to live on one pension to meet what he termed a "specific and serious need."

He said, however, that the proposal would not apply to single persons or to widows. These would have to be covered by a guaranteed minimum income.

BLANSHARD PAVING SET

Final stage in the Blanshard hill realignment project will be tackled Sunday when, weather permitting, the road will be closed for paving work between Courtney and Belleville from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The city traffic engineering department also announced Thurslady that, starting Monday, parking restrictions will be in effect on the south side of Belleville between Government and Douglas.

Due to construction on the Government Street Mall project, that portion of Belleville will be closed to parking from Monday to Friday between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Mackasey Flu Strikes

Meanwhile, postal service in the Atlantic provinces returned to normal with the return of employees who booked off sick Thursday and crippled counter service and sorting operations in most of the region.

Work was normal in Canada's largest postal operation — huge Terminal A in Toronto — despite the absenteeism call and a bomb hoax that led to the terminal being evacuated for two hours starting about dawn. Not many more than the customary Friday absentees called in sick.

Calgary and Edmonton remained normal. About 30 per cent of the clerks and sorters were out at the main post office in Winnipeg, apparently the only affected centre in Manitoba.

In Saskatchewan, the only centre hit was Saskatoon, where 43 inside workers booked off sick at midnight, leaving a skelton staff of 10 on duty.

Strikes Here to Stay School Trustees Agree

by SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Union agreement to give up the right to strike in school district labor disputes would be great but isn't likely to happen much before the Second Coming, Greater Victoria school trustees reluctantly agreed Thursday.

Trustees held a long postmortem on this year's six-week strike of district custodians and maintenance workers to seek ways of avoiding another strike or lessening its impact if one does occur.

Discussion centred around an 18-page Strike Report prepared by district superintendent Jake Longmore, which contained a series of recommendations stemming from the experience of the strike.

A recommendation that labor legislation be amended to provide for arbitration, not strikes and lockbuts, in labor disputes involving non-teaching school staff, got the sympathy of all trustees.

But district personnel manager Dave Coton warned: "The labor movement across the country is unalterably opposed to arbitration.

Coton said there's virtually no chance that Canadian Union of Public Employees local 382 will agree to arbitration.

School board chairman Bill Ross said it might be a useful exercise to meet with CUPE to talk the idea over.

"If you really expected success from that you'd really be witnessing the Second Coming," said Trustee Peter Bunn.

A recommendation that the board consider signing contracts with private firms to do some maintenance work now done by CUPE workers also got support from all trustees, and district administrators were instructed to explore the feasiblility of this.

Contracting out work to a non-union firm would mean that this work wouldn't be halted by another CUPE strike.

Trustee Dr. Mark Fisher said he felt the board should look at contracting out all work of a non-teaching nature in the school district.

Bunn said the district could be divided into five or 10 zones, and tenders could be let on each zone to a private firm.

However, trustees backed off another recommendation, to seek legislation barring principals and vice-principals from membership in the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

"This would be an utterly futile thing to try to do," Bunn said. "To a man they don't want it."

The trustees recognized that principals have divided loyalties during a strike of non-teaching staff — they want to keep the schools running smoothly, yet because they are union members themselves they can't do the jobs of striking workers.

Trustees settled by supporting a B.C. School Trustees Association resolution which would leave it to individual choice whether principals opt out of the teachers' association.

Bunn renewed his attack on teachers who, because they considered it strikebreaking, didn't encourage their students to keep classrooms clean during the six-week custodians' strike.

"I'm after the person who made a pigsty of a classroom . . ." he said. "I know who they are, but they're not with us tonight."

About 10 principals and vice-principals attended the meeting.

"I respect the hyper-union teacher for that point of view," Bunn said, but added that such teachers shouldn't teach or collect their paycheques during strikes if they feel that way.

Ross appointed an ad hoc committee of trustees, Dr. Mark Fisher, Susan Brice and Janet Baird to give further study to many of the recommendations in the report and to report back to the board later.

Other recommendations:

—To consider having CUPE contracts end some other time than Dec. 31. If contracts ended in May or June, trustees said, heating schools during a strike wouldn't be such a problem and the end of the school year would be fairly near.

—Use of adult and student volunteers to clean schools during strikes should be board policy. Adult volunteers were used in this year's strikes.

—The regional bargaining group of employers should be maintained and a co-ordinating negotiations officer be appointed to work on behalf of the group.

She said her association is "certainly against unity."

"We feel the Liberals suffered through coalition before and we're still suffering now," said Dann.

Defections of the three MLAs has probably hurt the party, she agreed, but it will also make party members go out and try "a lot harder."

The Saanich association held an executive meeting recently and supported Anderson and the Liberal party's stand against unity, said association president J. W. Anderson.

About 10 Saanich Liberals are going to Richmond, he said, and they will show strong support for Anderson.

Oak Bay constituency association president Lee Jameson said about 10 members from her group will attend the meeting.

She said a resolution passed recently at a meeting of the Liberal's Lower Island regional organization rejected the concept of unity, and the Oak Bay delegates will stand behind that decision.

Esquimalt president Pat Strachan said at the Lower Island meeting there was only one delegate who voiced support for unity.

He said about 12 from his group will be delegates at the convention.

The issue is not whether the delegates will support Anderson but simply that they are supporting the Liberal party and all it stands for, he said.

CHILDREN ABUSING REGISTRY

EDMONTON (CP) — The Child Abuse Registry, a means of reporting suspected child abuse cases, is apparently being used for purposes it wasn't designed for.

Social Services Minister Helen Hunley told the legislature Thursday there have been several cases of children, "never in a serious matter," turning in their parents "as a means of getting even with them for things they do to the children that the children don't approve of."

Her comment followed a question by Ray Speaker (SC — Little Bow) who referred to an investigation the provincial ombudsman is making into malicious misuse of the registry by persons who want to embarrass and harass their enemies.

Miss Hunley said she was not aware of such cases, but noted that the ombudsman would talk to her department if an investigation is held.

Ombudsman Randall Ivany was not available for comment, but a person in his office confirmed he is looking into some matters related to the registry.

Tainted Meat Sales Plot Bared

MONTREAL (CP) — A plot to sell tainted meat to prominent hamburger chains was made public Thursday at the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime.

Judge Jean Dutil, the inquiry chairman, said the names of the major companies should not be disclosed "because we don't have evidence they actually bought the meat." If such evidence emerged the companies could be identified, he added.

The plot was discussed in a 1972 telephone conversation between Armand Courville, 64, manager of Reggio Foods Inc., and Gilbert Massey, 47, his former sausage manager, which was wire-tapped by police.

Reggio Food Inc., a meat processing firm, is run by Vincenzo Vic Cotroni, who was identified in earlier hearings of the organized crime inquiry as a Montreal underworld figure.

Massey worked for Regio Foods for eight years, until 1972, and now heads the firm of Produits Alimentaires, which, the inquiry heard, had also dealt in tainted meat.

During the wiretapped conversation, it was revealed that some Montreal health inspectors were being bribed to close their eyes to certain "business."

Massey spent much of Thursday on the witness stand and admitted his role in the transport of meat from animals that were sick or had died of natural causes.

He said he had a "special recipe" for hot dogs and pizza pepperoni that involved tainted meat to which was added "fat, flour and spices."

The meat, unfit for human consumption, was supposed to be used strictly for pet food.

Massey said he sold at least two 2,000-pound loads of tainted meat to a sausage plant owned by William Obront and was paid in cash by Mr. Obront's son, Howard.

Games Schedule Claim Denied by IOC Boss

LAUSANNE (CP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today the inference he took from Mayor Jean Drapeau's report Wednesday was that the Montreal situation is considerably better than has been presented in public.

However, he denied the mayor had told the closed-door session that work on the 1976 Games site is three months ahead of schedule. And he said the word "blackmail" was never used by Drapeau to suggest the attitude unions might take in negotiations with organizers if they knew the true situation.

Asserting "I cetainly am not going to get involved in Montreal or Canadian politics," he added:

"It is correct to say, I think, that he did say that he did not wish to show all his cards."

"The inference was that the less said the better," regarding the actual state of progress on the buildings, which has been delayed by strikes, causing considerable concern among IOC delegates on whether Montreal could be ready on time.

Killanin's remarks came at his first general news conference since the IOC met the Montreal delegation behind closed doors Wednesday. After a second session the committee finally unanimously accepted the Montreal progress report.

The inference of the mayor's presentation, Killanin said, "was that the opsition might be better than the way it was actually painted" in public statements.

"All I want to see is that the Canadians keep to their word and the Games open as scheduled July 17, 1976. I have always said the Games will be held in Montreal because I believe the Canadian people."

In the absence of any official IOC comment in the two days since the Montreal presentation, there has been sometimes wild speculation at the 76th IOC session here on what really transpired.

Drapeau and his colleagues reported glowingly on the reception they received, but the scheduled IOC news conference on the subject never was held and reporters got only a 20-word statement that the report had been unanimously accepted.

Even when he finally appeared today, Killanin insisted he would only take questions on the China question, although he relented under a barrage of questions from Canadian reporters.

Asked if he wasn't being unreasonable — in view of the interpretation being put on some of Drapeau's alleged remarks—he beamingly replied: "Cannot I be unreasonable?"

Services to Sidney School Get Second Council Look

Sidney aldermen promised Thursday to take another look at their decision not to budget for construction of a sewer and road for the new South Sidney Primary school.

The second look will come at Monday's council meeting, and most aldermen appear ready to commit the municipality to providing services for the planned school.

The aldermen met Saanich school trustees Thursday afternoon to try to settle the dispute which arose when Sidney council voted May 12 not to include the $30,500 cost of the school services in its 1975 budget.

The budget action drew angry responses from trustees, who said they have letters from council committing Sidney to providing the road and sewer.

"The withdrawal of money does not withdraw Sidney's obligation," Ald. Stan Uren told the meeting.

"We have committed ourselves: I don't see how we can back out."

Ald. Wilkie Gardner said council can amend its budget in October and include the funds for building the road and sewer then.

Council's original action was largely intended to protest and draw attention to the rise in the 1975 school board budget, which has resulted in an 11.4-mill increase.

"I believe you did pad your budget," accused Gardner.

Trustee Rubymay Parrett said no, the board went through its budget with a fine-tooth comb.

"Well, we used a cleaver," countered Ald. Hugh Hollingsworth.

Ald. Peter Malcolm thought the new French program for elementary grades, which will start in Grade 7 in September, was an unnecessary frill.

"The only thing they're going to be able to do is read the backs of cans in Safeway," he said.

Uren added that he'd like to see English taught in schools, citing reports that many high school graduates can't read or write properly.

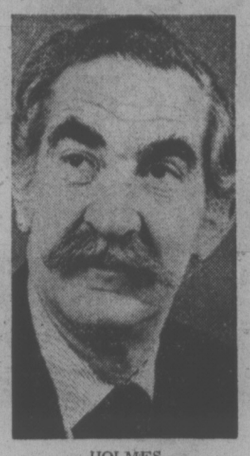
Parrott responded by asking the aldermen why "none of you people have been to our school meetings to discuss this kind of thing."

Several aldermen also thought the new steps at North Saanich middle school were too fancy.

Malcolm, one of the proponents of the council action which caused the controversy, said the withdrawal of funds was intended as "kind of a rabble-rousing protest" against the rising mill rate.

He said his attitude is "a Cadillac is nice but a Ford will get us there."

REALTOR HONORED IN PARIS



HOLMES

He is the first Canadian to hold the position. Holmes was previously president of the Canadian division of the federation which has members in 31 countries.

ACCUSED ARMED ROBBER IMPLICATED SELF—POLICE

Two Edmonton policemen testified in county court Thursday that Michael Frederick Fyfe of Duncan connected himself with an armed robbery in Victoria Oct. 12, 1974, when they stopped him last February in a routine drug search.

Constables John Paton and Harry Snaterse were giving evidence in the first day of the jury trial of Fyfe, accused of robbing William Mansell of $100 while armed with a firearm.

Paton, who said no drugs were found on Fyfe, said one policeman called out "put the handcuffs on him, he's wanted for armed robbery in Victoria.

Paton said he asked Fyfe if it was all worth it and the accused replied "no, we only got $100 and I was only driving the car."

Pressed by Doug Christie, representing Fyfe, Paton agreed he had said at the preliminary hearing in March that the accused's words were "no, we only got $100 bucks and I was only the driver."

Paton agreed he was giving approximately what Fyfe said and not exactly what he said.

"You don't know exactly what was said," Christie asked.

"It's as close as I can recall," Paton replied.

Could Fyfe have said "no, they only got 100 bucks and I was only the driver."

"Yes."

Could he have said "no, they only got 100 bucks and they were using my car?"

"No sir."

Snaterse testified Fyfe's words were "all over a few stinking dollars. I didn't rob anybody. All I did was drive the car."

Snaterse agreed he was "confused" between his statements at the preliminary hearing and the trial about the precise location on the street where Fyfe made the remarks.

Your recollection seems to vary from time to time, Christie said.

"I'd like to think not but it has varied," admitted Snaterse.

But he replied "no" when Crown prosecutor Bob Johnston asked him if there i sany confusion in his mind as to what Fyfe said.

Johnston said the crown's case is that Mansell, a cab driver, went to an address in James Bay and while walking to the address, a person came from some bushes, with a rifle, and ordered him to hand over his wallet. Mansell complied and just after that a car squealed away.

Arena Managers To Meet

More than 200 arena managers, associates, commissioners and their wives from British Columbia and Alberta will be in Victoria from Sunday to Wednesday for the 26th annual convention of the British Columbia Arena, Auditorium and Stadium Association.

The Alberta contingent will number about 25, including BCAASA president Hobie Clark of Edmonton.,

Bill Young, Saanich's indoor recreation manager, is convention chairman. Business sessions will be held at the Red Lion Motor Inn and social events will take place at the Cedar Hill Community Centre.

Seminars will be held Monday and Tuesday. Monday's seminar will be run by Saanich's personnel director Bill Locker and will feature personnel supervision.

Frank Machine of F. R. Machine and Associates Ltd. will conduct Tuesday's seminar which will deal with personal planning and organization.

Young said the BCAASA intends to broaden its terms of reference at the convention to include other types of recreation facilities.

Home Project Hearing Set

A proposed development for six two-bedroom homes on a 12,000-square-foot site at Clarence and Simcoe in James bay was forwarded to a public hearing by Victoria City Council on Thursday.

The project, plannned by Wagg and Hambleton on behalf of Goward Development Ltd., seeks rezoning of the vacant site — which is adjacent to the 12-storey Clarence House condominium — from duplex to the city's new low-density multiple dwelling zone.

The Advisory Planning Commission's favorable recommendation to council stipulated that a condition of rezoning approval be the widening of Simcoe Street by the developer, in accordance with requirements of the city traffic engineer.

Council also called for a public hearing on an application to rezone property at 1323 Harrison Street from single-family to apartment, for a proposed 14-suite condominium.

The APC, in endorsing the application, points out that the site is adjoined by apartment buildings to the north and south, and is the only portion on the east side of Harrison not zoned for apartment use.

The proposal by Annett Builders Ltd. would involve demolition of an "old, sound two-storey house converted into four suites," the commission notes.

3,000 Expected At Convocation

A crowd of close to 3,000 is expected to attend the 12th annual convocation of the University of Victoria May 31 in the academic quadrangle outside the MacLaurin building.

The university will confer 850 degrees (a complete list will appear in this Saturday's Times) and will give honorary degrees to Edmund Lohbrunner of Victoria, a leading collector and cultivator of alpine and rock garden plants, and Dr. Wilfrid Bennett Lewis of Kingston, Distinguished Professor of Science at Queen's University.

About 400 graduates and 2,500 guests are expected to attend the ceremony, which starts at 2 p.m.

Dr. Howard Petch will be officially installed as UVic president by chancellor Robert Wallace.

The convocation will be followed by a dinner and ball at 7:30 p.m. in the UVic Commons block.

The evening before, next Friday at 7 p.m., an interfaith baccalaureate service will be held in Emmanuel Baptist Church on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Still Some Room On Garden Plots

Late applicants for allotment garden plots offered in Saanich by the B.C. agriculture department may still get one of the parcels available at five locations.

About 100 plots were left Wednesday after the department more than tripled the number of gardens offered to Greater Victoria residents who don't have garden space at home — usually because they live in apartments.

About 500 plots including 219 on Gordon Head near Feltham were added to the gardens first made available just off Patricia Bay Highway and Kent (145) and on Wilkinson, Kenneth and Agness for a total around 700 allotment gardens.

Each 1,000-square-foot plot rents for a season for $10, including water.

Growing Up Absurd

Interminable hassles over government imposed time limits on the estimates debates appear to have been finally solved by Social Credit acceptance of a compromise solution, the original of which was suggested by Liberal Leader David Anderson. The credit for a solution goes to no one, except perhaps Anderson who at least tried to find a solution to the impasse. For the rest it would appear they have simply argued themselves into bored exhaustion and had no other recourse except to get back to the province's business.

Clearly, the opposition has won a victory in that contentious rule 45 limiting estimate debate to 135 hours or 45 sittings is dead. At first the government stonewalled the opposition. But saner heads prevailed when it became obvious the Socreds were going to make a political cause celebre of the issue. It is interesting to note that when Anderson first wrote the premier regarding his compromise, involving two hour morning sittings in committee of a whole, he received no reply. The second letter got response after Socred leader Bill Bennett, Don Phillips (SC South Peace River) and Gordon Gibson (L Vancouver-Capilano) had been thrown out of the house on the issue.

With the exception of the Socreds and two silent independents plus a Liberal or two, the house accepted the compromise. But the official opposition managed to stretch out the tedious procedural hassles for a few more days, savoring their victory. Now the house will sit for the two hour morning sessions in committee of supply — a technicality which allows opposition members to debate rather than discuss estimates and vote on them as well. The NDP has gone so far as to allow afternoon sessions on the estimates if added time is deemed necessary.

The compromise is logical although it could have been achieved a week ago if the opposition had been more intent on conducting the business of the house rather than blowing it into a political issue beyond all proportions. Ironically enough, the imposed limits which they wailed so long and loud about, have been quite sufficient for estimate debate in previous years when no curbs existed. As to Premier Barrett's appeal to the house — "Let's all grow up a bit" — we can only add a heartfelt amen.

Opening Closed Doors

Opening meetings of the University of Victoria board of governors to public scrutiny for the first time is not earth-shaking news. After the novelty wears off, the 25 seats provided may be vacant most of the time. Yet an important principle is finally being honored here. A public institution funded almost entirely by taxpayers' dollars should conduct its business in public, if only to remain above any suspicion.

In the past, board meetings remained closed, not because of any devious design, but simply on the basis that it was easier, more convenient and traditional to hash everything out behind closed doors. When a crisis arose, such as the controversy surrounding former president Bruce Partridge, the policy paid more dividends, allowing the board to devise strategies away from prying public eyes. Other local organizations such as the Royal Jubilee Hospital board and certain municipal council meetings still remain closed while members will always say they have nothing to hide — a contradiction in terms it would appear.

If only we could give unqualified praise to the university itself for finally seeing the light of day on open meetings. Certainly UVic President Howard Petch deserves some credit. In an earlier interview, he was reported as saying he favored open board meetings — a statement which would carry implicit clout. But most of the credit goes indirectly to the provincial government and its new Universities Act which provided for five elected board members. Two faculty members, two students and one person from the non-teaching staff now sit with eight government-appointed members plus the university president and chancellor.

To have five elected members sitting on a secret board would have been absurd. It is the nature of the act which has forced UVic and the University of British Columbia into open meetings as much as anything. Whatever the methodology the result is in the public interest. In the final analysis that's what counts.

HAROLD GREER

Round Pegs for Square Holes

TORONTO — About half a million young Canadians enter the work force — or try — from educational institutions each year. For many of them, and for their prospective employers, it is a traumatic experience.

A relative few find the transition a breeze. If their vocational or professional training has been highly specific and specialized, and if their specialty is in short supply in the labor market, they are sought after and bargained for.

But not everyone comes out of school as a doctor or dentist or chartered accountant. The educational system cannot possibly manufacture all the specific manpower needs of society and must deliver up products who are trained for work only in a very general way. It is these graduates who have the most difficulty in coming to terms with employers, and vice versa. They tend to be very round pegs for square holes.

Employers used to meet the problem, and quite adequately, by the apprenticeship system. The schools were expected to develop basic educational skills and supply an academic record indicating aptitudes, proficiency, resourcefulness, effort and so on. Industry then added the specific vocational skills.

Misguided Dogma

The apprenticeship system has largely broken down for a number of reasons. One was the misguided dogma incessantly preached in the schools (but now mercifully de-emphasized) that the more education, the better the job.

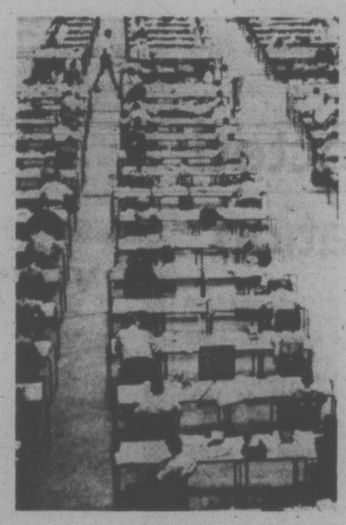
Another was the political pressure from employers that their taxes entitled them to a supply of manpower trained at public cost. Above all, trade unions have been hostile to the apprenticeship system, regarding it as a device for underpaying workers and under-cutting wage levels.

The rise of the community colleges of applied arts and technology in this province and elsewhere was a response, I think, to the demise of the apprenticeship system. The remarkable success of these institutions has been largely due to the fact that, in the best of them, there has been close consultation between the teaching staffs and the community employers with a view to producing graduates trained to the employers' exact needs.

Nevertheless, there obviously still remains a large gap between school and work which is unsatisfactory for students, employers, teachers and government.

In an attempt to bridge it, representatives of these four estates have now held the first of two conferences (the second will he held in November) at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education here.

The principle sponsors were the federal Department of Manpower and Immigration, the Ontario government, the University of Toronto, the Toronto board of trade and the London Life Insurance Company.



SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS
. . . no training in work ethic

It is difficult to say what this first go-round accomplished, since much will depend on how much agreement can be found for position papers which now have to be assembled for the November sequel.

However, a survey by the Toronto board of trade of its members gives some idea of the nature and complexity of the problem as seen from the employer side.

Some 700 employers replied to the survey — a very large response — and about 70 per cent of them admitted to having a major dissatisfaction with the workers coming to them from the educational system. Surprisingly, only a minority was dissatisfied with the educational and occupational training of these prospects. The great complaint was over their attitude towards work. To put it bluntly, most would-be workers coming out of school do not believe in the "work ethic," at least not as employers conceive it.

According to the survey, most employers feel that current educational methods are responsible for prducing a permissive and undisciplined work-force which is either "totally lacking in motivation and ambition" or else is overambitious too early to the point of being unwilling to accept the idea of starting at the bottom and working up.

Curriculum Lax

Many employers felt the school curriculum is too lax and does not concentrate enough on the three Rs, or on subjects with a practical bent, such as office skills and technical crafts. A majority felt the school system is undermining the profit motive and many suggested there should be a course on business ethics so that "students could be put back in touch with the advantage of the profit motive."

Most were convinced business leaders should be more closely involved in the structuring of school curricula and more densely represented on local boards of education. There was a desire for the reintroduction of standard examinations in the high schools and, above all, for some formal channel of communication whereby the business world can make its needs known to the educational world.

Government was anti-business and did little to promote a business ethic. As long as unemployment insurance made unemployment a viable alternative to work, there was little that anyone in business or education could do to prepare younger people for the work force. The most important contribution government could make to job preparation would be to tighten up the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Well, that gives the flavor of the thing and an indication of the problem. Obviously, bridging the gap is going to take some bridge.

STUART UNDERHILL

Don't Count Old Girl Out Yet

LONDON — Momentous political errors of judgment do not always explode upon their perpetrators or the affected nation in a sudden spectacular way. They are more likely to be corrosive, like the death watch beetle or damp rot.

In the closing years of his life Clement Attlee, Britain's first Labor prime minister after the Second World War, told an interviewer that the big mistake of his administration had been to push through cradle-to-the-grave security before Britain was ready for it or could afford it.

The results support his hindsight. The national health service in a groggy Britain operates with an annual deficit of billions of dollars a year. Combined social service charges now work out at $2,400 annually for every man, woman and child in the United Kingdom. All of it has to be found out of taxation, increasingly tapped to meet the deficits of other government operations.

Now there is conjecture that the present Labor prime minister, Harold Wilson, has made a blunder almost as epic in its proportions by calling the June 5 plebiscite in which Britons will be asked whether they want to stay in or get out of the European Common Market.

Cabinet Split

Wilson, having ordered the plebiscite, now strongly urges Britons to stay in. The issue has split his cabinet. He has some strong supporters and some even stronger opponents, notably the controversial Secretary for Industry, Tony Wedgwood Benn, who heaps scorn upon the Common Market as an unrealized El Dorado. Many think he is waiting in the wings as Wilson's successor.

If Wilson believes that membership in the Common Market (brought about by the Conservative government of Edward Heath) is a good thing for Britain, why did he not leave well enough alone and refrain from calling the unprecedented plebiscite?

Insiders say it was a desperate pre-election pledge, made last year to hold a splintered party together for a contest he was by no means sure of winning. Having squeaked through to victory, he could not evade the plebiscite.

As things turned out his promise has not had the desired effect on party unity — quite the reverse. The Labor party is more violently divided than ever. The pending vote has also had a catastrophic impact on inflation, now running at an annual rate of more than 30 per cent. There is general agreement in Britain that if he succeeds in obtaining an affirmative decision, Wilson will immediately impose a wide range of restrictions aimed at curbing inflation, perhaps even wage and price controls.

The prospect has stimulated extravagant wage demands and aggravated bitterness among Labor party supporters. The voices of pro-Common Market cabinet ministers sound faint against the thunder of the left-wing opposition.

Transport House, headquarters of the Labor party, recently issued a memorandum designed to fortify speakers who were opposed to the Common Market. It touched on every prejudicial nerve and included this passage:

ANTHONY WEDGWOOD BENN
. . . next British prime minister?

"The impact of Common Market shackles on Britain are not yet fully apparent in this so-called 'honeymoon' period of our EEC membership. By the turn of the decade—if we stay in—the iron fetters of our membership will be impossible to ignore. The alliance with the Common Market countries will be exposed as the drastic misalliance it really is, with Britain in the classic position of the unhappy spouse, paying out to support an establishment no longer desired and hampered at every turn by the partnership."

The Times of London, in reporting on the document, commented: "There has been no other time in British political history where a party's headquarters has been in such comprehensive conflict with its own elected government."

Advocates of the Common Market so far have not produced much effective ammunition to support their arguments for maintaining the association. No great slogan has emerged, nothing to fire the imagination of the people who will mark their ballots next month. The general theme is that Britain would have been much worse off without the Common Market.

"I expect it will be a yes vote," a respected newspaper editor told me. "Why? Because the British don't really like change. We'll stay in because we're in."

He did not seem to smell the smoke arising from the left. Michael Heselstine, Conservative spokesman on industry, in a recent speech attacked government extravagance (spending at the rate of £100,000 a minute) and said:

"Healey (chancellor of the exchequer) and Benn have become gravediggers of the free enterprise system while the Marxist left glut themselves at the funeral feast." He wound up weakly: "It cannot go on."

Nor will it. The free enterprise system in Britain is already in its death throes. Whatever new system emerges — and it could come under a Conservative government — undoubtedly will include more worker (union?) representation in management. Tony Benn's concept of worker participation extends down to the worker on the lowest rung of the ladder.

It's easy to write Britain off these days, easy to forget the histrionic quality of her people in acting out the world's woes and establishing new codes in the process. As the June 5 plebiscite approaches like a plastic D-Day, keep an eye on the battered Old Country. She still can produce some of the answers, which we in Canada may be glad to have in coming years.

After the Fact

On the one hand there is pressure to end capital punishment and on the other hand there is an increasing desire to provide for the dependents of murder victims.

It seems to be a case of doing something after the deed has occurred rather than preventing it in the first place! The one person to be compensated would be the victim, but unfortunately science has not yet devised a way of bringing people back to life. — Very Concerned.

Childish Tactics

I have just finished reading about Social Credit leader Bill Bennett's and Don Phillips' boycott of the legislature. It is too bad that two grown men, and especially one who is leader of the Social Credit party must revert to such childish behavior. If it is for publicity — you are barking up the wrong tree. The opposition party of B.C. has really gone to the dogs. — J. Hoffman, Victoria.

Generous Award

With reference to the recent strike by the Canadian Union of Public Employees against the municipalities, it was reported in the Victoria press that Saanich council was awarding management one extra week of holidays with pay, plus $800, plus $10 per hour for overtime. The total cost to the taxpayer was reported as approximately $36,500.

When the mayor was contacted, he confirmed that the generous award was as reported, but the overtime allowance of $10 per hour was not included in the sum of approximately $36,500.

I support the council that some recognition should be made with respect to the additional demands made upon management during the strike. I support the proposal of one extra week's holiday with pay. I also support the extra $800, but I strongly oppose a further $10 per hour for any employee, who will be a recipient of both the holiday and the $800 award.

It would appear that the most generous award on behalf of the taxpayer of Saanich may be in retaliation against union employees who struck the municipality.

It should be noted that management in all levels of government, in most instances, are in receipt of most generous salaries, reasonable hours of employment and excellent fringe benefits.

Saanich council should remember that all the residents in Saanich suffered great inconvenience during the strike and additional demands were made upon them. Aldermen are also reminded that many of the residents of Saanich who suffered because of the strike are non-union, salaried employees, who frequently in their normal employment, may be required to work extra hours, without any additional monetary recognition, may get "time off" providing he or she can be spared.—E. D. (Ted) Robbins, Saanich.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of May 23, 1915

ROME — Italy today declared war on the Austro-Hungarian empire, and in turn Germany has stated it is now at a state of war with Italy and has recalled the German ambassador at Rome, Prince von Bulow. The first skirmish in the war between Austria and Italy took place today at Forcellini di Montozzo in the pass between Pont di Legno and Pejo. An Austrian patrol was repulsed by Italian troops, reports said.

There Aren't Enough 'Good Jobs' to Go Around

By JAMES O'TOOLE

A Stanford Ph.D takes the best post available upon graduation — as a middle-level bureaucrat in a regional office of the Labor Department.

In England a young Oxford graduate finds the only job open to him is as a salesman in an electronics firm.

In Sweden a young women with a BA in chemistry takes the best job she can find — as a secretary.

In Poland a university graduate accepts work as a clerk in a state industry.

In many industrialized countries, socialist and capitalist alike, increasing numbers of highly qualified workers are unable to find jobs that use their full skills and training.

Down the Scale

The effect trickles down the occupational scale. A graduate of one of Germany's best technical high schools works as a machinist in a post held less than five years ago by a worker with nothing more than a primary school education.

This process of job displacement reaches its full force at the bottom of the occupational ladder, where poorly educated workers are often knocked off the last rung. In California a black dropout is told that a high school diploma is required to box groceries.

Marx predicted that mass unemployment would become the salient characteristic of labor markets in advanced economies. It is now clear that underemployment — working at less than one's full productive capacity — is more accurately the hallmark of work in industrialized societies.

In large measure this development stems from dissonances in the complex relationship between two institutions — education and work.

During the 20th Century, however, this function became dominant in many educational systems. Schools also assumed the role of society's sorters, selectors and certifiers.

They bestowed society's approval on some young people by opening opportunities for further education that led almost inevitably to good jobs and high social standing. Other students were tracked into vocational schools to learn the traits and attitudes appropriate to a working-class status in life.

In recent years, however, almost all of the developed countries have sought to turn schools away from being instruments of stratification and toward being the prime tool for the creation of greater social equality.

Governments with ideologies as diverse as those in Yugoslavia, Spain and the U.S. have been attempting to provide greater equality for all social classes through increasing access to education.

On one level there has been significant success — the median number of years of school attainment has rocketed upward in every developed country.

In the U.S. the median of schooling among blue-collar workers rose from 9.2 years in 1952 to 12 years in 1972, while college enrolment expanded in that same period from 2.6 million to 3.4 million. The story is even more spectacular in Europe and Japan.

From 1945 to about 1965 labor markets in the industrialized nations were elastic enough to soak up the ever-burgeoning supply of educated workers. Indeed, it seemed that industrial society's appetite for educated workers was insatiable.

To meet this seemingly unquenchable demand, all the stops were pulled out in the early 1960s, and public policy was geared to forestall dropping out of high school, to increase the numbers of college graduates at almost any cost and to turn out teachers, engineers and scientists in abundance.

In the U.S. such activity was justified by patriotic appeals to beat the Russians to the moon. America responded to the challenge with characteristic enthusiasm and overkill: during the 1960s, one social observer found, America built a new junior college every 10 days.

Up Against Ceiling

But no socioeconomic trend runs on eternally. The ever-expanding supply of educated workers is running up against a ceiling of job demand.

A few years ago Columbia's Ivar Berg became one of the first to discover that something like 80 per cent of American college graduates were taking jobs that were previously filled by workers with lower educational credentials.

Last fall these problems of underemployment were given official recognition as a national problem in President Ford's speech to the graduating class of Ohio State University:

"Your professors tell you that education unlocks creative genius and imagination, and that you must develop your human potential. And students have accepted this. But then Catch 22 enters the picture.

"You spend four years in school, graduate, go into the job market and are told that the rules have changed . . . to succeed you must acquire further credentials, so you go back to the university and ultimately emerge with a master's or even a Ph.D . . .

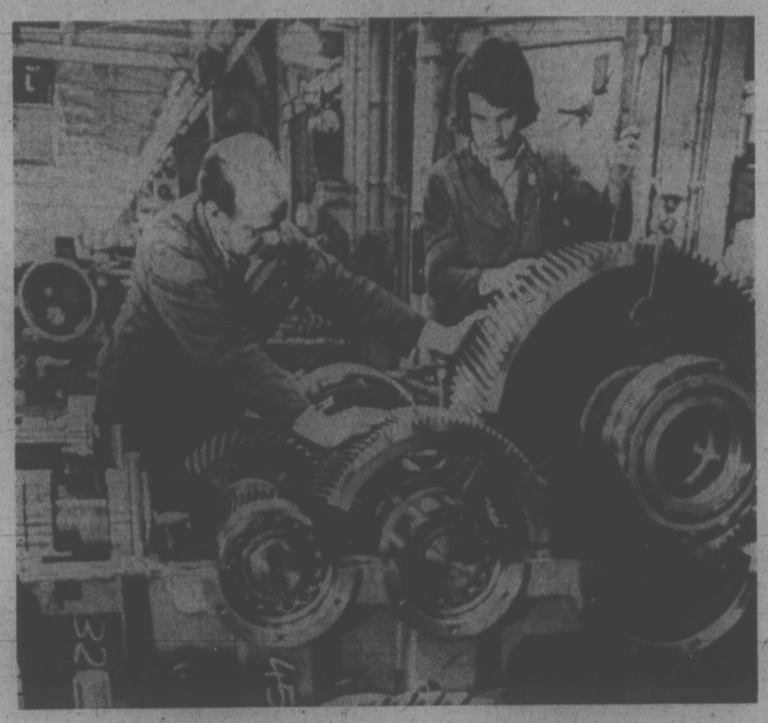
"And you know what happens next? You go out and look for a job, and now they say you are over-qualified . . . The fact of the matter is that education is being strangled — by degrees."

The speech echoed a growing concern among leaders in business, labor and academia that the rapid increase in educational attainment had been accompanied by a rise in worker expectation.

In particular, the current younger, more highly educated generation of workers now expects good jobs as its just reward for its many years in the educational system.

These expectations are compounded by a shift in values. Increasingly, young workers prefer jobs that are interesting, socially "meaningful" and offer the opportunity for personal growth over jobs offering only the traditional — and more easily provided — rewards of money and security.

The rub is that no industrial nation has been able to produce an adequate number of jobs providing the status and requiring the skills and educational levels that their work forces are achieving.



Job displacement worst at bottom of ladder.

The situation is nearly Malthusian in its proportions: Levels of educational attainment have tended to grow in almost geometric progression, while the number of jobs requiring higher levels of eduction has tended to grow at a much slower pace.

There simply are not enough good jobs to go around to everyone who thinks he or she deserves one.

Problems Linked

This contradiction, the evidence indicates, is beginning to create a linked series of potentially grave social, political and economic problems in industrial nations.

It appears that national policies designed to upgrade work forces educationally may be creating frustration and low morale among younger workers — workers who, ironically, have the educational backgrounds to articulate their dissatisfactions.

Thus, studies undertaken at the University of Michigan show that people who feel they deserve better jobs come to suffer from status conflict.

At the extreme, some of these workers come to feel trapped in bad jobs, sensing that by right they deserve better but by circumstances they will probably never achieve more. These feelings correlate highly with problems of poor physical and mental health.

Nearly every study of job dissatisfaction shows that the placing of intelligent and/or highly qualified workers in dull, unchallenging jobs is a prescription for pathology — for the worker, the employer and society.

It is, according to a Sandia Laboratories study, the intelligent blue-collar workers, not the dull ones, who are probably the most responsible for damage, low productivity, errors and accidents in the work-place.

And there are many more intelligent blue-collar workers than we might imagine — indeed, in the U.S. there are three times as many laborers with IQs over 130 as there are PhDs. (There are, of course, many times more laborers. The point is that laborers are usually, often inappropriately, treated as though they were imbeciles).

Employer assumptions about these workers' intelligence has led to jobs designed to be successfully completed by morons..

A massive survey of working conditions prepared for the U.S. Labor Department found that 35 per cent of all workers feel over-qualified for their jobs.

But numbers dehumanize what is essentially a problem of the human spirit. A woman worker, quoted in Studs Terkel's "Working," put it eloquently when she said, "Most of us have jobs that are too small for our spirits."

The social disparity between the promises of educational policy and the realities of work may be creating even more acute problems. As Daniel Bell points out, society may be in the throes of creating a new meritocracy, composed of the 20 per cent of the population holding almost all the economy's good jobs.

In itself, the creation of an elite is not a new phenomenon. Nor is it surprising that this elite appears to be amassing social and political power to match its economic weight.

The noteworthy break from past patterns is the growing refusal of the 80 per cent of the population — the "masses" with the bad jobs — to accept the elite's right to its special privileges.

What is also new in history is that the masses are now almost as well educated as the elite. Consequently, they look upon the meritocracy with envy and, perhaps, hostility.

There are signs of class-based hostility in the evident ungluing of the traditional left-centre political coalitions in the Western democracies. Antagonism between the professional, upper-middle-class liberals and the workers — old allies — have surfaced during the past few years both in Europe and America.

In the U.S. Democrats saw their once-solid labor support slip away when they nominated the liberals' presidential candidate in 1972.

Social Erosion

In Sweden and Denmark bureaucrats, teachers and other traditional supporters of the Socialists are becoming increasingly restive as they see salary and other distinctions between the classes erode.

To switch for a moment to the economic perspective, in the 1960s the "human capitalists" argued that the educational upgrading of the work force would lead to their higher productivity as underqualifed workers were replaced by those with greater skills.

What actually happens, however, is a process of unproductive job dislocation — more highly qualified workers bump slightly less qualified workers from their jobs. No increase in productivity occurs, because the jobs do not usually require higher skills. Productivity may actually drop, because the more highly qulaified worker is likely to be dissatisified with the job.

Something, then, is wrong at the education and work intersection. What of the future?

Over the next 15 years or so the average age of the work force, manpower experts tell us, will shift downward. By the mid-1980s the largest working age group will be the 25-to-34-year-olds. And they will be better educated.

By 1990 something like 30 per cent of these young people can be expected to have earned a BA or higher degree. Another 20 per cent will have had one or more years in college.

As early as 1980 one in four American workers will have some kind of college degree. Half the workers with four or more years of college will be under 35, and half of all the workers with no more than a primary school education will be over 50.

High Aspirations

Today's young people, clearly, aspire to higher levels of education and better jobs.

The situation is complicated by the fact that their values are markedly dissimilar from those of their parents. Young workers, the surveys agree, are far more dissatisfied than their elder colleagues.

The desire for jobs offering intrinsic rewards has increased over the past five years, even in the face of a tightening job market.

Thus, underemployment is likely to grow — not to disappear — as the current generation matures. Job dissatisfaction is not going to be merely "a youth problem" in coming decades. And the kinds of job likely to be available in a post-industrial society can only exacerbate the problem.

In the final reckoning, society can do little but rid itself of the delusion that the major purposes of education are to serve the economy and the economic needs of students.

Statistics show little or no correlation between a nation's economic growth and the years of formal education of its citizenry. A recent MIT study shows that the economic advantages to individuals of higher education have all but disappeared.

Simply put, the most constructive thing that can be done to improve the relationship between the worlds of education and work is to stop implicitly selling education as an economic investment — and instead to make students and their parents understand that education is a goal unto itself, but not automatically a formula for economic escalation.

The Ersatz Folk-Singer

By STANLEY REYNOLDS
Manchester Guardian

The thing I dislike most about folk singers is the way they lay down the law as if they were the sole possessors of the official truth. No maybes or perhapses.

At one time I used to keep getting dragged before folk singers and it was very worrying to be sitting there, cross-legged on the floor, while they sang about lovin' 'n' peace 'n' the times a-changin' and all these good Christian sort of things, and I would feel like getting up and smashing their guitar over their heads and strangling them with the strings.

Have you ever noticed that superior little smile the folk singers have when they are singing? I mean, what are they smiling about? They look very smug and holier than thou and then if you look at the faces of the people sitting around you'll see that the folks who are being sung to have that sneaky little smile on their faces too. I think I'll hit them as well.

I've never seen Bob Dylan sing but he sounds to me as though he's got one of those smiles. But Dylan of course has crossed the line and is a rock star now as well as being Woody Guthrie. His swing to a rock style, which came upon him on the road to Damascus when he learned that the Beatles had eight records in the Top 10, coincided with a certain cooling of his revolutionary fervor. Did not Dylan and Pete Seeger have a big falling out because Dylan gave up politics? According to Anthony Scaduto, who is Dylan's biographer, the great man had a hankering to turn himself into Elvis Presley, who is not very committed or political.

"There is something a little Chaplinesque about Dylan too. The person he adopts in a lot of songs is of the little chap getting pushed around by all these congressmen and senators and generals and other non-folk like that. Of course Dylan is not a little chap, he is a superstar and he has a country estate, which is something he should hate.

To tell you the truth I am a little prejudiced here and it is not really a question of age, it is a question of money. I like my folk singers poor. I know it is a silly prejudice, but there you have it.

Woody Guthrie was poor most of his life. Woody also somehow seemed more real, the authentic article. Bob Dylan never seemed real to me. He wrote all the songs about travelling around which are meant to give you the impression that he was a hobo guitarist like the great Woody, but it wasn't true. He is a nice middle class boy from Minnesota named Bob Zimmerman.

Woody was the real thing and his songs smell real. Woody was the authentic article who sprang from the people, from those dirt poor people of Oklahoma, and he was a gypsy guitarist and a travelling troubadour. Bob Dylan is just someone who would have liked to have been all those things but is only a rich superstar instead.

Dylan of course has a lot of talent and has written some fine songs which anyone would have been proud to have written, but when he sings, "Well, I'm walking down the highway, With my suitcase in my hand"—somehow you know that this is just poetic, that he is actually driving down the highway, perhaps even being chauffeur-driven down the highway.

There is something phoney about Dylan's gypsy pose. Even his name is phoney and when he dedicates his book of songs and poems to Woody Guthrie he manages to spell his hero's name wrong. "Dedicated to the rough riders, ghost poets, low-down rounders, sweet lovers, desperate characters, sad-eyed drifters and rainbow angels," Dylan writes and I don't believe a word of it.

Woody on the other hand does ring true. I've been reading his autobiography, written in 1943, called Bound For Glory and here he is writing prose but he is breaking into songs in every paragraph:

"The months flew fast and the people faster, and one day the coast wind blew me out of San Francisco, through San Jose's wide streets, and over the hump to Los Angeles. Months of December, down along old Fifth and Main, Skid Row, one of the skiddiest of all Skid Rows. God, what a wet and windy night! And the clouds swing low and split up like herds of wild horses in the canyons of the street."

When it rained on Woody he got wet, which is something you don't feel happens with Dylan.

DYLAN . . . when it rains, he stays dry

Log Machine Maker Eyes Exports to Ease Slump

Logging machinery manufacturer Ed Brown expects his industry to slump within the next 12 months in the face of world economic decline.

But at the same time he thinks export markets will improve before the domestic forest industry is back in the marketplace for new machines.

Brown, managing director of Nicholson Murdie Machines Ltd., is just back from a five-week visit to Australia and New Zealand, where his company has sold specialized machines for harvesting and processing trees.

One reason for the trip was to keep the firm's name before international buyers in a week-long exhibition of all kinds of logging equipment, sponsored by the Forest Industries Journal at Myrtleford, Victoria, Australia.

Unlike some sales-oriented exhibits, this one produced no orders for Nicholson machines, a clear indication of the reluctance of buyers to spend until markets improve internationally.

Referring to the Australian forest industry—which consumes both hard and soft woods for lumber and pulp manufacturing—Brown said:

He saw bulk shipping terminals where tons of unsold chips wait for loading. At one mill he saw 70,000 tons of stored chips, at another 170,000 tons, between them nearly 10 shiploads waiting for better market conditions.

The suggestion that international markets may improve before the North American mills and forest companies resume capital outlays comes from a hint that Japan's economy is starting to pick up, and in Australia and New Zealand that means those unsold chips may start moving soon.

Nicholson Murdie manufactures a line of some 15 pieces of heavy equipment such as log barkers, chippers, cut-off saws, loaders, chip mills and plywood mill machines, mostly for the B.C. and Pacific Northwest market, but with a steady acceptance in the Far East and other countries including Russia.

In 1973, for example, Nicholson Murdie sold more than $500,000 worth of machines to Kenya for a pulp mill established through Canadian Export Development Corp. and the World Bank.

Overall, 1973 was a particularly busy year, as was 1971, and orders taken during that period were still being filled last year, which Brown described as "pretty good."

The Harbor Road plant, which was expanded by about 30 per cent in the past year, is busy now filling last year's orders, including a heavy loader for MacMillan Bloedel's up-island operations and a barker for New Zealand.

Brown with log barker

Work on hand is expected to last through 1975, with the slack occurring next year, which Brown expects will be a maintenance period to keep previous buyers supplied with replacement parts.

"We may have to start looking for diversification," Brown suggested as a supplemental means of keeping the plant active. Only the occasional order for large equipment is being placed, such as a log loader for New Zealand which just came in, but not as a result of Brown's visit.

For research into new products, Nicholson Murdie relies chiefly on the large engineering staff at its sister company, Nicholson Manufacturing Co., of Seattle. The firms are commonly owned and closely held by private individuals.

Both companies have sold in the Russian market, which Brown said is vast and will probably produce many orders. While in Myrtleford, Brown re-established contact with Russian marketing representatives, who were especially interested in the Nicholson Murdie display.

One other B.C. manufacturer, Canadian Car (Pacific), of Vancouver, had its integrated chip-n-saw machine on display at the Australian show, whose theme was in-woods mechanization accenting mobile equipment.

Myrtleford is in the heart of the Australian pine forest, which has been planted on a sustained yield basis from seedlings imported from the southern U.S.

Container Service From Japan

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new weekly container service to the port of Vancouver began this week when the Japan Mail arrived here and discharged 83 containers.

The ship, owned by American President Lines (APL), is one of four container ships which will be arriving here regularly.

Earlier, the Japan Mail discharged eight Canada-bound containers in Seattle. APL spokesmen said the line will continue to drop containers for Canada in Seattle as long as importers request the service. The spokesmen said the Vancouver service began partly because other have requested it, and partly because of APL's desire to pick up more Canadian export cargo.

The American mail line division of APL has been bringing some containers into Vancouver on its break-bulk vessels for several years, and will continue to do so.

Media Profit Squeeze Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — Babson's Canadian Reports Ltd. of Toronto forecasts a squeeze on profits of broadcasting and newspaper companies this year, but says the cable television industry is likely to experience continued growth.

In a study of the communications industry, the investment counselling firm says broadcasting and newspaper outlets will be faced with higher operating costs and little growth in the volume of advertising.

Publishers and broadcasters may profit, however, by the federal government's proposal to remove deductibility of spending by Canadian advertisers in United States media, the study says.

It says further expansion of the cable television industry is expected as the Canadian Radio-Television Commission continues to encourage growth of cable systems.

But the study adds that a continuing jurisdictional dispute between the federal and provincial governments continues to hurt price-earnings multiples of cable companies.

$2 Oil Price Hike Feared

WASHINGTON (WP) — The world's oil-producing countries are expected to raise prices $2 a barrel at the end of the summer, a move which could deepen the worldwide business recession and would add up to 3 cents to the gallon price of gasoline in the United States.

At the very least, many economists feel a $2 increase in world oil prices would postpone the time when an upswing in business might take place.

Some economists have long felt that the business recession was triggered by the huge increase in world oil prices last year at the end of the Arab oil embargo so that any new price rise can only mean more trouble for the world's economy.

"It's certainly not going to be healthy for our economy," U.S. Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said in an interview,.

Zarb was one of four sources who confirmed that the world's oil producers plan to raise their prices when they meet this coming September in Libreville, the capital city of Gabon in West Africa. Three of the four sources said the price increase would be $2 a barrel.

One source was an executive of a major international oil company which is changing its planning to accommodate a $2 increase in world oil prices. The executive, who insisted on anonymity, said the company had just revised upward by $2 a barrel the price it will have to pay this fall for oil it takes from the Persian Gulf.

Oil prices will rise again in September because that is when the 1974 agreement of the world's oil exporters to freeze prices at their present levels will expire. Worldwide oil prices today range from $11 to $12 a barrel, depending on how much sulphur is in the oil.

An agreement to raise oil prices apparently was reached at secret meetings held recently in Tehran, the capital city of Iran. The Shan of Iran said last week in Washington that he expected oil prices to go up in September, citing world inflation and a lack of movement by world consumers in curbing their appetities for oil as reasons for a new price hike.

Ironically, the new move toward a higher world price for oil comes at a time when countries producing 10 per cent of the world's oil are offering it at discount prices. The reasons for the discounts are a shortage of money in some oil-producing nations and a surplus of oil brought on by conservation moves in many oil-consuming countries and by the recession.

In the last week alone, oil leaders have talked of "cutting deals" in Equador, Nigeria, Libya and Algeria. One oilman said he expects a price cut in the next two weeks of 30 cents a barrel in Nigeria and of 50 to 75 cents a barrel in Equador.

No Date Confirmed For Oil Price Hike

OTTAWA — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday Canada might not have a new, higher, oil price by July 1 but a price increase is coming.

Replying to questions in the Commons Macdonald also conceded that the federal government is on common ground with Alberta in wanting an eventual price of $9 to $10 a barrel.

However, Macdonald said he could not confirm a specific date for an initial price increase from the present $6.50 a barrel, nor the time span over which the price would be raised to the objective level.

He stressed that the federal government wants the approval, not only of producer provinces, but of consuming provinces before announcing any price increase.

Macdonald said he understood it was Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed's position that the price need not be raised by July 1 so long as meaningful negotiations are under way.

It has been generally specualted that no new price would be announced before the Saskatchewan election of June 11.

Officials of the energy department have indicated it is rather difficult discussing the quesiton of price increase while the election campaing is on — and perhaps it will remain difficult for a week or two after the election while the government settles, or resettles.

COSTS THREATEN OIL SAND PROJECT

CALGARY (CP) — Home Oil Co. Ltd. of Calgary received regulatory-agency approval Thursday for its proposal to build a 103,000 barrell-a-day oil sands plant but company officials were uncertain whether the project could go ahead on schedule.

Ian Drum, a Home vice-president, said that since the company announced the project in April, 1974, the cost estimate has risen to $2.4 billion from $956 million and that the company still has no success securing additional financial partners.

Home, the only Canadian-owned company to have proposed a synthetic crude oil extraction plant in the Athabasca oil sands in northeastern Alberta, is not the only one to have encountered difiiculties.

Late last year, the federal, Alberta and Ontario governments combined to rescue the oil sands plant being built by Syncrude Canada Ltd. after one of the consortium's partners, Atlantic Richfield Canada Ltd., withdrew.

Other, similar-sized oil sands plants have been proposed by groups headed by Petrofina Canada Ltd. of Montreal and Shell Canada Ltd. of Toronto. These companies have reported problems identical to those faced by Syncrude.

Back in December, Home, which owns 87.5 per cent of the proposed plant, and Alminex Ltd., which owns the remaining interest, said the group was indefinitely postponing the project because of uncertainty over future oil prices, escalating costs, and the effects of federal and provincial taxation measures.

Company president Ross Phillips wrote a letter, later tabled in the Commons, that Home could not go ahead with the project unless it received similar concessions granted to Syncrude.

"Our position on our proposed oil sands plant has not changed," Drum said. "Our position on additional partners for the project also has not changed."

When Home made the application to the Alberta Energy Resources Conservation Board a year ago, construction of the plant was scheduled to begin by mid-1978, with initial production to start by July, 1982, and full production by July, 1985.

But Home officials said the timetable is under review, and the company will approach Ottawa and Edmonton for possible assistance.

In announcing the approval Thursday, the energy board noted that Home's proposed plant, to be located 35 miles north of Fort McMurray, would significantly increase economic and employment opportunities for northeastern Alberta.

23,000 Pacemakers Recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since 1972, various defects have forced the recall of more than 23,000 electronic heart pacemakers.

There have been as many as 28 suspected or confirmed deaths, the latest being two children who died when a cable attached to the life sustaining device cracked.

But, according to U.S. Food and Drug Administration chief Alexander Schmidt, the pacemaker is a proven and reliable device improving in effectiveness every year.

"I'm sure that from time to time people will die," he told a news briefing Wednesday. But considering the lives that are saved or prolonged and the fact that 125,000 Americans keep their hearts beating with the surgically implanted devices, the situation is not as dark as occasional publicity would suggest, he said.

Schmidt took the unusual step of calling a news conference to discuss two recalls, affecting nearly 300 pacemakers.

New Licences Not Issued While Strike On—Strachan

Transport Minister Bob Strachan rejected opposition charges in the legislature Thursday that driver licences are being issued to motorists with no insurance because of the ICBC strike.

Strachan said the motor-vehicle branch is not issuing new driver's licences because of the strike and added that all motorists whose drivers certificates are being extended will be insured in case of accidents.

His comments were prompted by questions in the legislature by a series of Socred MLAs, including Newell Morrison (Victoria).

Morrison claimed that driver licences were being issued to new dirvers without the security of insurance.

"Do they require a document issued by ICBC?" he asked.

Strachan replied that new licences are not being issued because a document from ICBC is mandatory, but he added that new drivers can still take all the necessary tests and there wait.

Socred MLA Hugh Curtis charged that Strachan overstepped his powers when he allowed extension of drivers' certificates for the duration of the strike.

Not only would those drivers be uninsured, but the government's ICBC regulations would have to be changed to allow validity of certificates to be extended beyond the motorists birthday if it falls while the strike is on.

Strachan, however, said there is "no problem related thereto."

Ministerial discretion, he said, allows the minister to extend the 14-day period of grace permitted by law for motrists without valid certificates.

The matter first arose, he said, some five to six months ago when the attorney-general made provision to deal with drivers who hadn't received renewal forms.

The grace period can be extended to a time 14 days after the labor dispute has been resolved, he said.

CREDIT UNIONS VITAL —A-G

The network of credit unions in B.C. will become the province's major financial resource, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald predicted Thursday.

Macdonald made the comment after introducing the Credit Unions Act in the legislature, a bill of 196 sections and the culmination of two years work by the credit union movement in B.C.

Bill 82 allows the previncial government's proposed financial institution, the B.C. Savings and Trust Corp., to participate with credit unions, said Macdonald.

The bill, he said, expands the services which a credit union may offer to its members, consolidates functions of the superintendent of credit unions and allows diversification of services. It replaces th 1961 Credit Unions Act.

Macdonald said "democratic controls" have been provided allowing for election of directors to represent a geographic area or class of credit union members.

More fruitful competition and an appeal system have also been provided.

Appeals against rulings by the superintendent of credit unions and co-operatives will be heard by the government's new Corporate and Financial Services Commission established under the Securities Act.

Credit union members would also be given access to the appeal body, said Macdonald.

The attorney-general said the credit union movement represents some $1 billion worth of assets and 600,000 members.

Debate Motion Passed In Watered-Down Form

The stalemate over time limits on debate was finally broken in the legislature Thursday with unanimous approval of a much watered-down compromise motion.

Starting Monday, the house will sit in committee of supply for two hours each morning to discuss the 213 spending estimates not yet passed by the legislature.

The compromise virtually overrules the controversial rule 45A which limits debate of spending estimates to 135 hours or 45 sittings.

Opposition members said Premier Barrett "completely capitulated" Thursday by extending the compromise bid to mean there will be no limit on the length of time the house can continue to debate estimates, and by allowing the possibility of estimates debate during the regular afternoon and morning sittings.

Barrett said if the party whips can come to some "reasonable" agreement, rule 45A could be suspended certain days to allow estimates debate during regular sittings.

According to the new rule, official debate of the estimates was to end on May 9 and all remaining estimates were to be passed without debate.

But opposition members, who have fought the time limits since they were first suggested last spring, used procedural manoeuvres to prevent passage of the estimates.

In three days of procedural wrangling only 12 votes were passed and the government finally gave up, and moved a compromise bid, supported by the Liberals and Tories, which would see the house sit in committee in the mornings to discuss the remaining estimates.

Wednesday, when the motion first came up for discussion, the Socreds proposed an amendment which would mean the house would sit in committee of supply in the mornings and thus be able to actually pass the estimates during debate.

Barrett indicated the government would support the amendment, but the opposition then tried to get the government to agree to a total suspension of rule 45, since they said the motion would mean the house is in fact breaking the rule anyway.

On Thursday, Speaker Gordon Dowding ruled that the motion could pass without suspending the rule.

After some debate, the house voted on the Socred amendment and it received support from all members except Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson (North Vancouver-Capilano).

Gibson voted against the amendment because he believed it broke rule 45 and the house should have voted to suspend the rule. He said that was the only way the members could be assured of full debate.

He then proposed another amendment which would have specifically spelled out the suspension of rule 45 but Dowding ruled the amendment out of order.

Later Gibson supported the main motion to set up the committee of supply because he said he was assured there would be unlimited debate.

Independent MLA Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) suggested the estimates also be debated during the regular sittings of the house and Barrett said if the parties could come to an agreement to do so without disrupting debate of other busines, he would support such a plan.

No Intervention In Indian Protest

Resources Minister Bob Williams said Thursday he does not intend to intervene in the Nass Valley Indians' protests which could shut down an estimated 80 per cent of the logging operations of Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd. (Cancel).

He said in the legislature settlement of the dispute is the responsibility of the Nishga Tribal Council and CanCel.

a question from Tory leader Scott Wallace who also asked how many loggers would be affected by the closure scheduled for June 1.

A fair number of Nishga people have worked for CanCel, said Williams, adding he did not have specific figures.

The Indian council represents four Indian bands in the Nass Valley that hold road rights-of-way leased to CanCel. The council has informed the company that the roads would be closed to commercial traffic for at least a week.

Closure is aimed at the provincial government which so far has refused to negotiate over 4,000 square miles in the Nass Valley claimed by the Indians.

City Visit By Seattle Air Patrol

Sixty members of the Civil Air Patrol in Seattle will spend the weekend in Victoria as guests of the 89 (Pacific) Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets.

On Saturday about 80 members of the squadron, the squadron's 27-piece band and the Seattle visitors will march from the Provincial Museum, beginning at 11 a.m.

The march will end at Beacon Hill Park where the cadets and CAP members will take part in Highland Games.

A banquet will be held at Playland that evening and the squadron will put on a display of training facilities at the Bay Street Armoury the next morning.

The entire squadron will be on hand Monday for the annual inspection, at 7:45 p.m. in the armory.

The event is open to the public and will feature a rifle drill presentation, photography, first aid, a precision drill by the 45 cadettes of the squadron and other displays.

CATTLEMEN ADOPT INCOME ASSURANCE

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The British Columbia Cattlemen's Association Thursday adopted an income assurance program worked out with the provincial government.

The 300 delegates at the association's annual convention voted about 65 per cent to accept the plan, expected to cost about $20 million during the next two years.

President Maury Thomas said he is pleased with the vote.

"We have a lot of strong feelings about the program," he said. "Only time will tell just how it is going to affect our association."

He agreed the issue caused a deep rift in the association, but said that all members now should accept the income assurance scheme.

One who doesn't like the move is Gordon Parke of Cache Creek, president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association of B.C.

Parke said the industry will never again flourish in the province and "there are going to be top limits just as there will be bottom limits.

"Because of the controls that are going to have to be instituted in order to take care of production, the same controls are going to mean that when the market demands more beef, that we're not going to have it there to take advantage of that demand.

"Public money put into the marketplace of beef cattle is going to distort the signals which we are getting and it's not going to tell us accurately how many cattle to produce. It's going to clutter up the future of the beef industry in the province."

No Comment On Hydro Replacement

Resources Minister Bob Williams refused comment in the legislature Thursday on whether meetings have been held to discuss appointment of a successor to B.C. Hydro chairman Dr. David Cass-Beggs.

After questioning from Liberal Leader David Anderson, Williams said Hydro's board of directors has not held meetings to discuss a replacement for the chairman, whose term has expired.

But when Anderson asked if "there have been any meetings" on the topic, Williams said only: "No comment."

The minister said it is "absolute nonsense" for Anderson to infer that one of the reasons for Cass-Beggs replacement is a difference of opinion on the Columbia River Treaty.

Anderson said that Cass-Beggs' opinion that the CRT should be renegotiated is one of the reasons for his impending replacement.

The Hydro chairman later commented that he accepted the post on the condition that the maximum term of office would be three years, a term that has almost expired. He declined to elaborate.

GALA PARTY FOR DIEF

OTTAWA — Plans are taking shape for the 80th birthday extravaganza planned in Saskatoon next fall for former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

The celebrations will include a sod-turning for the Diefenbaker Library at the University of Saskatchewan, a mammoth banquet and an evening of various displays recalling Diefenbaker's life.

Diefenbaker was born Sept. 18, 1895.

Tories Blow Chance to Grill PM

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — For the first time in 12 years opposition MPs had the chance Thursday to grill the prime minister of Canada on his own spending estimates, but they blew it.

They might not have received many answers anyway, but the Conservatives by their tactics actually helped Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau leave the Commons after almost two hours without having to answer one question.

His was the first mistake. He had agreed in consultation with government House Leader Mitchell Sharp to let Trudeau speak first out of courtesy to the prime minister.

"I thought I was speaking to gentlemen," he remarked bitterly.

Trudeau seized the opportunity and gave a long dissertation on political science, liberally laced with insults toward Tories who have criticized him in the past for what they called his "lavish" spending on his residences and offices.

He explained that he had to leave for an engagement in Belleville, Ont., at 4:30 p.m., and used up all but five minutes of this time, while opposition MPs fumed helplessly.

But they helped the prime mininster talk the clock out by jumping up on points of order and points of privilege whenever any of Trudeau's insults hit home. And they hit home frequently.

Even when Trudeau said he would stay another half hour to answer questions, Stanfield and NDP spokesman David Orlikow spent the entire time making speeches and complaining about the inability of MPs and the public to get information from the government.

For weeks the opposition had demanded the right to have senior officials in the privy council office and prime minister's office before them to answer questions on estimates like other senior departmental officials.

Trudeau refused on the grounds that only ministers can answer on matters of policy and that his own officials, such as cabinet secretary Michael Pitfield, are privy to confidential information.

The opposition could question Sharp in committee, he said, but if that wasn't good enough for them, he was available in the House Thursday for this purpose. It was the first time in 12 years that a prime mininster had had this "opportunity" he observed.

But Trudeau spent about half of his time defending past criticisms by the Tories about his expenditures in his two offices, at 24 Sussex Drive — including the infamous swimming pool being constructed at the expense of un-named donors — and at his official summer residence at Harrington Lake.

He admitted that this part of his speech was "a waste of time," but said he had to answer the concern expressed by some Conservatives, including former Tory Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

He compared the swimming pool to Stornaway, the official residence of the leader of the opposition. Bother were donated to the government by anonymous private citizens to be used by future holders of the offices concerned.

He compared his $86,000 bullet-proof limousine to the bomb-shelter built at the prime minister's official residence during Diefenbaker's administration.

"He (Diefenbaker) has been a particularly visible case of paranoia," Trudeau observed.

He called Diefenbaker's acquisition as prime minister of Harrington Lake probably "the largest land grab in the history of Canada."

But while Diefenbaker stocked the lake with fish "for his own enjoyment," Trudeau said, there will be no fish in his swimming pool.

NOUS NUDE, NO SECRETS?

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Tom Cossitt wants to know whether a photograph that purports to show Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife nearly nude represents a new government policy of full disclosure.

The picture, in the June issue of the French-language magazine Nous published in Montreal, is titled The Best-dressed Couple of the Year and has the Trudeaus' heads superimposed on other bodies. Cossitt, to a wave of laughter in the Commons, said Thursday the Trudeaus' prize-winning outfits "consist only and entirely of Canada's honored maple leaf questionably replacing the traditional fig leaf."

Trudeau was not in the House when Cossitt, who complains steadily about government secrecy, asked whether the photograph "is part of a new government policy of full disclosure and complete revelation that will eventually lead to the uncovering of many hidden things. . . ."

CTC Still Undecided On Air Fare Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has not yet decided whether it will suspend air fare increases by CP Air and Air Canada beyond Monday, a transport commission spokesman said today.

The commission spokesman said another official was wrong Thursday in saying that the proposed increases would take effect late Monday night if hearings on the higher rates were not completed at that time.

The commission spokesman said that the commission will see how hearings proceed today before deciding what action it will take.

This applies also to proposed increases by Eastern Provincial Airways and Pacific Western Airlines. Higher rates filed by Quebecair, Nordair and Trans-air are to take effect in early June.

Toronto economist Ronald House, a consultant and York University professor, suggested Thursday that the commission should suspend the air fare increases two more weeks to allow a close look at airline internal financial practices.

Dr. House, appearing for the Consumers' Association of Canada, said he thinks the airlines deserve more revenue but he would not set a figure. He suggested the way the rates are developed is "unreasonable and unjust."

Air Canada and CP Air are proposing domestic air fare increases averaging 10 per cent for economy class and 14 per cent for first class. The other carriers, all regional airlines, are asking for a variety of increases.

Dr. House suggested Air Canada was inefficient compared with similar airlines.

Dr. House said that in deciding whether rates are just, the commission should take into account airline efficiency. Using that rule, Air Canada did not appear efficient compared with similar carriers.

Air Canada Loss Said Due to Investment

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada would have had a $6-million profit last year rather than a $9.2-million loss if its approach to investment in equipment and buidings was similar to CP Air, says Toronto accountant Douglas Irwin.

Irwin, managing partner in Winspear Higgins Stevenson and Co., said at a Canadian transport commission hearing Thursday that if he were hired as a consultant by Air Canada he would tell the airline to take a careful look at the size of its investment in equipment and buildings.

Air Canada earned only $1 in revenue for every $1.63 invested in plant in 1974, he said, while CP Air earned $1 for every $1.33 invested in these assets.

Irwin was appearing for the Consumers' Association of Canada at a commission hearing on proposed air fare increases by Air Canda, CP Air, Transair, Nordair, Eastern Provincial Airways, Quebecair and Pacific Western Airlines.

CP Air and Air Canada have submitted rate increases averaging 10 per cent for economy class and 14 per cent for first class. They will take effect Monday unless suspended or disallowed by the commission.

Irwin said one problem leading to Air Canada's losses last year may be that "they have to invest a great deal more in plant and equipment to get a dollar's worth of revenue . . ."

He said he does not know what technical explanation there is for this heavy investment but he would advise the state-owned airline to investigate the problem carefully.

EEC Studies Link

OTTAWA (CP) — A major step was taken Thursday toward achievement of the Canadian desire to establish a contractual link with the European Economic Community.

The EEC commission, in effect the secretariat in the nine-country community, recommended that negotiations be opened with Canada to conclude a "framework agreement for economic and commercial co-operation."

The recommendation will be considered by the ministerial council — representing the chief ministers of the nine.

The announcement is the fruit of discussions by Prime Minister Trudeau in two trips to Europe in recent months and of negotiations between market and Canadian officials.

Presuming the ministerial council accepts the recommendation of the commission — and Canadians expect that it will — then negotiations could lead to the first agreement between the community and a developed country.

The new agreement could provide the framework within which Common Market and Canadian industries could promote joint ventures, exchange relevant information and facilitate contacts between industrial policymakers and firms, the statement said.

Bomber Killed

CANNES (Reuter) — A bomb exploded outside a Casino restaurant Friday, the third explosion in this lush French Riviera resort since the Cannes film festival opened two weeks ago. The body of Jean-Luc Milan, 21, believed to have been the bomber, was found nearby.

More Forest Fires

WINNIPEG (CP) — An intensely dry spring has caused a dramatic increase in the number of minor forest fires in Manitoba, a provincial forestry branch official said Wednesday.

The official said the number of fires in provincial forests has increased to 96 this year compared with 12 as of May 21, 1974.

Doctors Accept Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 300 residents and interns at seven teaching hospitals in B.C. voted overwhelmingly Thursday night to accept the terms of the non-binding report handed down by arbitrator Dr. Noel Hall for a first contract.

Spokesman Dr. Craig Beattie said the one-year agreement is retroactive to Jan. 1. And provides for a salary increase of approximately 25 per cent for interns and 17 per cent for residents. Their terms include free meals for the doctors while on duty and a cost-of-living clause, adjusted every six months, he said.

The hospitals are expected to give their decision on the report next week.

VANCOUVER — The B.C. Labor Relations Board met Thursday after Weyerhauser Canada applied to the board to stop a wildcat walkout by members of the Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, Local 10.

Christopher C. Crombie, a spokesman for the pulp and paper industrial relations bureau that represents Weyerhauser at the hearing, said "The PPWC at Kamloops will probably stay off the job until the board makes a ruling in the dispute." He said the 460 union members at the Kamloops pulp mill were off the job Thursday afternoon after walking out midnight Wednesday.

Reg Ginn, a spokesman here for the PPWC, said the members of Local 10 walked off the job because Weyerhauser brought in two contractors to handle a job normally done by the PPWC. The outside contractors are members of Plumbers' Union Local 170.

★

NANAIMO — An inquest into the death of a Vancouver diver burned in a decompression chamber was adjourned Thursday to wait for expert witnesses.

Coroner Bud Newcombe said three experts were being called to give testimony on diving and medical aspects of the death of Norman Ramsey Macdonald, 42.

The diver was caught in a flash fire inside a decompression chamber March 18 when an air-oxygen mixture suddenly ignited.

Newcombe said the inquest was adjourned indefinitely but he expected it to resume within a month.

Before the inquest had started, the coroner said a report on Macdonald's death prepared by the Canadian Armed Forces Diving School in Victoria showed some procedure needed to be rectified.

★

VANCOUVER — Two members of Rape Relief of Vancouver said Thursday that doctors are often cold and hostile when they are asked to do a medical examination of rape victims.

The women, who declined to be identified to avoid crank calls, said they are part of a team of six who counsel women who have suffered rape. They were at a booth for their organization Thursday in the exhibit section of a Canada-U.S. conference on emergency medicine.

They said they dealt with 200 rape cases in Vancouver last year, and these were only the women who sought help. They said police estimate the number of rapes is 10 times the reported number in any community, but too often the victims are afraid to report the assault.

★

VANCOUVER — Three men were jailed Thursday for raping a 24-year-old Chilliwack woman last July near Cultus Lake. John Kren, 20, of Fort Langley, was sentenced to 18 months definite and 18 months indeterminate; Billy Smoker, 18, of Yarrow, was sentenced to 18 months in jail and a year's probation; and Randall Brooks, 18, of Vedder Crossing was sentenced to a year in jail.

★

VANCOUVER — City police constable David Singh, 30, convicted Wednesday of perjury and sentenced to six months in jail, was released on a $2,500 recognizance bond Thursday, pending appeal of the conviction. Singh has been suspended from the force following the conviction and pending outcome of the appeal.

Albany Re-Elected

John Albany will be Songhees Indian band chief for two more years following elections for band administrators Wednesday.

Albany defeated Robert Sam and Harry Dick.

Councillors will be the incumbent Harold Joseph, and Linda George, who won over Norman George when a tie vote was broken in her favor by electoral officer Andy Thomas.

TENANT ACTION PLANNED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia tenant organization said Thursday it plans to promote collective, rather than individual, action by tenants with grievances against the same landlord.

President Bruce Yorke said collective actions are allowed under the landlord and tenant act if the rentalsman or rent review commission gives consent.

The rentalsman and the commission, however, "are loath to consent speedily, or at all, to the utilization of this provision, even in clear instances where a common and inter-connected interest exists," said Yorke.

Barge Supplies Villages Cut off by Rail Blockade

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A B.C. Railway spokesman said Thursday that four communities cut off by a blockade of the rail line are being supplied by barge service.

The Stuart-Trembleur Indian band is continuing its blockade of B.C. Rail line 35 miles northwest of Fort St. James, which is 80 miles northwest of here.

The blockage began three weeks ago, cutting off rail service to Bulkley House, Lovell Cove, Takla Landing and Leo Creek, all near Takla Lake, 100 miles northwest of Fort St. James.

Ed John, spokesman for the Stuart-Trembluer Band, said the blockade will remain at least until the provincial government agrees to negotiate in the Tache Village. The band is asking for land and money in return for reserve land used by the railway right-of-way.

The government had proposed a meeting in Victoria, but John said negotiations must take place in Tache, so the entire bank can participate.

Bike Paths No. 1 Choice

The question was: where would you like to see additional spending on recreation activities?

Running first ahead of 23 other choices was bicycle paths, says a report dealing with promoting a bike path system in Greater Victoria by the local branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

Although several proposals have been made, there has been little action in developing a bike path system.

The report said the most notable example of bikeway construction is found in Ottawa-Hull where the National Capital Commission has completed 37 miles in the past five years. Another 35-mile section is expected and the total envisioned is 150-miles.

The report, prepared by Gregory Welsh and Charles Barber, has suggested two types of pathways.

One, within the Greater Victoria region, would connect downtown with residential centres in Esquimalt, Gorge, Lake Hill, Cedar Hill, Shelbourne, University of Victoria, Camosun College, Oak Bay Village, Rockland and Fairfield.

Recreational routes would include a series of loops running from three to six miles, include Victoria's shoreline from Laurel to Clover points, the CN tracks from McKenzie and Borden to the switching yard in Vic West, a 57-mile route from Victoria to Deerholme along the abaondoned CN right-of-way, from Banfield Park through the Indian reserves to connect at Barnard Park with the McKenzie path, Admirals Road from Esquimalt Road and connecting to the Deerholme route, and a continuation of the Gorge beautification from Admirals Road along the city side and taking advantage of publicly held lands at the Gorge Road Hospital and Ellice House and along the CN route to the trestle.

The group is recommending the establishment of a committee to study routes and proposals, hiring a researcher to conduct the study which would be completed in September. Budget for this is estimated at $3,000.

ON REFLECTION, Lesley Ng apparrently decides that she likes this handsome silver teapot. Others may prefer the carved hallstand. Or perhaps the Nazi officer's dress dagger, the camel saddle, or the ivory and lacquer-covered postcard album with saucy shots of yesteryear pin-up girls. All these items and many others will be up for sale Saturday in an auction of collectors' items by Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped. The sale starts at 1:30 p.m. at 220 Bay Street. B.C. Pulp, Paper 'Most Advanced'

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A Russian official says Canadian technology in the pulp and paper industry is the most advanced in the western world.

V. N. Sushkov, deputy minister for foreign trade, and 10 other Russians visited a pulp mill here Wednesday at part of a Canadian tour.

Sushkov said the tour is to become familiar with Canadian technology and follows the recent signing of a $500 million credit trade program between Russia and Canada.

"We thought Canada was the most advanced in pulp and paper technology in the western world and British Columbia the most advanced in Canada," said Sushkov. "We became confident of it today after our tour."

He said Russia is building new facilities and is deciding what process would best suit the needs.

CITY WOMAN HEADS P.E.O. CONVENTION

Dorothy MacLean of Victoria will preside at the 47th annual provincial P.E.O. convention today and Saturday at the University of B.C. in Vancouver.

Mrs. MacLean, president of the provincial chapter of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, will be accompanied by about 30 other Victoria delegates to the meeting.

Guest of honor will be Jane Boyd of Iowa, chairman of the board of trustees of the International Peace Scholarship Fund.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood has an educational loan fund to help women seeking higher education, and an International Peace Scholarship Fund to provide money for women from foreign countries to study in the United States, providing they return to their homelands after finishing their studies.

Boilermen Victorious In Year-Long Wage Fight

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bargaining struggle that began more than a year ago has ended with a victory for Boilermakers in the construction industry, their union leader announced Wednesday.

Don Vinoly, business agent of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Lodge 359, said 400 members have won parity with pipefitters through a job evaluation study.

Vinoly said a joint committee of union and management representatives and two evalutation experts, John Witt and Lorne Fingarson, awarded parity, giving boilermakers a wage rate of $9.55 an hour from last May 1 and $9.77 this Nov. 1.

It puts them up at the top of the construction industry "pecking order" with electricians and plumbers-pipefitters.

They were earning $8.31 in wages under terms of an agreement brought down by industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee.

The terms including the job evaluation study steeled a boilermakers' strike over the issue of parity.

Their total package increase in wages and fringe benefits for the two-year contract period from last spring amounts to $3.37 an hour as a result of the job evaluation. The general industry-wide settlement last year was $2.90.

Their hourly package for both wages and benefits climbs to $11.40 with the electricians and plumbers-pipefitters.

Vinoly said because the evaluation was part of the agreement that settled the strike, "it was like binding arbitration."

The evaluators visited job sites and talked to workers and also visited vocational schools and studied comparative training requirements.

The unionist described job evaluation as "brand new for the construction industry in North America." He noted the McKee settlement provides for a second phase if contractors and other unions want to study the merits of the various trades.

The boilermakers came under considerable criticism when they turned down the industry settlement and went on strike late last year. Vinoly defended their determination to gain parity and their "sensible and responsible" action in withdrawing picket lines when the McKee report came down.

History Convention Has Spanish Accent

CAMPBELL RIVER — Theme of the 1975 British Columbia Historical Society Convention starting Friday, is the Bicentenary of the Spanish presence on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Over 100 delegates from throughout the province will be attending the convention, to be held here today and Saturday.

A highlight will be a boating expedition today to Friendly Cove.

"We will, in fact, be retracing the 200-year-old steps of Captain Estevan Jose Martinez," said Mrs. Ruth Barnett, president and convention coordinator of the Campbell River chapter of the society.

She said Martinez headed an expedition which landed at Friendly Cove in 1775.

"But Martinez named the cove 'Puerto de la Santa Cruz' — Port of the Holy Cross," explained Mrs. Barnett.

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States Consumers probably will pay higher prices for hamburger and steaks in the near future because of an increase in wholesale and live cattle prices this week.

Cattle were selling at their highest level in 20 months as prices Monday moved as much as $2 more a hundredweight than the previous week on major U.S. livestock markets.

A Race Within a Race

AROUND OUR SHORES
pat dufour

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club has a lot riding on this year's Swiftsure, depending on a race that will be going on within the race.

Apart from sailing as individual entries, Tom Loney's Goodbye, Greg Oliver's Distant Drummer and Archie Campbell's Sea Robin will be the club's team in an international competition involving nine Pacific Northwest clubs.

On a low-point scoring system the nine teams have already raced against each other in two classics this year — the Southern Strait of Georgia and the Great Equalizer. The Swiftsure is the last event in the team competition.

Going into Swiftsure, the RVYC team is winning with 67 points, three-quarters of a point ahead of Seattle's Corinthian Yacht Club.

The other scores are — Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, 70; Tacoma Yacht Club, 77; Seattle Yacht Club, 77¾; West Vancouver Yacht Club, 85; Olympia Yacht Club, 92; Everett Yacht Club, 107, and Bellingham Yacht Club, 114.

The honor of being the oldest helmsman in this year's Swiftsure goes to RVYC's honorary commodore, Ned Ashe. Pushing 81, Ned will be helmsman aboard Bob Carere's 41-sloop Andiamo.

Those of us who know Ned also know this is no idle honor. Both as strategist and helmsman Ned is still a man to be reckoned with on the racing circuit.

★ ★ ★

RVYC's Jack Woodward, who will be racing in the Juan de Fuca classic, more than earned his spurs on the weekend, racing his Puff II to top place in the Cal 29 national championships.

Fourteen boats competed in the five-race series, the three races sailed in Sunday's gale testing boats and equipment to the limit.

At one point Puff II's battery came loose, broke a through-hull fitting and there was 18 inches of water in her cabin before things were brought under control! Another Victoria boat, Grant Mebs' Solicitor, lost her rudder.

Small World of Olympia, Wash., placed second, Vance Bingham's Ambush of Portland third, followed by Steve Merriman's Vandall II of RVYC.

Catalina 27s also had a five-race championship series which was won by Jan Huibers' Sea Spell. Next came George Johnstone's Tarquin III and Don Martin's Pepper of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

★ ★ ★

Not all boaters will be zeroing in on Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca this weekend. Members of the Victoria Canoe Club leave Saturday for Fairy Lake where they will camp overnight, exploring the botanical gardens at Port Renfrew the next day.

There will be lots of activity at Sidney where the Capital City Yacht Club will be holding its annual sailpast with commodore Don Hackwood taking the salute aboard Cinco in the mouth of Roberts Bay.

★ ★ ★

The youngest skipper in the Thunderbird fleet these days is 12-year-old Martin Weston. He's handling the tiller of Drambuie while father John takes orders as foredeck man. The combination's working. Drambuie came second in RVYC series racing Wednesday, edged out only by Bob Grudison's Owl, one of the hottest boats in the Thunderbird fleet. John Thomson's Sea Jay was third.

W. Ellis' Isis was top Pacific Handicap Racing fleet boat followed by Hugh Porter's Errigal and Colin Crisp's Calliope. Mike Smith's Kittiwake won in Cal 20 competition. The two top Laser sailors were racing starts again at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

The Turkey Head Sailing Association has series racing planned for Tuesday in waters off Oak Bay. Start time is 7 p.m..

Flett Now A Flame

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs didn't include Bill Flett in their future plans and let the 32-year-old winger go to Atlanta Flames for a $100 waiver price.

The eight-year veteran of the National Hockey League, who becomes a free agent June 1, scored 15 goals and 40 points for the Leafs while being used sparingly for much of the season.

"We were hoping he would get waived through so he could work out a deal with another club," a Toronto spokesman said Thursday.

But Atlanta manager Cliff Fletcher said that while there is only a short period before Flett becomes a free agent, "I feel the gamble is worth while."

Provincial Hockey President Angered by CAHA Position

QUEBEC — Frank Spring, president of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association, attached the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association on Thursday at the conclusion of CAHA's 58th annual convention here.

Spring said that since 1972, when the Western Canada Hockey League entered B.C., the CAHA has not helped his branch make the WCHL conform.

Spring disturbed the languid atmosphere of the final plenary session at which Don Johnson of St. John's, Nfld., was elected president, succeeding Jack Devine, Belleville, Ont.

The WCHL, Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" Series and the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League have formed the new Canadian Major Junior Hockey League which will begin operation later this year.

The Ontario and Quebec leagues have agreed to remain with the CAHA but the WCHL has refused the right to recruit players across CAHA branch (provincial) boundaries.

A meeting between the four western Canadian branches of the CAHA, the CAHA national executive and WCHL has been called for June 4 in Calgary to resolve the problem.

"Neither the four western provinces nor the CAHA can afford the meeting with the WCHL," Spring charged. "The CAHA has not helped our branch to make the WCHL conform and any other league would have been expelled by now."

He said if the CAHA did not entertain his motion the BCAHA "has no alternative but to withdraw from this meeting."

Ladies' Field Day

Defending champions will be missing Sunday, but 74 other pairings are ready to challenge for top honors in the annual South Vancouver Island ladies' field day at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

The 18-hole, four-ball medal event has attracted entries from up-Island as well as the Vancouver area.

Post entries will be accepted.

Following is Sunday's draw:

Scullers Meet Sunday

Scullers from two provinces and two states will compete in the first Open Sculling Regatta of the Pacific Northwest Sunday at Elk Lake.

Competitors from Alberta, B.C., Oregon and Washington will go after prizes in 18 men's and women's categories, the first of which starts at 9 a.m.

Veteran Referee Out of Hospital

Al's One-Putt Streak Too Early for Open

If Al Zimmerman comes up with the pitching-and-putting touch he displayed in a practice round, the retired professional could be the tough campaigner in the annual Cedar Hill Labatt's Open golf tournament this weekend.

Zimmerman one-putted the first 11 greens in a practice round at Glen Meadows, site of this weekend's 36-hole tournament. Zimmerman also counted only one putt on the 14th and wound up with 24 putts. He wound up with a two-over-par 74 after taking an unplayable lie penalty on the back nine.

Zimmerman, 66, went three better than 75-year old Clare Althouse, a 22-handicapper at Gorge Vale. Playing the same day, Althouse one-putted the first eight greens at the Gorge.

Zimmerman is one of 38 professionals entered in the weekend event.

One of the latest pro entries was John Morgan. A touring pro who plays out of Uplands, Morgan "just had to enter" after remembering he previously entered and won two tournaments at the McTavish Road course.

A total of $7,000 in prizes is being offered, including a cash purse of $3,500 for pros. The top pro pockets $700.

Following is the draw, in effect both days:

Fight Draws Well

NEW YORK — Fifty million people watched Muhammad Ali beat Ron Lyle according to the estimated Nielsen television ratings released this week by ABC.

COLONELS WIN TITLE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — With Artis Gilmore scoring 28 points, Kentucky Colonels ended eight years of frustration Thursday, beating Indiana 110-105 for their first American Basketball Association championship.

The Colonels, in wrapping up the series four games to one, had to shake off a pesky Indiana defence that kept the outcome in doubt until the final two minutes.

Gilmore was chosen the most valuable player of the series.

Namath Turns Down WFL

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Joe Namath has rejected the World Football League's $4 million offer, but says he isn't ready to hang up his National Football League cleats as long as the money is right.

Namath, who played out his option with New York Jets last year to become a free agent, said at a news conference Thursday night that no NFL team except the Jets has bid for his services.

But he said he is open to offers.

The Jets are reported to have offered their star quarterback a three-year contract worth $1 million. Namath said returning to New York is "certainly a possibility if we can come to an understanding of terms."

Namath was apologetic over not signing with the WFL, but maintained the WFL would not be ruined without him.

"In no way does the league's success stand with any one individual," said Namath.

"A great deal of the WFL's success this year is going to depend on the quality of the football," he said.

WFL president Chris Hemmeter said in Honolulu that not signing Namath "may be a tremendous setback in TV negotiations for 1975.

"But on the other hand, it may be a plus factor because we have established the sporting community that the league will not compromise its principles," Hemmeter said.

The WFL offered Namath a $500,000 signing bonus and a three-year playing contract for $500,000 a year, plus a $100,000 pension for 20 years and possible partial ownership in a future WFL team in New York.

Namath said the contract called for him to play two years in Chicago and the third year in New York, where the WFL currently has no team.

Three Share Lead

MEMPHIS (AP) — John Mahaffey's string of eight birdies in 10 holes produced a 65 that tied him with Tom Weiskopf and Andy North for the first-round lead Thursday in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis golf tournament.

"I'm tickled to death with what I got, but it could have been lower," Mahaffey said after his seven-under-par effort over the 7193-yard Colonial Country Club course.

He hit the hole with one 30-foot putt that refused to fall and missed another from four feet.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of three of his last four starts, birdied five holes in a row on his way to a 66 and missed a chance to tie for the lead when he failed on a three-foot putt on the final hole.

"When you've got weather like this — warm and practically no wind — and the course is in such good condition, you're just going to have a lot of low scores," said Nicklaus, who recently scored a record fifth victory in the Masters.

He was right. The scores ranked among the lowest of the season.

Bellying Up to the Cash Bar

High finance and Premier Barrett's waistline somehow protruded into the same city council debate Thursday, when Ald. Mike Young accused the finance committee of helping "pot-bellied" politicians play rugby but giving only niggardly assistance to junior golfers.

Young was referring to the committee's recommendation that a $200 grant be given to the Royal Canadian Golf Association, to defray organization costs for the Canadian junior and juvenile golf championships to be played at Gorge Vale Golf Club Aug. 26-30.

The association had asked for $500, and Young wanted to know why only half that sum was recommended for approval.

Earlier this year, he recalled, council had seen fit to hand over $250 to the Ebb Tide Rugby Football Club, a group of "prosperous, pot-bellied businessmen and politicians," to help the club host an over-40 match and tour by the visiting Fu Wak Club of Japan.

That was just a weekend visit, Young said, yet the city was proposing to give an equal amount to a national sporting event lasting an entire week and attracting more than 70 young participants.

Mayor Peter Pollen agreed the gesture was somewhat "parsimonious." But the purpose of the earlier support for the rugby club, he reminded Young, was to "try to knock some sense into one of its members"—an obvious crack at the expense of the rugger-playing premier.

"It was a total waste of money," Pollen added.

Young's arguments won the day. Council approved the full $500 grant.

Region Still in Dark On Highland Plans

Victoria Times
SECOND SECTION

The capital regional board remains in the dark about provincial plans for housing development in the Highlands district after release of the provincial housing department's first annual report Thursday.

The report, tabled in th legislature by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, notes that 1,136 acres have been assembled in the Highlands northwest of Victoria to ensure an orderly supply of reasonably-priced housing sites.

The land is part of 5,510 acres bought by the government across the province last year, including 2,600 in Burke Mountain community, Coquitlam and 750 acres in North Vancouver.

"But your guess is as good as ours as to what plans there are for the Highlands," regional planner Peter Hammer said today.

A planning study of the area for the province undertaken by Vancouver consultants has been completed but the region has not been told of its results, he said.

Nicolson has said earlier that the province wants to assemble about 3,000 acres in the Highlands in a long-term housing program. Hammer said there are some large properties involving Rayonier he thinks the department has not been able to acquire yet.

The regional staff hope to get more information on the Highlands plans soon because an over-all plan for the western community is now being developed, encompassing Colwood, Langford, Metchosin and the Highlands.

The province also owns land in the Colwood area and the regional district doesn't know whether provincial priorities will call for it to be developed first, Hammer said.

The housing department report said that, recognizing the shortage of serviced land is the basic reason for inflated land prices, "top priority was given to land assembly and servicing. To this end, the $10 million Housing Incentive Fund was established."

Land price breakdowns, however, were not included in the report.

The department was involved in 258 projects during its first year of operation and assisted in the creation of 2,052 social housing units.

The total includes 310 provincial family rental units, 584 provincial senior citizens' rental units, 447 non-profit senior citizens' units, 419 special care beds and 292 par value co-operative units.

The report says there are 15,662 units in the planning and construction stages.

The department developed 845 lots in residential subdivisions and 10 mobile home pads. Another 1,549 residential lots and 804 spaces for mobile homes were in the development and planning stages.

The report said rigid municipal zoning and building bylaws were major obstacles to the home conversion program available to homeowners in Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster. There were 1,076 inquiries, but only 17 applications for loans approved.

Of the 219 applications for leasehold mortgage loans during the first two months, the program was operating, 162 loans were approved.

Applications for the provincial home acquistion grants and loans in 1974, "reflected the financial climate," the report states.

The lack of available first mortgage funds and the high interest rate of these mortgages slowed down house sales and construction.

A slight easing of mortgage funds in the last three months of the year increased applications by about 10 per cent.

The $80 renters' resource grant was extended to 54,689 senior citizens, while 93,774 eligible tenants received the $30 grant in 1974.

Saanich Strike Vote Coming

Saanich municipal employees, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, voted Thursday night to take a strike vote.

The 375 employees, who have been back on the job for about three weeks after being locked out for three months, are disturbed and dissatisfied with the attitude of the Saanich municipal employers, CUPE business agent Tom Smith said today.

The Saanich CUPE local voted in late April to turn down the contract package offered by Greater Victoria municipal negotiators and held out for further negotiations dealing with strictly local matters rather than accept the area-wide settlment.

The vote on whether to take a strike vote was apparently close.

The timing of the vote was left in the hands of the local executive, Smith said, and will likely be taken some time next week.

The employees returned to work with the understanding that negotiations would continue on the local matters.

Since then, Smith said today, only one negotiation session has been held.

"The employer is not prepared to sit down with the bargaining committee and discuss the problems in an attempt to reach a resolution."

Two Not Guilty of Robbery

But Face Penalty For Theft, Assault

Two Victoria men were found not guilty Thursday by a county court jury of robbery with violence.

But William Lloyd Christie, 623 Raynor, was convicted of common assault and theft and John Alexander Devine, 1201 Lockley, was found guilty of theft.

Both men were accused of robbery with violence involving the theft of a wallet and contents and four rifles from John Howard McGee, 1621 Island Highway.

They were picked up by police walking along a Victoria West street on a Sunday afternoon, last Jan. 19, carrying the unloaded rifles over their shoulders.

Christie will be sentenced by Judge Montague Drake Monday and Devine will be sentenced June 16, after a pre-sentence report is prepared.

The jury did not specify whether it was theft over or under $200 and Judge Drake gave the benefit to the accused and ruled it would be theft under $200.

Before retiring for what turned out to be a four-hour deliberation, the jury heard crown prosecutor Bob Johnston say the case involved a number of red herrings.

The accused, together with Devine's son, had gone to McGee's motel suite with a bottle and there was a conversation about a gun and at some point Christie hit McGee more than once and they left with four rifles, a credit card and other items.

It was "not worthy of belief" that they just went there for a social drink or that it was a minor scuffle. Both accused said they were drunk, Johnston said.

Doug Christie, who defended Christie, said there were many contradictions in McGee's testimony and that he often answered questions in court with his own questions, "a standard technique to avoid contradictions in previous statements."

Devine had reason to believe McGee had two of his guns and, at one point, Christie described McGee as "crooked as a dog's hind leg, to put it bluntly."

Doug Macfarlane, representing Devine, said McGee "continually" contradicted himself and Devine felt he had a right to take the four rifles until he got his other two back from McGee. The violence was "a very minor incident with minor injuries" and did not lead to any theft.

"This was just a drunken, disorderly mess," he said, and McGee couldn't be accepted as a peace-loving person.

Not-So-Swifties Ready for Race To Big Party

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

At least 30 skippers and crews will whoop it up alongside in Sooke harbor Saturday night instead of pacing it out with the remainder of the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca fleets.

The partying types are members of the newly-formed Nearly Royal and Almost Ancient Sooke Harbor Sailing Society.

They'll be out on the start line off Victoria Saturday morning, most of the boats having sailed the Swiftsure more times than they care to remember.

They'll get their start 30 minutes after the Juan de Fuca classic begins, sailing a 33-mile race to Sheringham Point, rounding there to return to Sooke for a celebration.

The men aboard the Swiftsure veteran Norwester of Seattle are the ones who triggered the idea of a third race.

Irving Clark explains, "Some of the larger older boats had stopped coming up to Swiftsure because they were no longer competitive with the new racing machines."

★ ★ ★

Clark, who's sailed Swiftsure 17 times, said he and buddies like Robert Mooney, who's also done Swiftsure more times than he cares to remember, felt they were due for a change of scenery on the route.

"This is an invitation race," Mooney said. "Boats have to be 10 years old or older and 32 feet or more."

Among the old Swiftsure campaigners taking part in the NRAASHSS race will be such well-known boats as Sea Fever, Windbird and Al Laird's Big Bird from Vancouver.

In order not to confuse the other racers, the old-timers have agreed to fly a special red and blue pennant and keep out of the way at all times.

"I still think we can have a pretty good race in 33 miles," Mooney said. "And it will be great to be warm for once on Saturday night."

RRAP Rap All Set For Victoria West

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is going to the people in Vic West to explain and take applications for the Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program.

Victor Virak, in charge of the local area, will be at the human resources office on Alston Road for the next three Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

He said today this may be the first of other "store front offices" to explain the RRAP program.

Owners and landlords may take out loans up to $5,000 per housing unit at an interest rate of 8 per cent to make repairs on substandard homes or suites to bring them up to local health and safety standards.

Bennett Out

Opposition leader Bill Bennett was discharged from Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday and said today he hopes to be back in the legislature next week.

Bennett injured his back last Sunday when he was thrown from a steer at a rodeo near Kelowna.

He said today that he has been instructed to continue out-patient treatment for the injury over the next several days but "I'm going to do my best to be back in the legislature as early as possible next week."

Ask The Times

Q: Could you please tell me what happened to the ferry Kalakala that used to run between Victoria and Port Angeles? D. W.

A: The streamlined aluminum vessel, once operated by Washington State Ferries, looked like a candidate for a science fiction movie. However, her retirement was a little less glamorous—she's up in Alaska being used as a barge.

OUTER AREAS HOPING FOR BUS RELIABILITY

Three buses from the provincial transit fleet will be used by the provincially-owned Pacific Commuter Company to operate services in the Sooke, Colwood, Langford and Metchosin areas starting June 1, the government announced Thursday.

The services will replace the present private transit system serving those areas, operated by South West Coach Lines Ltd. Under a recent ruling of the B.C. Motor Carrier Commission, South West's transit and charter licences will be terminated May 31.

The government announcement said the intention is to maintain present routes, schedules and fares. Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said earlier this month that a shortage of buses would preclude any early improvements in service to the western communities.

Residents speculate, however, that one improvement will be noticeable immediately — in the general reliability of the service provided.

Various mechanical problems have plagued South West's fleet and travellers have repeatedly complained about non-appearing buses, late schedules and similar inadequacies.

From a Doomed Fir Tree, Winter Fuel

UNTIL LAST WEEK, we were content to leave the maimed Douglas fir at the edge of our bush lot to nature's courses. But a subdivision is marching inland across the second-growth flat, and houses are springing up where the blacktail deer once browsed.

We studied the tree with the curious scar climbing its trunk, and wondered what to do about it.

Topping the fir struck us as a dubious half-measure. Its tall brown column would still present a hazard to power lines and roofs when the big winds blew. It would have to come down, we decided, and the sooner the better.

"I'll bring up the chain saw," I said without enthusiasm. "With any kind of luck, I can drop that tree inside our property line."

Win looked at the overhead wires, then at the house going up next lot along.

"Not to hurt your feelings," she said, "but I think we should call Ernie Alexander."

A man learns his limitations. I remembered an oversized alder that defied the law of gravity and my efforts to topple it by lodging in the fork of its neighbor. Gratefully, I accepted Win's suggestion. The fir with the cleft trunk was better left to a specialist.

So we called Ernie, a power saw virtuoso who fells difficult trees with routine precision. He was pretty busy—had a clearing job in the works down the highway. But he would try to drop around for a look at our problem fir.

Ernie made his inspection that evening. While the Doberman pup that rides with him unravelled woods scents, he surveyed the tree from all angles. We swatted at little black flies and waited the verdict.

Ernie has a feeling for trees. More than once he has refused to drop a healthy specimen which in his judgment adorns the place where it stands. In the case of our fir with the split in its side, however, he entertained no doubts.

'Too bad, but it should come down. Its old wound was more than skindeep. Rot was setting in, a fact which he demonstrated with a stick poked into the cleft.

Up at the wood-lot, he cinched on climber's belt and spurs, slung a coil of rope over his shoulder, and levitated up the fir. The difficult looks easy when an expert undertakes it. Ernie, leaning into his belt while he secured the rope 50 feet up the trunk, was a top-rated highrigger before the mobile steel spar replaced the wooden spar tree.

It would be necessary to fell the tree against its lean. The rope, its other end made fast to an alder down the road, would steer it in the way that it should go.

There was a time, Ernie told us while he lifted chainsaw, axe and wedges out of his car, when he considered 22 tree jobs no more than a reasonable days work. But one of his wrists was giving him trouble. Today, he doubted that he was good for more than about 17 trees at a stretch.

The stage was set. Ernie moved in on the fir with his saw. It bit into the fir butt with a sustained whine.

"He's making his undercut," I explained to Win while we brushed away hungry no-see-'ums. "I'd have spotted it farther around."

"Yes, dear," Win said, with a glance at the power lines.

Ernie cuffed a slice of fir trunk from the cut with the back of his axe. He moved around to the other side. The saw resumed its whining. Presently the tree shivered. It began to lean away from the stump, so slowly that for a moment it appeared to be floating in air. Then the long shaft crashed to earth a neat few inches inside our property line.

The concentric rings on the stump told a story. Ernie, tracing with a finger, interpreted for us.

The fir had grown well in its sapling years. Then—see how narrow the next couple of rings were?—there'd been a setback, maybe due to drought. After that, growth had been normal until the tree suffered the damage that led to its downfall.

It was 73 years old. By Ernie's ring-count, disaster had struck in the late 1930s, probably with flame as its agent. A major wood fire had licked through the area back then.

We have lost a tree, and will miss its top lording over the lesser growth when next we go up that way. But in death it will not be wasted. Split for our fireplace, its wood will help warm our house through a winter.

Australian Cricket Stand Dampened by Chill Rain

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Tour manager Fred Bennett flew out of Victoria with his world-famous Australian cricket team this morning — disappointed and confident.

Bennett was disappointed that steady rain washed out what could have been an exciting exhibition match with Western Canada Thursday. And he was confident Australia would do well in the forthcoming World Cup cricket series in England.

Fans watched huddled under umbrellas, beneath leafy trees or from their cars ringing the picturesque St. Michael University School pitch as the Australian batsmen battled first a cruel wind and then drizzle on their way to a total of 167 runs for the loss of five wickets before the match was abandoned.

The weather had a hand in that, but so too did the accurate bowling of Victoria's Kortwright Richards and Vancouver's Dave Simmons.

The opening fast bowlers kept the ball on the wicket and forced the Aussies to exercise caution. Simmons had classy Aussie opener Rick McCosker caught behind by wicketkeeper Basdeo Nandee of Edmonton for only 11 runs. That was Simmons' only wicket of the match at a cost of 46 runs.

Richards proved even more of a bother to the Australians, bowling opener Bruce Lair for only three runs, then getting Alan Turner leg-before-wicket for 14. He finished with two for 35.

The visitors looked in trouble with the slow start. In fact, they had lost two wickets for 22 runs and by the time the third wicket fell, they'd only reached 47.

But then in came Greg Chappell, widely regarded as the finest batsman in the world today, and he raced to a quick 47 with some classic cuts and leg glances before being clean-bowled by Tim Lord of Cowichan.

With partner Doug Walters, Chappell combined in a 55-run stand that swept the score to 102 for four. Not long after, Lord scored another key blow for Western Canda when he had Walters caught by Tim Murari of Vancouver after the Australian had made 21 runs. Lord finished with two wickets for 25 runs.

The Australians' idea was to knock up a quick score and then destroy the local batting with their hostile attack, just as they had done in Vancouver the day before when speedy Jeff Thomson took four for 15, including a hat-trick, and Gary Gilmour got four for five.

But the weather had other plans.

Just as the visitors were really starting to hit out and step up their run-rate, the rain got heavier.

Ross Edwards was on 37 not out and Richie Robinson had 24 not out when an early tea break was taken. They didnt' get a chance to bat again.

Probably even more disappointing, though, for the 300 or so fans was the fact that they didn't get an opportunity to see fast bowling sensation Dennis Lillee in action against the Western Canada batsmen.

After three matches in Toronto, the Australians go to Britain for the World Cup and for 11 county games and four test matches with England. Bennett and his boys are really confident.

"Naturally we're confident because we've beaten the best countries in the world at cricket recently," says the tour manager. "We beat England comfortably in Australia last time and feel we can do it again over there."

One Victory A Season Doesn't Make... But!

The party was a little late in getting heated up at Memorial on Wednesday, but the anniversary finally turned out to be a success. Not "smashing", but a thriller, nonetheless, as the Irish nipped Burrards 15-14.

This was the Shamrocks' home opener in their 25th season and, befitting the occasion, they kept everyone on tenter-hooks until the very end.

For the Irish, it was almost a brand new start, even from as late as last year. Because at the executive level everything has that new look, including the coach. Well, Archie Browning may not be entirely new, because he is a hall-of-famer, was a Shamrock for many seasons as a player, played in seven Mann Cup finals and was with the Irish when they captured the cup in that glorious season of 1955.

Since then, of course, the search for the Holy Grail of lacrosse has been in vain. Or until this year? That was the question.

And frankly, right from the start of the evening and even though the Irish had won their first two games on the road, it didn't look too promising for the green and white; and before the first ball was faced off too. First, someone changed the starting time without telling everyone; secondly, not all the invited guests for the opener showed; then the chappie in charge of playing the national anthem misplaced the tape, or the record, or whatever (he located it later); and shortly before the start of the contest it was announced that the 30-second shooting clocks weren't synchronized and that time would be kept at the scorer's bench.

George Returned The Favor

But that's the price of an opener; and it wasn't too much later either that Burrards, to use the vernacular of the times, "showed they had come to play."

Meanwhile, the Irish were tighter than a bowstring, not playing too well, and fortunate indeed to be as close as they were as long as they were. Or as Browning said afterwards: "Yes, I told the team that they played their best lacrosse in the final 12-13 minutes and that's the way they should be playing all the time. Before that, we had problems."

If there was a key point in the game, it might have been late in the second period, although the scoresheet won't show it. Because it was around the 16-minute mark, just after goalie George Grover had allowed Burrards two goals and an 11-9 lead that Grover called to his coach indicating he was willing to take a rest. But Browning waved him off and the game proceeded. Minutes later, Burrards got a two-on-nothing break and, when Mike Smith shot for the corner, Grover got his foot on the ball, and was back in business, in fine style.

"I didn't feel it was Grover's fault," Browning said following the game. "He had been playing well enough." Grover, for his part, admitted he was willing to give way, but certainly was a happy young man when Browning waved him back. "It made me feel good that he showed that much confidence in me," he said.

Some Pluses To Consider

So the Irish were still in deep trouble early in the third period, mainly due to an inability to control faceoffs and generally being outhustled on loose balls. Besides, they were down 13-10 when the turnabout occurred.

Quickly the Irish started to run as they can run and, spearheaded by a vastly improved Mike Beaulac, came fighting back. Beaulac rapped in a pair, rookie Mike Walsh another, then Ron MacNeil and, with the Irish shorthanded and serving a penalty, Beaulac fed a perfect pass to Ranjit Dillon for the winner. It was quite a finish and got the Rocks off the hook, figuratively and literally.

So, will 1975 be a banner year? It could be, regardless of what happened at New Westminster on Thursday. Because a couple of other things were evident Wednesday that augur well for the future. The Irish did come back from apparent defeat, and from being outplayed; Ranjit Dillon, who said afterwards, "gee, I'm tired", is still as shifty as ever even if he does feel older at 31; the re-emergence of Grover as a goalkeeper of talent gives the team a strong one-two tandem, Skip Chapman being the other; and if young Walsh isn't already a prime candidate for rookie-of-the-year honors, then someone else must have been wearing No. 19.

It could be a number to remember.

80 Sports Cars Run at Western

Approximately 80 entries from California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington and B.C., including members of the host Victoria Motor Sports Club, will be competing in the Castrol Island Gran Prix this weekend at Western Speedway.

The International Conference of Sports Car Clubs-sanctioned event opens with practice sessions at 11 a.m. Saturday and continues with two novice races at 2:30 p.m. There will be no admission charge for spectators Saturday.

A full slate of seven races, with about 20 cars in each bout, gets underway at 1 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 per person of $5 per car load.

The nine-tenths of a mile road track at Western is considered challenging by ICSCC drivers because of its relative shortness and tight turns. This means the more powerful Corvettes and Camaros are quite often beaten by smaller cars having a better cornering ability.

This is the fourth out of 10 races scheduled this season for ICSCC drivers around the Pacific Northwest.

Optimists Top Cowichan Team

Rules Body Studies Kershaw's New Car

Gary Kershaw's new 1969 Chevelle is under the scrutiny of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association technical committee this week to make sure it complies with this year's new rules for super stock cars at Western Speedway.

The committee checks out a car each week on the average, but if there is anything illegal about Kershaw's car he stands to lose what money and points he picked up last Monday in winning a pair of main events.

Despite the check, Kershaw will be behind the wheel of the car Saturday night at Western for the regular claimer and super stock program. Time trials are at 7 with racing at 8.

Driver standings:

SUPER STOCKS

1. Tony Johnston, '64 Ford	474
2. Neil Montgomery, '62 Ford	460
3. Gary Kershaw, '69 Chevelle	415

Home Still Sweet

BUFFALO (CP) — There has been no place like home for Buffalo Sabres during this year's Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Sabres now have won all eight of their post-season games in front of their home fans at War Memorial Auditorium, with the latest a 4-2 win Thursday night over Philadelphia Flyers to even their best-of-seven final at 2-2.

The Sabres lost the first two games of the National Hockey League championship final in Philadelphia but returned to home ice Tuesday night to win 5-4 in overtime.

"We knew these two games in Buffalo would be must games for us," said Sabres coach Floyd Smith. "We came up with the effort that we needed."

Smith did not feel his club got off to a good start in Thursday night's game despite the fact they had good chances in the first half of the first period.

"I don't think we had a shot on goal in the final eight minutes of the first period," Smith said. "But then we regrouped and we got one goal and we were set."

Philadelphia's Andre Dupont scored the lone goal of the opening period but the Sabres came back to take a 3-2 lead in the second period on goals by Jerry Korab, Gilbert Perreault and Jim Lorentz while Ross Lonsberry got Philadelphia's second goal.

Danny Gare completed the scoring into an empty Flyers net in the final minute of play.

Duppnt's goal came on the Flyers' third shot of the opening period. At one stage, the Sabres had an 8-1 edge in shots, but could not get the puck by Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent.

"I should have had the shot," said Desjardins. "The first goal was a bad one. I thought I could have had it."

It was one of the few mistakes Desjardins made all night as he returned to action after a shaky performance in Tuesday's game when he gave up three first-period goals before being replaced by Roger Crozier.

"I shot the puck in and Dudley beat the defenceman to the puck," said Lorentz. "I think he got a shot and Parent controlled the rebound but I don't think he deflected it the way he wanted to so it came right to me and I had the whole side to score."

Lorentz said he was worried about the Sabres' performance in the final period when it appeared the Flyers were taking control.

"When you get up on them they don't quit," Lorentz said. "We sort of laid back there for a while. Maybe we played it too cautious in our own end."

Lonsberry had the best chance to tie the score for the Flyers with three minutes to play as he took a lead pass from Bobby Clarke and broke in on goal.

"As far as I'm concerned that breakaway was just as good as a save even though the shot was wide," said Desjardins, "He shot it when he was by the net."

The first major penalties of the series came in the second period when Buffalo's Jim Schoenfeld and the Flyers' Dave Schultz squared off in the first bout while Dudley and Kelly tangled in the other. The Schultz-Schoenfeld affair was no more than a wrestling match but Dudley and Kelly used their fists in a wild-swinging bout.

Five Cougars Caught In WHA Sudden Draft

Centre Mel Bridgman and defenceman Rick LaPointe were first-round choices and three other players from Victoria Cougars were picked in the second round during a secret telephone draft held Thursday by the World Hockey Association.

Bridgman, who won the Western Canada League scoring title last season, was fourth pick overall and top choice of Denver Spurs while LaPointe was picked up by Toronto Toros.

LaPointe was the 11th player chosen out of 45 in a draft dominated by western players.

Twenty-eight of the 45 players named were plucked from the WCHL.

Other Victoria players selected, all going in the second round, were forwards Peter Morris (Edmonton Oilers—17th overall), Don Cairns (Indianpolis Racers—21st) and defenceman Kim Clackson (Racers—24th).

The No. 1 draft choice was Claude Larose, a 69-goal scorer with Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Junior "A" League last season, who went to Cincinnati Stingers, an expansion club last season.

One WHA official admitted the sudden move was designed to catch the rival National Hockey League off guard.

"It gives the teams time to talk to the players before the NHL clubs," he said. The NHL draft will be held in Montreal early next month.

CINCINNATI STINGERS: Larry Hendrick, goal, Calgary Centennials.
BALTIMORE BLADES: Don Ashby, centre, Calgary; Gord Laxton, goal, New Westminster Bruins.
CALGARY COWBOYS: Dennis McLean, forward, Calgary.
WINNIPEG JETS: Brad Gassoff, forward, Kamloops.
MINNESOTA FIGHTING SAINTS: Greg Neeld, forward, Calgary.
SAN DIEGO MARINERS: Bob Watson, defence, Flin Flon.
NEW ENGLAND WHALERS: Terry McDonald, defence, Kamloops; Dan Arndt, forward, Saskatoon.
QUEBEC NORDIQUES: None from WCHL.
HOUSTON AEROS: None from WCHL.

IRISH STREAK OVER

NEW WESTMINSTER — New Westminster Salmonbellies extending a winning streak to six games by tripping Victoria Shamrocks 16-13 in a Western Lacrosse Association game Thursday night at Queen's Park Arena.

Shamrocks, unbeaten in their first three games this season, held a 6-5 lead after the first period but the league-leading Salmonbellies bounced back to tie the game 10-10 going into the final 20 minutes.

Wayne Goss, who led New Westminster with four goals and three assists, scored the go-ahead goal at 4:57 of the third period.

Tom Black, Ranjit Dillon, Ron MacNeil and Bob Turkington paced the Shamrocks with two goals each.

Skip Jolly finished with 40 saves, including 19 in the opening period, for Salmonbellies, who kept Victoria off the scoreboard for 10 minutes and 22 seconds in the crucial third period.

Salmon, Trout Fishing Improving Day by Day

Both salmon and trout fishing continues to improve around Vancouver Island.

Best news of all comes from Sooke to Pedder Bay area where federal fisheries reports 51 coho averaging four pounds were taken last week. This week, it's getting better and some have tipped the scales to seven pounds.

Four-pound coho and chinooks to 11 pounds have been brought in from Secretary Island and the Bluffs by trolling hootchies, strip or bucktails at fairly shallow depths.

The largest coho seem to be turning up at Becher Bay, mostly on strip, in about 60 to 90 feet of water. In addition, strip or minnow are being used to boat chinooks up to the 32½-pounder taken Thursday by B. Watson on strip near Aldridge Point.

Richard Williams caught a nice 27-pounder using eight ounces of weight, 50 feet of line and a minnow near Church Island and the main part of the haul seems to be Fraser River rather than Columbia River fish.

Action has picked up in Pedder Bay, where coho to six pounds are grabbing strip trolled with 12 ounces of weight near the kelp bed. In the same spot, chinooks up to the 25½-pounder taken Monday on strip by A. Clegg being landed in fair numbers.

★ ★ ★

The wind let up a little Tuesday and Wednesday off the Victoria waterfront and fishermen venturing out managed to pick up chinooks to 11 pounds and large numbers of blues to three pounds between Brotchie Ledge and Clover Point. Constance Bank, although a little further out and therefore riskier to reach, has also been a good spot.

Denny Rhyves was trolling for salmon Saturday when he boated a 60-pound ling cod between Brotchie and Clover.

"Average" fishing is reported from Oak Bay, where chinooks as heavy as 15 pounds have been boated on deeply-trolled five-inch minnows or strip near Chatham Island.

Returns have picked up considerably near Deep Cove, where chinooks averaging five pounds are being taken along with a few blues around Wain Rock.

John Rose topped all fishermen in Saanich Inlet (and, for once, managed to outfish his wife, Win) by landing a 37½-pounder Monday on strip at the Deep Hole. He had his 300 feet of wire line and planer in the water only 10 minutes before the lunker struck.

Smaller chinooks, up to 13 pounds, have been coming in from the vicinity of Bamberton, Henderson Point and Coles Bay.

Returns of chinooks as heavy as 21½ pounds are in from waters around Goldstream Island and Misery Bay in Finlayson Arm. Strip is the best bait overall and fishermen are advised to be on the water first thing in the morning.

Further up-Island, Bold Bluff is yielding chinooks similar to the 20-pounder taken on a spoon by Bob Page earlier this week and other good catches are reported from Burial, Tent, Thetis and Kuper islands as well as Porlier Pass.

Many limit catches of blues came in from the Five Fingers area off Nanaimo on Wednesday, the first time this week many fishermen has been able to get out.

Blues are travelling a little deeper off Cape Mudge these days but some nearing the four-pound mark have been caught using big flashers and either herring or flashtails with four to six ounces of weight. A few chinooks to 25 pounds have been pulled in by spincasters tossing stingsildas off the government wharf in Campbell River.

★ ★ ★

Some nice catches have been made in Elk, Beaver, Cowichan, Quamichan, Shawnigan, Somenos, First, Second, Divers, Upper Campbell, Lower Campbell, Morton and Mohun lakes.

Some brown trout are still being landed by fishermen above Skutz Falls on the Cowichan River and that annual late winter run of steelhead is now available in the Browns River.

Various estuaries in the Campbell River area continue to yield up good catches of searun cutthroats to anglers wielding any silver-bodied fly tied on a number-four, long-shank hook (to resemble a minnow).

Take Care of Those Umpires! They May Be Vanishing Breed

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Don't shoot the umpire; he may be the last of a vanishing breed.

If you don't think so, consider this: There were 60 baseball arbiters in the Victoria Umpires' Association four years ago. This spring there are only 29.

Nobody likes the umpire, even if he is the only sane man in the ballpark, but without him baseball in the city is in serious trouble. It's reaching the point where there simply aren't enough accredited umpires to meet the demand.

There are eight leagues in the city this year that require officials from the association, including the Senior league, the Firefighters' Senior Babe Ruth league, three Babe Ruth leagues for players 13 to 15, two Pony leagues and a Colt league.

According to Doug Hudlin, who has been calling balls and strikes on behalf of the association for 23 years, there are approximately 50 games a week with action every night and as many as 14 contests on Sunday.

Fortunately, the association no longer is responsible for providing umpires for Little League games. The Little Leagues are now providing their own.

However, keeping up with the rest of the leagues is a king-sized headache for Hudlin, the association vice-president, president Chuck Blaikie and secretary-treasurer Kenny Lloyd, all of them veteran umpires.

In some cases the association has had to tell leagues it cannot provide an umpire for every game. Sunday night games in the Gordon Head Cosmopolian Babe Ruth League, for example, are umpired by executives and players who have graduated from the league. They do a capable job, but there is always the danger that a young, inexperienced umpire could run into trouble with an obstreperous coach.

Adding to the problem is the fact that a number of those 29 umpires work shifts and are not always available in the evening.

"It takes five men assigned to a league to make it work properly," said Hudlin, who served as the association president for 10 years. "We don't always have them."

Each spring the association runs a series of advertisements asking for new umpires. Adults with baseball experience from playing the game at the minor and senior level are ideal candidates, but they just haven't been coming out.

"We got about four new umpires this year," Hudlin said. "The Association ran a clinic at Carnarvan Park. We got quite a few kids out but not many ex-ballplayers. It seems that a lot of guys who played ball don't want to put anything back into it."

Some of them take up coaching but even here there's a problem. The Colt league for older boys almost folded this spring because of lack of interest but has been revived as a four-team operation.

Lack of coaches forced the Cosmo Babe Ruth League to cut back from seven to six teams despite the fact that there were sponsors for seven clubs and registration was up from last year. The league had to find nine new coaches this year.

Don Wakelyn, district commissioner for Little League, reports no major problems concerning umpires and coaches at his level, but said there is always a need for more parents at the executive level.

Umpires are paid $5 to $8 a game, depending on the age group involved, but the money isn't always enough to offset the possiblity of abuse from a parent or coach.

Not that there is a marked increase in abuse, but as Hudlin points out, "Some of the younger fellows just don't want to risk it."

In any case, the association needs help and if there are any former ballplayers who can lend a hand, they are asked to contact Hudlin at 382-3973, Blaikie at 479-8670 or Lloyd at 592-2378.

BASEBALL GREAT DIES SUDDENLY

NORWALK Ohio (UPI) — Hall of Famer Lefty Grove, star pitcher of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics teams in the 1920s and 1930s who won 300 major league games and shares the American league record of 16 straight victories in one season, died Thursday night of an apparent heart attack. He was 75 last March 6.

Grove, who had been in apparent good health, died while watching television at the home of his daughter-in-law, where he had lived for 14 years.

A left-hander with an explosive fast ball and temper to match, Grove led the American League in victories and won-lost percentage four times each, in strikeouts seven times and in earned run average nine times. He was elected to baseball's hall of fame in 1947.

He started a string of seven consecutive 20-victory seasons in 1927 and reached his peak in 1930 and 1931 when he had marks of 28-5 and 31-4 respectively. His 59-9 won-lost record for two consecutive seasons is a performance that never has been approached before or since.

Grove equalled the American League record of 16 consecutive victories from June 8 to August 19, 1931 and won 14 straight in 1928. He shares the American League record for consecutive wins with Walter Johnson, Joe Wood and Schoolboy Rowe.

Rookies Lead Way At Sidney

Two 17-year-old rookies played key roles while guiding Sidney Hotel to a 5-3 victory over Cloverdale Paint and Paper in a Sidney Men's Softball Association game Thursday night at Sanscha Park.

Gerry Donner, a centre-fielder, drove in three runs and third-baseman Bob Munro drove in the other two.

Al Strandlund picked up the pitching victory for Hotelmen.

Eagles had a little easier time Thursday keeping their unbeaten streak alive in the Heywood Men's Softball League.

Winners of their first three games by one-run margins, Eagles romped to a 12-2 decision over Molsons at Heywood Avenue Park.

Dennis Sproule and winning-pitcher Ted Dale drove in three runs each. Sproule banged out a home run and double while Dale connected for a double and a single.

Show of Hands Carries Texas To First Place

By The Associated Press

Bill Hands has lost his velocity, but none of his vaility.

At the age of 35, Hands no longer throws the ball as hard as he used to, but appears to be pitching as well as ever.

"There's an old saying about never underestimate class—Bill was first-class today," said Milwaukee's Jim Colborn, who was outduelled 6-0 Thursday by the veteran Texas Rangers righthander.

Hands, once a 20-game winner with Chicago Cubs in the National League and a member of the Minnesota Twins' staff before moving to the Rangers this year, pitched a five-hitter.

After two frustrating seasons with the Twins, Hands appears to have come into his own with the Rangers. Thursday's victory raised his record to 5-2 and lowered his earned-run average to 2.10.

"It's just taken me a while to learn the hitters in the American League," said Hands, who pitched the Rangers into first place in the American League West.

The Texas-Milwaukee game was closer than the final score indicated. Hands only had one run to work with until his teammates scored four runs in the eighth inning.

The Rangers took a half-game lead over the idle Oakland A's with the victory.

In other American League games, California Angels beat Boston Red Sox 6-3 and Chicago White Sox defeated Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Diego Padres 4-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Chicago Cubs 8-3.

Rookie Jerry Remy scored the first run after a leadoff triple and then drove in two more, helping California beat Boston.

Bill Singer settled down after Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer in the third inning to pick up his fourth victory of the season. The right-hander has lost five games.

Carlos May singled across two runs in the third inning and Jim Kaat, with relief help from Rich Gossage, recorded his seventh victory as Chicago nipped Baltimore.

Title Stays With Steinke

Seigfreid Steinke retained the Pacific Coast title by taking two out of three falls against challenger Guy Mitchell during the feature bout of a professional wrestling card Thursday night at Memorial Arena.

In other bouts, Igor Volkoff won the 10-man, top rope battle royal after beating Jack Bence in an individual struggle, Eric Froleich and Black Jack Bence fought to a draw, Hero Yagi bounced Clypso Kid, Gordon Ivey out-performed Arjit Singh and Ormond Muluba and Dale Lewis were both disqualified.

Pipers, Fling For Games Start

A Highland spectacular in Beacon Hill Park will mark the start of the 38th annual Highland Games on Saturday.

Starting at 2 p.m. on the Heywood Avenue soccer field, 128 dancers and 80 pipers — four pipe bands — will perform. The dancers are young people from the island and mainland who have worked together to perfect this display.

The choreography is by two well known Highland dance authorities of this area, Adeline Duncan and her daughter, Heather Jolley.

This group of performers has been invited to be the star attraction in Lansdowne Park in Ottawa, June 28, and has also been invited to perform at the PNE and in the Edinburgh Festival in 1976.

The pipe bands are City of Victoria, Port Moody, Triumph Street and Richmond Senior.

Among the performers will be four dancers who will represent B.C. in the Canadian championship in Ottawa; one piper who will represent professional piping and two pipe bands that will represent B.C. in the pipe band championship.

Heroism Award For 31 Canadians

HAMILTON (CP) — The Royal Canadian Humane Society has announced 31 awards for heroism and life saving including a rarely-awarded gold medal for bravery.

The gold medal was awarded posthumously to Glenn Zevena of Winnipeg who tried to rescue Murray Miller, a non-swimmer washed overboard from a small boat at Winnipeg Beach. Both men drowned.

A silver medal was awarded to John Patterson of Windsor, Ont., who saw a fire in a frame apartment building in Belle River, Ont., jumped from his truck and dragged a crippled man to safety. He also tried to rescue a young girl on the second floor, but was burned and had to give up.

Joe Piccininni Jr., son of a Toronto alderman and a hockey trainer, won a certificate of merit for applying first aid to an 18-year-old player whose judular vein was cut by a skate during a hockey game.

Testimonial parchments included: Christopher Lush and Anthony Higgins, both of Norris Arm, Nfld.; William LeBlanc, Winnipeg.

Today's deal features some wild bidding and excellent declarer's play. The hand came up in the National Open Pair Championships of 1975. Sitting North and South were two of our nation's top players, Steve Robinson and Kit Woolsey, of Washington, D.C. East-West vulnerable. West deals.

NORTH
♠ K 5
♥ A K 9 8 7 6 5 4
♦ K
♣ Q J

WEST	EAST
♠ A J 7 4 2	♠ Q 9 8 6
♥ J 2	♥ 10 3
♦ A 5 4	♦ Q 9 7 6
♣ K 8 4	♣ 9 7 2

SOUTH
♠ 10 3
♥ Q
♦ J 10 8 3 2
♣ A 10 6 5 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dbl.	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	5 ♥	Pass	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

The bidding was weird, to say the least. East's pre-emptive jump to four spades, while not justified, was made in the appreciation that West had at least five spades (East-West were not opening four-card major suits in first or second position).

When Woolsey, South, eventually bid five no-trump, he was intending it as a command for his partner to bid the latter's longest minor suit (as the expression goes, "a take-out for the minors"). But North, counting on eight heart tricks being made, and viewing his king of spades as a stopper in the adversely bid spade suit, chose to pass the five no-trump bid.

With the board's sole outside entry to the heart suit now removed, Woolsey was forced to play for the four outstanding hearts to be divided 2-2 (he could no longer cash the queen, king and ace separately). So at tricks three and four he played the ace and king of hearts — and with both East and West following suit to these two heart leads, eight heart tricks were now there for the taking.

After cashing the board's eight hearts, dummy's three remaining cards were the king of diamonds and the Q-J of clubs. South's last three cards were the A-10-6 of clubs, while West possessed the ace of diamonds and the K-8 of clubs.

Diagnosing the situation perfectly, Woolsey then led the king of diamonds, tossing away the club six from his own hand. West, upon taking the trick with his ace, was now forced to lead away from the king of clubs, and declarer won the last two tricks with the queen and ace of clubs.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Saturday, May 24

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Delicacy is required on fringes of certain subjects. Be aware of need for discretion. In speaking to partner, mate about money, be positive of facts. Don't base assertions on rumors or secondhand reports.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent is on what you do when confrontations occur. Contract, legal green light occurs. Cash flow resumes as escrow is cleared. You are given more responsibility — reward factor is greater, too. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You complete a job. One who claimed you were "misdirected" becomes your ally. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Health, work and your diet command more attention than usual. A person who has geen an admirer at a distance will speak up — in your ear!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Creative resources are magnified. Your style, way of presenting beliefs is more effective. Get to heart of matters. Be direct, independent. Also, be creatively selfish. Means do look out for your own interests. No one else knows you better than you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Home, security, ability to consolidate assets and built on solid base — these areas are intensified. Teaching, learning, sharpening intuition — these, too, are emphasized. Older person, possibly a parent, has a problem — and a solution. You's understand!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Short-range plans are due to succeed. The long-range concepts fall aside. Highlight versatility. A party or gathering proves more fruitful than you might have imagined. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be direct, specific and get an appraisal. Means money is on the line. Know your worth — don't sell yourself short. You are building on solid base. One who tries to belittle your efforts is pulling a bluff. Call it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle is such that you make new inroads, you also make your mark. Popularity continues — and increases. Persons who were only mildly interested could become firm advocates. Take initiative. Have faith in your own judgment and intuition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scorpio message. Don't fear the hidden or unknown. Family will support your efforts. Domestic area will be more harmonious. Know it and get behind the scenes to the truth. Facing facts will make you a stronger person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent is on how you relate to situation which involves friend and area of deception. Key is to differentiate between what is a gift, what is expected of you in return — and to be mature enough to know that you get nothing for nothing. Some of your fantasies smash into reality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis is on how far you can go, how to let professional superiors know you are ready for more responsibility. Involvement is featured. Nothing lukewarm — it now is all or nothing. If you intend to just wet your toes, you are in for a splashing surprise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your efforts have far-reaching effect. More people pay attention, want more of you. Don't permit "psychic vampires" to drain your energies. Aid those who are willing to help themselves. But refuse to be a human crying towel.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, are fond of "sweets," have made domestic adjustment which will bear fruit in September — are on upswing where finances are concerned, even though that may now be difficult to accept. Taurus, Libra persons play important roles in your life. You are versatile, artistic and know how to laugh at your own foibles.

Humanists Honor Abortionist

TORONTO — A delegation from the American Humanist Association will attempt Monday to present the group's annual humanist award to Dr. Henry Morgentaler in Montreal when he appears for trial on 12 charges of performing an illegal abortion, an association official said Thursday.

In Belleville, Ont., meanwhile, Prime Minister Trudeau agreed that Morgentaler, already serving 18 months in jail for committing illegal abortions, is a humanitarian.

"I share your view that he is a fine humanitarian," Trudeau said at an open meeting here. "The point is that he deliberately broke the law. When a man deliberately does this, he can't complain about being put in jail."

OTTAWA — Two Quebec winners of the annual Governor-General's Literary Awards denounced the awards and "Canadian domination of Quebec" at a presentation ceremony Thursday. During the evening ceremonies at Government House, Montreal novelist Victor-Levy Beaulieu shouted "Long live a free and socialist Quebec" and poet Nicole Brossard described the awards as "a symbol of the domination of the Quebec people."

WASHINGTON — Former astronaut Pete Conrad will be named to head the Federal Aviation Administration, says Rep. Silvio Conte (D.—Mass.). It was one of those cases of a news leak coming from the opposition. Conte is pushing another candidate for the job, James Dow, a career civil servant, whom Conte said knows the FAA and its problems and is "a clean cut, honest and intelligent man."

LONDON — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis reportedly will retire from public life to devote herself to operating a stud farm on an estate in New Jersey, according to a gossip columnist. Negotiations are underway to purchase suitable bloodstock for the estate purchased recently by Mrs. Onassis, says Nigel Dempster of the Daily Mail.

CHICAGO — W. D. (Don) Maxwell, editor of the Chicago Tribune from 1955 until 1969 and a close associate of the paper's legendary publisher, Col. Robert McCormick, died Thursday at 74. He appeared to have died of a heart attack.

SYDNEY, Australia — Dorothy Light tripped over the garden hose and crashed through the plate-glass window at her home near here. Her husband, rushing to help, stumbled over their dog and fell on a knife. Both were recovering from cuts today after being taken to hospital.

TURIN — An Italian court has sentenced a man to two years in jail on a charge of raping his wife at gunpoint. The judge ruled a wife is entitled to turn back her husband when she does not feel like having sex.

The wife, Maria Pierlauri, 24, told the court she had been separated from her husband for some time when he visited her at her parents' home and talked her into going to the basement where he allegedly levelled a pistol at her and raped her.

The man, Macario, also 24, told the court his wife had agreed to intercourse. He said she claimed she had been raped when her brother walked into the basement and found the two undressed.

HUGHES JUST FICTION?

NEW YORK — Howard Hughes didn't want a bogus biography of himself published and its author, Clifford Irving, went to jail. Now Irving is planning to put the book out as fiction and Hughes has taken him to court again.

Hughes' literary agent, Rosemont Enterprises, Inc., obtained an order Thursday directing Irving to appear in Manhattan Supreme Court June 5 to give a deposition.

Hughes wants to block any publication of the book, including Irving's latest plan to have it printed in several languages for worldwide distribution by Spanish publisher Jose Maya.

WISER'S INTERNATIONAL INTRIGUE

The new Fiat 131.
It's not a dream car.
It's a reality car.

Part of most everybody's dream has been the dream car. Bigger than it had to be, more powerful than it had to be, more expensive than it had to be. More a symbol of having arrived than a practical means of getting somewhere.

The way things are today, you'd assume that the dream car would have seen its end. But somehow it persists. Despite all the whoopla you've been hearing, in 1975 the average car made in Canada will weigh 4000 pounds and get 16 miles a gallon.*

At Fiat we've never shared the idea of a dream car.

Instead, we've built our cars to deal with the world as it really is.

The 131 squarely faces the problem of survival. If you've gotten used to trading in your car every 2 or 3 years, the 131 should come as a pleasant surprise.

The engine was tested for over a million miles. The valves last twice as long as ordinary valves. The piston rings are plated with chromium. They last far longer than ordinary rings.

The 131 faces the problem of rust. Its entire underbody is sealed against the elements. The exhaust system is made of special steel, impervious to corrosion.

The 131 faces up to the inevitability of accidents. The passenger compartment has been engineered with particular attention to safety. It has horizontal steel rings at the floor, waist and roof. The gas tank is tucked away against a pressed-steel bulkhead immediately behind the back seat. The steering column collapses should there be a head-on collision.

The 131 gives passengers in the front seat more legroom than the Cadillac El Dorado. Yet it is shorter than a Vega. It deals very nicely with parking and traffic.

Last, the 131 faces the spiraling costs of owning a car. It's designed to be economical, not just on gas, but on day-to-day maintenance and repair.

In times like these, isn't the reality car starting to sound more and more like a dream?

Terrorist Trial a Farce

Manchester Guardian

STUTTGART, West Germany — The minutely prepared trial of the Baader Meinhof group of alleged terrorists, which opened at Stannheim near Stuttgart Wednesday, had moments of pure farce and eventually was adjourned until May 30 to allow the judges to reach a decision concerning the admission of defence counsel who have been excluded from the case.

The bench of five judges had already retired for consultation three times when this lengthy adjournment was announced. With comparative calm, the president of the court, Judge Theodor Prinzing, had allowed himself to be berated from the dock and to be constantly interrupted by defence lawyers. To make matters worse, there were difficulties with some of the microphones in the court house, and the official shorthand writer had trouble with taking notes of the proceedings.

Under a recent law, defence counsel may be excluded from a case when there is strong suspicion that they have been conspiring with their clients to further the aims of a criminal organization. On these grounds, several lawyers are, being barred from taking part in this trial, with the result that one of the prisoners, Andreas Baader, 32, the leader of the group, was deprived of the assistance of defence counsel of his own choice.

Instead, defence lawyers were appointed by the court. Their participation is rejected by all the prisoenrs. Four defence counsel who enjoy the prisoner's confidence remain, and Wednesday they concentrated their efforts on demanding that their colleagues, who are banned from the court, should be re-admitted. They argued that unless this was done, the case for the defence would be placed at a grave disadvantage.

After an adjournment, their application was rejected. Then the prosecution intervened because they were not satisfied that the law enabling defence counsel to be excluded was sufficiently precise. The law stated that defence lawyers may be excluded "from criminal proceedings." But from which proceedings? Could it not be argued that though Baader's counsel were prevented from defending Baader, they should be allowed to join in a common defence of all four accused?

Clearly, the prosecution called for a ruling so as to lessen the probability of an appeal. As it is, the trial expected to last for up to 18 months and a retrial would presumably take almost as long. The prosecution wishes to make sure that the law is interpreted so as to close the loophole which now exists.

There are four accused: Baader; Ulrike Meinhof, 40, a former political columnist; Gudrun Ensslin, 34, a former teacher; and Jan-Carl Raspe, 30, a Socialist.

The group, known as the "Red Army Faction," faces charges of involvement in five murders, 71 cases of attempted murder, and a series of bank robberies and bomb attacks. The charge sheet runs to 354 pages, and the prosecution has assembled evidence from almost 1,000 witnesses.

Victoria Pair Wins

Jake Peters and Gordon Verley of Victoria won the seniors buttons Thursday, beating George Ferguson and Ray Harrington of Cedar Hill 2 and 1 at Glen Meadows Golf and Country Club.

Refugees Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Communist Government in South Vietnam is "being difficult" about admitting 800 refugees who want to return home, the director of the refugee relief program said Thursday.

L. Dean Brown, head of the U.S. refugee program, said Thursday the United Nations high commissioner for refugees office has processed 670 cases of refugees on Guan and 130 in the United States, all of whom want to return to Indochina.

He said the office believes the number wishing to return will reach 1,000 in the next few days.

Saudi Development Outlined

BEIRUT (AP) — King Khaled of Saudi Arabia has approved a $143.5 billion five-year development plan, the Saudi news agency said today. It said almost $97 billion has been earmarked for industrial and social development projects.

The plan is an attempt to transform the economy of the desert kingdom, which now earns about $25 billion a year from oil exports.

The document calls for importing almost 500,000 more foreign workers from Egypt, Pakistan, Yemen and elsewhere.

The plan envisages building 8,500 miles of paved roads to link cities and oases scattered about the kingdom's 830,000 square miles. About 200,000 housing units and 2,000 miles of power transmission lines are also planned to run industrial plants and light villages.

HOW'S YOUR GAS MILEAGE?

Here are the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency fuel economy test results on 1975 Pontiacs and Buicks with GM's Maximum Mileage System and using unleaded gas.

The E.P.A. tests were performed on a dynamometer, a machine which simulates a number of different driving conditions. The tests simulated stop-and-go urban driving and highway driving at about 50 m.p.h.

Miles per gallon results are converted to Imperial gallons.

LeSabre	350-4 V8	14.4	19.2	21.6	311.04	414.72

For instance: Century V6 highway range is 28.8 m.p.g. X 18.3 gal. tank = 527.04 miles.

Some of the equipment shown is optional at extra cost.

What kind of mileage can you expect?
You probably won't match E.P.A. results in actual driving. How close you come will depend on a number of factors. Fuel economy is affected by many factors, such as how you drive, the load you carry, optional equipment, weather conditions and where you do your driving.
Let your Pontiac-Buick dealer show you the E.P.A. fuel economy test results on the cars he sells and explain how overall operating costs have been reduced by the 1975 GM Maximum Mileage System.

You'll get a lot more out of your 1975 Pontiac or Buick than good gas mileage. For instance, all models have electronic High-Energy Ignition for quick, sure starts. Other standard features include front disc brakes for fade resistance, double-panel roof for strength and quieter ride, and full-foam seats for long-lasting comfort.

And this is a good time to buy! Ask your dealer about trade-in value on your present car and move into a 1975 with not only good mileage but a lot more.

Long Family Feuds Can Come from Neglecting Will

CAVEAT EMPTOR

By LYNNE GORDON

A will is probably the most important document a person signs in his lifetime. Unfortunately, many people are reluctant to make out a will. It forces them to think about death and perhaps even causes them to feel that they're courting disaster.

In reality, the opposite is true. Neglecting to leave specific instructions on how even a modest estate should be divided can cause serious problems, financial burdens or life-long family quarrels.

SPOUSE GETS ALL — A MYTH

A man with a modest estate — a house, a car, small investments and life insurance—may feel that there's no reason to make a will. After all, his wife will get it all anyway, which is what he wishes.

But will she?

In Ontario, if a man dies without a will and leaves a wife, but no children, the wife will receive $20,000 first and two thirds of the balance. One third of the balance goes to the husband's next of kin, even if it's a relative the husband has no use for.

If a man leaves a wife and chilren, half of the estate goes to the wife and the other half is held in trust for the children until they are of age. If the estate is modest and the family is young, serious financial difficulties could result.

The husband would have been wiser to leave everything to his wife in a will, which would give her the resources to maintain the young family and educate the chilren without financial worries.

A common-law wife and children would not be recognized at all in an intestate settlement. The legal wife whom the husband may not have seen for years, is the legal beneficiary.

MAKE IT CLEAR

In a will you name an executor who will have legal power over your whole estate. He should be an individual you'd trust not only with your money but the future of your chilren.

An executor who is paid two per cent of the estate for his time and work, could be a relative, perhaps a spouse or an adult child, a business partner, a friend, a lawyer or a trust company.

You can make your will as detailed or as simple as you wish. You should however make sure that the executor can settle the estate without being forced to sell everything. For example, if an estate were to be divided equally between four people, the only way to do it without specific instructions, would be to sell everything and divide the money. The executor in such an instance might be forced to sell a house or stocks when the real estate and stock markets are down.

HIRE A LAWYER

Lawyers can charge anything from $20 to $50 for drawing up a relatively simple will. In a way it's a "loss-leader" for the profession in that you will likely go back to the lawyer later for other advise. He may also end up making something out of settling the estate.

The small legal fee is well spent. It guarantees that the will you make is legal and will hold up when the time comes to fall back on it.

You can make your own will on a blank form available from stationary stores. It's risky though, because if it isn't done properly you may die without a will.

A do-it-yourself will doesn't make special provisions for trusts or guardianships. For example, you might want to set it up so that your wife and children receive a specified living allowance from the estate — perhaps even from the interest on the estate.

A will must be signed in the presence of two witnesses and the witnesses must sign in your presence and in the presence of each other. They cannot be beneficiaries or a spouse of a benefciary.

Holograph wills do not need to be witnessed. They're recognized in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec, New Brunswick and Newfoundland. The problem with a holograph will is that the signature must be proven, a difficult task without witnesses.

If your will is simple and you're leaving everything to your wife, you would likely name her as the executrix.

In a more complicated will it may be advisable to appoint a corporate executor such as a trust company.

The trust company would handle the financial affairs for your wife, providing her and your chilren a regular income from the estate they're administering according to your instructions. The usual service fee for a trust company is about four or five per cent of the estate.

It's wise to settle the matter of a will long before pressures brought on by sickness or fear of imminent death

Cornmeal Skin Cleanser For Tired-Looking Complexion

MOTHER EARTH NEWS

Many women who've tried it report that ordinary cornmeal is a superlative skin cleanser . . . especially when the complexion is tired and looks it.

Lather your hands with mild soap, sprinkle the meal into the suds and gently but thoroughly scrub your face and neck with the solution. The slightly abrasive action will remove the dead outer tissue, clean the pores and leave the skin fresh and revitalized.

Mayonnaise — of all things — is another good skin cleanser, particularly for sensitive complexions or those that have been overexposed to the sun, wind or cold.

The light vegetable oil it holds penetrates more quickly and deeply than the heavy petroleum oils in most commercial skin creams. In addition, the egg yolk contained by the mayonnaise is a rich source of vitamin A (Essential for proper skin nourishment), and vinegar in the dressing provides acidity useful in maintaining an ideal pH balance on the surface of the body.

An egg white — slightly beaten, generously applied and allowed to dry — is a very fine skin toner and tightener. Apply the mask, let it dry and then put on another coat.

Lie down without a pillow and with your feet elevated. Used tea bags (saved in the refrigerator), cucumber slices, chunks of raw potato or cotton pads soaked in witch hazel may be placed over the closed eyelids at the same time.

After 20 or 30 minutes, arise, rinse off the egg white and rub on a film of almond oil, avocado oil or fresh cream to offset the mask's drying effects.

Information Fair Set

The Fairfield office of the department of human resources is sponsoring an information fair in the auditorium of Sir James Douglas school May 28 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The object is to let Fairfield residents know what services are available to them through the human resources department and other community organizations.

The fair will also publicize the play program planned for the summer months in Porter Park.

Organizations such as Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, Boys and Girls Clubs and the YM-YMCA have been invited to set up information booths.

LAW-ABIDING citizens don't always find it easy to law-abide, as four-year-old Lenny Dennis of Truro, N.S., found out when he tried to feed a parking meter to buy time for leaving his vehicle in the street.

CSC Cautions On Wrap Box Cutting Edge

OTTAWA (CP) — The metal cutting edge on at least one plastic wrap box looks harmless but it is as sharp as a fine-tooth saw, warns the Canada Safety Council.

An Alberta housewife recently had a box slip from her hands, which were greasy from working with food, and she suffered a cut on her arm which took nine stitches to close, the council said in a news release.

Similar incidents with the box had been reported.

The CSC says it has warned the company involved, but refuses to name it at this time.

"We've talked to them and don't want to give them bad publicity at this time in case the whole thing is an innocent mistake on their part," said Arthur Bray of the CSC occupational section.

However, he said that if action is not taken "within a reasonable amount of time" the CSC will name the company.

The plastic wrap comes in a box seven by seven by 19 inches and has a serrated cutting edge that projects about three-quarters of an inch above one edge.

The CSC says the cutting edge can be tucked away into the box quite safety when not in use, but warns consumers care should be taken with all cutting edges on boxes.

"We are sort of a clearing house for information. Many provincial safety organizations warn us about safety hazards and we give them national publicity so the people concerned will be aware of any danger," said Mr. Bray.

The CSC, is a non-profit, nongovernment volunteer organization, involved in safety education.

Maternity Leave Pay

EDMONTON (CP)—Women in Alberta should be given paid maternity leave and a guarantee that pregnancy won't cost them their jobs, says a report released today.

The report was prepared by the Edmonton Social Planning Council for options for women.

It says Alberta has fallen behind other provinces by not enacting legislation providing for paid maternity leave and job guarantees during pregnancy.

"If women in Alberta are to contribute to society their abilities to work and to have children, some legislation must be implemented which will guarantee them the opportunity to do so," said the report.

The report said the average female worker would require about three months maternity leave on two separate occasions.

This time represents only a small portion of the approximately 40 years a woman may be able to work, the report said.

The six Canadian provinces which already have some provision for maternity leave in legislation are British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

"If (women's) jobs are jeopardized because of their biological role in society, then their freedom of choice is infringed upon.

'Last Hired, First Out'

OTTAWA (CP) — Although women must play a greater role in the academic world, quotas will not solve the problem, says Sylva Gelber, director of the federal women's bureau.

She told members of the Canadian Association of University Teachers (CAUT) that people hired in the United States to fill racial and sexual quotas are in bad situations.

"It's a matter of last hired, first out," Mrs. Gelber explained. She said rising unemployment and layoffs in the United States has put the affirmative action system, trying to balance discrimination by filling quotas, to a severe test.

Mrs. Gelber felt public opinion, rather than quotas, should solve the problem of discrimination.

Firms Fined for Misleading Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — The corporate affairs department has released details of 16 companies and individuals convicted for misleading advertising offenees under federal combines law.

Among the most ingenious of the schemes foiled by federal investigators was one for "New Formula—New Lower Price" Rain Barrel fabric softener.

S. C. Johnson and Co. Ltd. of Winnipeg was fined $5,000 after it was established the formula change in the "new" product consisted of reducing the major softening ingredient by one-third and doubling the amount recommended for usage.

All of the convictions were obtained under sections of the Combines Investigation Act forbidding "untrue, deceptive or misleading" ads.

Among the other larger fines obtained was one for $1,500 against Heros Enterprises Ltd., operating under the name Lady Stauffer Figure Control Salons in Montreal.

Heros pleaded guilty and was fineil for an ad that said it could offer weight reduction with "no crash diets, no strenuous exercises." The investigators determined passive exercises would not give the results claimed.

Roulon Distributors Ltd. of Brantford was fined $1,000. It was determined the company's Mini-Turbo Charger could not deliver on claims of increasing gasoline mileage by 22 per cent and power by 28 per cent.

In another case, an order of prohibition was obtained against Robert Kennedy, operating under the name Canusa Products of Brampton, from continuing his "Grow Taller Courses." Ads in newspapers and journals promised "you can grow up to 2 - 6 inches in a few weeks," but medical opinion established the claim was invalid. The accused was fined $3,000 on 10 charges and sent to jail for one day.

Lise Brunet of Mobillier des Cedres Rustique Inc. in St. Leonasrd, Que., was fined a total of $1,300 and put on a three-year suspended sentence for advertising furniture as privately owned, after it was established she ran a retail furniture business.

A Windsor company, Matthews Lumber Co. Ltd., was fined $700 on two charges of advertising real wood panelling described as Danish walnut and colonial pecan. It was established in court the panelling had a cheap mahognay finish and a painted wood grain.

Most of the other convictions resulted in fines of $500 or less.

The corporate affairs department has been cracking down on misleading advertising offences and currently has a bill before Parliament to strengthen the existing prohibitions in the combines act against deceptive ads.

PALMER, Alaska (UPI) — A moderate earthquake with a preliminary magnitude of 5.1 on the Richter scale occurred 110 miles southeast of Anchorage Tuesday night, the Palmer Observatory reported.

Monday Blues Eliminated

CIMARRON, N.M. (AP) — A four-day school week here has eliminated Monday morning blues for students and teachers, and almost everyone wants it continued.

Joe Pompeo Jr., Cimarron school district superintendent, said teachers, counsellors and principals in the district are almost unanimously in favor of retaining the four-day week. Of 380 students surveyed, only 14 were against it.

Inquiries about the success of the four-day week have also been received from other states and Canada.

The 435-student district went to the four-day week on a temporary basis in January, 1974, because of fuel shortages and costs.

"It was either that or close the schools in the winter months," Pompeo said.

Reaction was so favorable, the district adopted the four-day week for the current school year.

Students on the four-day system put in about the same number of hours by staying 55 minutes longer each day Tuesday through Friday.

Pompeo says he recommends that other districts try the abbreviated school week.

"My response is based on teachers and children," he said. "When you have the kind of margin in favor of it that we have, it's not based just on students wanting to get out of school."

A recent study has shown that if you take aspirin for the common cold, you will have more cold-virus in your nasal secretions and probably be more contagious than cold sufferers who do not take aspirin.

The manifest contagion of the common cold has long been attributed to showers of virus particles exploded into the atmosphere by coughs and sneezes, but it was hardly suspected that those who take aspirin are richer sources or contagion than those who refrain from taking aspirin.

At least 20 billion aspirin tablets are confidently swallowed each year to ease the miseries of the common cold, relieve headaches, lower fever and reduce inflammation.

Despite the fact that nobody quite knows exactly how aspirin works its fabled magic, for 75 years it has occupied a place of privilege in bathroom cabinets.

"Take two aspirins and call me in the morning" has become a national cliche, for the very good reason that for generations doctors as well as their patients have considered it to be a miracle drug, not so flashy perhaps as the more recent miracle drugs, but nonetheless tried and true and, best of all, free of unpleasant side effects.

But the picture is changing. Aspirin was beginning to get a bad name even before it was linked to the promotion of contagion in the common cold.

It has long been recognized that aspirin could be bad for patients with stomach ulcers and sometimes when taken in excess was associated with serious intestinal bleeding. It seemed reasonable to assume that the acidity of aspirin irritated the lining of the stomach or intestines, but further investigation showed that aspirin could interfere with clumping together of blood platelets, one of the steps in the complex mechanism of blood clotting.

Serious bleeding from the intestines due to aspirin is not by any means a common occurrence, but it can and does happen in a small but appreciable fraction of the population.

On the other hand, a positive result of aspirin's effect on platelets has led to the suggestion that perhaps the regular use of aspirin might help prevent some heart attacks by reducing the clotability of the blood.

Clearly, all the mysteries of aspirin are far from exposed. Why it can be consumed on such a scale by so many millions of people quite safely and yet be capable of causing serious catastrophes in some is simply not yet understood. Nor is it clear how much it may be contributing to the contagion of the common cold.

It would be well to remember that any medication that can do one thing, which we may consider desirable, in all likelihood is capable of doing several other things as well, which may or may not be equally desirable. Sometimes it is not so much that we don't know all there is to know, but rather that we don't know what it is that we don't know.

(Dr. Welch is a practicing physician and an associate professor of clinical medicine.)

dear abby

Making Double-Sure?

DEAR ABBY: I know I have a problem, but I need to know how far my rights go in doing something about it.

My father had a vasectomy recently, so naturally I am curious as to why my mother is still taking birth control pills.

I am only 15 and can't handle the fact that my mother is having an affair with another man. Knowing this has completely destroyed my faith in her.

I think it's my duty to tell my father. I love him very much and hate to see him used this way.

Should I tell my mother that I know she is taking the pill even though my father is sterile now? And if she doesn't tell Dad, I will? IN-BETWEEN DAUGHTER

DEAR IN: If your mother is taking birth control pills, it she is having an affair. Before jumping to conclusions, doesn't necessarily mean that why don't you ask her if she's on the pill, and why?

DEAR ABBY: What is the correct name for a divorced man?

A woman who has been married and divorced is called a "divorcee"

A guy in our office calls himself a "bachelor," but actually, he is a divorced man. A girl feels lied to and cheated when she dates him and finds out later that he has misrepresented himself. DECEIVED

DEAR DECEIVED: The dictionary defines a bachelor as "an unmarried man." Therefore, any man who is unmarried (regardless of how he attained his single status) is properly called a bachelor.

DEAR ABBY: I work weekends as a sacker and carry-out boy in a big grocery store that has signs up all over the place saying, "NO TIPPING, PLEASE."

My problem is that nice lit-down my shirt pocket and tle old lady (and some young ones) who stuffs a quarter says, "Take it — nobody's looking."

Abby, when I return the tip some customers get insulted, but I return it anyway because it's against the rules to accept a tip, and a kid could get fired if he's caught taking one.

I've seen some guys accept tips, but I don't, and I never will because in the first place, it's cheating and in the second place, I don't want to get fired.

Abby, please ask customers not to try to slip a tip to someone where tipping isn't allowed. It just puts temptation in his way and weakens his character. CARRYOUT BOY

DEAR BOY: Here's your letter. It's beautiful. And so are you. The world could use more young people like you who respect the rules, and fewer like those who wink at them.

Women Artists Shuck Put-Downs

BY GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Once upon a time, there was a theory that women didn't make high marks as artists because their creativity was directed to one primary purpose — having children.

But all has changed. Women have emerged as painters and sculptors capable of as fine a work as any man. A few already have been recognized — notably Georgia O'Keefe and Louise Nevelson.

Now, their numbers are growing and their acclaim with it. No longer are women artists put down. They have their one-woman shows in the finest of galleries. Just in recent months I've seen them drawing crowds and selling to sophisticated collectors in that toughest of all markets — New York.

Caroline Newhouse was a sellout with her show of sculptures to benefiit the New York Cultural Centre. Sarah Churchill showed her paintings for the first time at Colin's Gallery in New York and was a hit especially with her drawings of her father, Sir Winston.

Then there is Zita Davisson, the portraitist, whose subjects have included Gloria Vanderbilt, Beverly Sills and some of the Rockefellers. Bergdorf Goodman is giving her an exhibition.

Now, the prestigious Wally Findlay Galleries has an exhibit of the young painter, Ida Pellei, who has won recognition with her greenhouse still lifes. It is the second consecutive one-woman show for this gallery, which has just concluded one for Huldah Jeffee of Palm Beach.

But it isn't all a bed of flowers for women artists — yet. "It's hard to find acceptance," said Miss Pellei, in an interview. "I think if you keep plugging away, are in dead earnest and have the talent you'll make it.

"There is so much competition in the arts. Women have to knock on many doors. As in any creative work, you have to be persistent. I guess I was lucky."

Miss Pellei's luck didn't just happen. She remembered to follow up any time she was told, "It's not just what we want now. Maybe later."

The artist painted just about any assignment she could find for several years, including a long period as a department store muralist, doing backgrounds so grandoise in scale she worked on scaffolding 20 and 30 feet above the floor.

Miss Pellei, New York-born and now living in a house she restored in Pleasantville, N.Y., said she knew from about age six what her career would be. It was at this time that her teachers would collect her crayon sketches and send them to her parents, recommending that their daughter's artistic talents be encouraged.

Drought-Resistant Plants—In Case

It is doubtful whether anything has been written for home gardeners on this spot of Vancouver Island regarding drought-resistant plants.

This season as the weeks go by with scarcely enough rainfall to be measured, we must begin to wonder what will survive if domestic water should be restricted as summer advances.

In outlying districts accustomed to relying on well water, gardeners are perhaps more aware of this problem of drought, and so adjust their plant selections to those requiring a minimum of artificial watering.

Often, this information is arrived at by the simple process of elimination and survival.

To gardeners wanting a list of drought-resistant plants first must be given the warning that any plant on the list needs enough water during the first six months in the garden to enable its roots to take hold of the soil.

In the following year, from the beginning of the dry period (often in early April) a deep watering must occasionally be provided. Although apparently resistant to drought, many plants on the list normally grow fairly deep reaching roots to be encouraged to remain there and extend far below the surface.

Sprinkling, as most gardeners learn sooner or later, brings roots to the surface where drought and hot soil soon kills them. The plants die, even though sprinkled every second day.

To get the roots down deeper, a gardener can make the habit of using household washing water by the pailful. It must not contain detergents, cleaners or strong antiseptic soaps, but normal small quantities of pure soap has never harmed plants.

Besides this soapy water, there is much rinsing water used each day in the home. Make it handy to take to the garden in summer by collecting it each day in a lightweight plastic pail. Poured around each plant in turn, a difference in growth will be noticed.

Now for a few drought resisters — once they have settled into your soil. Romneya coulteri, one of the best for its grey leaves on tall canes and superb white, scented flowers like crinkled tissue. The huge flowers have the smell of the finest of roses.

Grey leaved plants, whether herbaceous (soft stemmed) or shrubby (woody stems) are sure to have resistance to drought. Often greyness is due to fine silky hairs which impede loss of moisture (transpiration) from the leaves.

Thus we find the many species of artemisia, cineraria and senecio remarkably durable in our drier gardens and equally resistant to most of our frosts for the reason of their growth not being soft and succulent with summer and fall moisture.

Examples are Artemisia abortanum; Cineraria maritima in its many finely cut, silver leaf varieties; Phlomis fruticosa and its herbacous species if you come across the seeds to grow them. Hybrid brooms in colorful variety are drought resistant because of their tiny surface of leaf area from which to transpire moisture in droughty weather. Spanish-broom, Spartium junceum, also is good.

Cistuses in variety, there are the Rock-roses; helianthemums in variety, the Sunroses — these flower profusly in dry soils.

The spreading junipers are known for their ability to grow on dry sandy banks once established with the aid of moisture at thei rroots; and the Western Juniper we see in odd places on the West Coast is certainly tolerant of poor dry soil.

Since nearly every plant mentioned has deep roots, it also will be apparent they will not transplant easily. The best plants to put in will be small ones with their first soft fibrous root systems contained in the container.

An attractive garden will result if you grow what is suited to the conditions, instead of what you now think you must have.

Victorian Picketing Halted

Picketing employees of the Victorian newspaper returned to work this morning, following a Labor Relations Board ruling Thursday.

The board ordered the seven employees, members of Local 226 of the International Typographical Union, to return to their jobs "without recriminations" because of their picketing activity.

The picket line was set up Tuesday morning and the ITU employees claimed that 11 union members had been laid off and that the layoffs constituted a lockout.

Publisher John Damgaard took the case to the LRB, asking that the picket lines be removed and saying there was no lockout.

The board ordered the picket line removed and also set up a negotiation meeting, the first in several months, to be held in Vancouver Tuesday. LRB officials will attend the negotiation meeting.

Damgaard said today not all of the seven employees had yet returned to their jobs as Friday is not a full production day.

Saliva Tests Used in Effort To Find Rapist

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuter) — Cambridge's short young men lined up Wednesday to take police saliva tests and eliminate themselves from the hunt for the city's hooded rapist.

The rapist, who has claimed seven victims, specializes in terrorizing the girls with a knife.

A 'HUMAN' FISH WITH FINGERS AND TOES

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A fish with arms, legs and fingers has set fisher-folk agog in the Kilwa area of Soutehrn Tanzania.

Biologists are puzzled over how to classify the creature.

The Tanzanian press reported a week ago that a fisherman, Mohamed Sefu, brought his net in and landed this fish-like creature of a type never previously seen in the area.

Reports reaching Dar Es Salaam, the Tanzanaian capital, said it had two legs with ten toes on each and two arms with five fingers on each. The arms protruded from its chest, where there was also one eye. On its right side there was another eye which glowed brightly at night.

It also had a small horn, like that of a cow, one ear, and a hump. A large, toothless mouth and a beard under its chin completed the description.

The reports did not give the creature's measurement, or any idea of its size.

When landed it was alive, and stayed alive for some time. Tanzanian officials said it would be preserved and put on display in the national museum.

Measles Outbreak Hits City

Greater Victoria is in the midst of an outbreak of rubeola, better known as red measles, with cases likely numbering over 500, regional health officer Allan Arneil said Thursday.

And across the province there is an outbreak of rubella or German measles although cases are not nearly so prevalent locally. While German measles is the less severe of the two diseases, it constitutes a special hazard when contracted by women in the early stage of pregnancy because it can damage the fetus.

Dr. Arneil said over 200 cases of red measles have been reported to his office. Because many cases go unreported, he estimates there are probably over 500 cases in the district.

Red measles, usually a disease of early childhood, has hit children of every age group, even teenagers, and that is unusual, said Arneil.

It produces a rash, high temperature, coughing and other chest complaints, leaving its victims quite sick for four or five days and generally below par for about two weeks.

Absenteeism in local classes has been running 7 per cent above normal in some cases as a result of rubeola.

Arneil said immunization against red measles is available from regional health clinics or one's family doctor. Preliminary figures suggest a person immunized reduces chances of infection to about one-quarter of the odds facing those not immunized.

Que. Labor Violence Crackdown

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec national assembly gave third and final reading Thursday to legislation giving the Bourassa government a powerful weapon in its war against violence and corruption in the province's troubled construction industry.

By an 81-7 vote, the national assembly approved substantial changes to existing labor laws, placing restrictions on who may hold union office and putting the burden of proof on the accused in court cases involving illegal strikes and lockouts.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette admitted to reporters the legislation was tough but said it was necessary to bring peace to the industry.

Under the law, conviction for murder, attempted murder, aggravated theft, manslaughter, extortion, embezzlement, kidnapping or conspiracy to commit any of those offences, disqualifies a person from holding union office for life. Only if persons convicted of such crimes obtain a pardon from the National Parole Board may they be eligible to represent a union.

Convictions for theft, breaking and entering, drug trafficking, arson, intimidation, aggravated assault and public mischief causing bodily harm render a person ineligible for five years after the sentence is served.

The law applies to union officials now holding office.

Any person illegally occupying a union post may be fined at least $1,000 a day and be jailed for at least two years.

If a worker or union official takes part in an illegal work stoppage during the life of a contract, or if an employer declares an illegal lockout, he would be presumed guilty and bear the burden of proving his innocence.

Legal action under this provision is the prerogative of the justice department.

—Union stewards must be elected by workers on a construction site instead of being appointed by the union hierarchy.

—Union members are required to handle and install any materials supplied by an employer. Fines of between $500 and $10,000 per day may be imposed for failure to comply.

—An employer or his representative may not offer, give or promise to give to a union official a loan, reward or extra benefit. Likewise, union officials cannot seek or accept extra favors from employers. Conviction could result in fines ranging from $5,000 to $10,000.

In addition, an employer or his representative, or a union official, convicted of any form of bribery or influence-peddling would be banned from representing his association for five years.

Car Gauges Go Metric In 1977

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government will order all new cars and motorcycles sold in Canada to be equipped with metric speedometers and odometers starting Sept. 1, 1977.

The change to calibration in kilometres will coincide with the scheduled conversion of highway signs by the provinces, The Globe and Mail said in an Ottawa report. Sign conversions have started in some parts of Canada.

A kilometer is three-fifths of a mile, so a speedometer reading 100 kph would indicate a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Lisbon Resolve Sought

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's military rulers today invited the rival Socialist and Communist parties to confer in an attempt to resolve the country's political crisis.

The ruling Revolutionary Council, after being in almost constant session for three days, also said in a communique that the military leaders had no intention of allowing a new dictatorship to be established.

Before the rival parties could even appear for an attempt at reconciliation, however, the Communists accused the Socialists of serving the interests of reaction.

"The leadership of the Socialist party takes a great responsibility for the consequences of such an orientation," the Communists said in a statement.

"The activities of the Socialist party could lead to the impossibility of governing in coalition and of governing with the present system of power."

Meanwhile, the national radio said military forces sent to a poor neighborhood to seek out suspected criminals had killed two persons.

It said troops opened fire on a car when the driver disobeyed an order to stop. Two men in the car were killed and two others in the car were wounded and one of the survivors had a criminal record, the radio said.

More than 40,000 people marched in Lisbon Thursday night in support of Socialist demands that the leftist military government's "drife toward Communist dictatorship" be blocked.

Before the Judge

Daniel Charles O'Sullivan, 21, of 140 Joseph, in what Judge Fred Green called "one of the most tragic cases I have ever seen of the effects of heroin," was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Thursday to one year in prison.

"This is one final gesture of hope that perhaps your client may yet be saved to be a useful member of society," Green told defence lawyer Jeff Green.

O'Sullivan had pleaded guilty May 3 to six break-ins between April 13 and May 1 at local homes where $4,000 in cash and goods were taken to support his heroin habit.

Evidence revealed he had become a heroin addict at the age of 15 and had a lengthy record of breaking and entering and theft convictions to pay for his habit.

Each time in prison O'Sullivan managed to kick the habit, but once out and in the company of his friends he again reverted to heroin.

The pre-sentence report warned that "Danny is in danger of becoming institutionalized . . . it is a revolving door pattern that can become endless."

O'Sullivan still has 10 months to serve from a previous sentence received under similar conditions. Once he has completed his time, he will be under a two-year probation.

Conditions of probation are that O'Sullivan is to have no contact with users or possessors of drugs and to serve parole outside Vancouver or Victoria, to avoid the comany and influence of his "old friends."

Preliminary hearing was set for July 30 for James Ronald Page, 27, of 476 Dupplin, charged with the attempted murder May 15 of Vancouver resident Philip Brennan, 29.

★ ★ ★

Aug. 28 and 29 have been set as the preliminary hearing dates for Ivy Marie Long, 48, of 3841 Epsom, charged with the attempted murder of her husband Warren, 51, in their residence.

Mrs. Long is free on her own recognizance in the sum of $3,000.

★ ★ ★

Bail was refused a 39-year-old man who was charged Tuesday with theft and possession under $200, both of which were alleged to have been committed the morning after he had been released on bail on four other charges.

Lang said Samuel London, of no fixed address, stole a pair of shoes last Friday from Stewart's Shoes, 1315 Broad.

London had been released the day before on his own recognizance in the sum of $250 after he was arrested for being unlawfully at large while on his own undertaking for charges of theft, possession of stolen property and wilful damage.

Lang suggested that if bail had not been granted last Thursday, the new offences with which London is faced might not have been committeed.

Green decided detention was necessary in the public interest.

★ ★ ★

Lang said Drummond left Canada Nov. 20 and married Cooper in Idaho the following day.

Defence lawyer David Lisson elected trail by judge and jury for Drummond and she was remanded to Aug. 6 for preliminary hearing.

★ ★ ★

James Lawrence Dixon, 28, of 7080 West Saanich Road, pleaded not guilty to 15 counts of false pretences and one count of obtaining transportation through fraud.

The total amount involved was $1,036.

Trial has been set for August 1.

A 56-year-old man was fined $175 after pleading guilty to shoplifting $11.41 worth of toilet items from Eatons, 1150 Douglas, May 16.

Ronald Battersby, of 84 Lafayette, admitted to stealing three tubes of toothpaste, two tubes of shaving cream and four packages of razor blades.

"It's the most incredibly stupid thing I've done," he said.

★ ★ ★

Christopher Bruce Hedges, 20, of 2926 Harriet, was fined $90 after pleading guilty to possession of marijuana and hashish while visiting at the Hands residence.

Steven William Harris, 19, of 1312 Government, was fined $85 for possession of hashish and Russell Wayne McArthur, 19, of 352 Wilson, was fined $75 for possession of marijuana.

Both men had pleaded guilty.

★ ★ ★

Judge William Ostler granted a conditional discharge for Alan Russel Jones, 24, of 1576 Midgard, who was found guilty after trial for mischief. The sole condition was a four-month term of probation.

At a stop light at Fort and Oak Bay, Jones, a karate instructor, got out of his car and put a $100 dent in the roof of the other car.

★ ★ ★

Shauneen Donna Dayton, 18, of 2980 Sooke Road, was granted a conditional discharge by Judge Harold Alder.

She had pleaded guilty May 1 to making a statement to Saanich police with intent to mislead and divert suspicion from herself.

Dayton was at an illegal drag race on Central Saanich Road at 2 a.m. Feb. 21 when two police cars approached the scene. The drag-racing cars scattered.

Dayton was a passenger in her own car and it collided with another in the flight. Both cars got away.

She phoned police two hours later to say her car had been parked all night at the Red Lion, 3366 Douglas, and had been damaged by a hit-and-run driver.

Dayton was asked to take the car to Saanich police headquarters the next day but did not. She later admitted to police she had invented the story because she was afraid to tell her father the truth.

"I know it was a foolish thing to do but I didn't know drag races were against the law and when the police came I got scared," she said.

The sole condition to her discharge was a six-month probation period.

Speakers Gather

Oak Bay MLA Dr. G. Scott Wallace and Oak Bay alderman John Goult will officiate at the openig ceremonies of the International Toastmistress Clubs' Pacific Northwest region conference Saturday.

About 300 delegates will gather at the University of Victoria's Lansdowne College for the two-day conference which will feature speech contests, workshops and guest lecturers.

Delegates will include about 50 members of the two local clubs as well as representatives from Alaska, the Yukon, other British Columbia centres and Washington.

The purpose of the conference is to formulate policy, hear reports of delegates and elect officers for the coming year.

Notice is hereby given that CEDAR HILL INVESTMENTS LTD will make an application to the Honourable the Secretary of State of Canada for leave to surrender its charter

Higher RCMP Tab Hinted for B.C.

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The British Columbia government will be asked to assume a larger share of the costs of provincial policing by the RCMP, solicitor general Warren Allmand said Thursday.

In an interview with the Times during a recess at the federal-provincial corrections ministers' conference being held at the Empress Hotel, Allmand said the province will be asked to pay more than 50 per cent of such costs.

His cost-sharing proposal, details of which he declined to release, is bound to meet with disfavor by B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald who earlier announced he would go "right to the mat" with the federal government over the cost of the RCMP to the province.

Under the present 10-year contract which came into effect in 1966 the province was required to pay 40 per cent of the RCMP policing costs the first year, the rate increasing one per cent each year.

Negotiations are now underway for a new contract replacing the existing one which expires next year.

Allmand said the province should pay more as the RCMP was becoming increasingly more involved in provincial policing duties.

However, Macdonald, citing a critical police manpower shortage in the province has maintained the need for more federal funds was never greater.

Allmand indicated his department was not prepared to take the initiative in increasing the RCMP staff engaged in provincial policing duties, though added there had been staff increases in the areas under federal jurisdiction such as the drug and commercial crime sections.

The B.C. Police Commission has said more than 1,700 officers were needed to bring the RCMP strength in the provicne up to par with the national average.

Allmand blamed the shortage on the previous Socred administration which, he said, consistently ignored RCMP recommendations to increase the police strength in the province.

"We are willing to supply the men as soon as we are able to train them," he said, "but it's up to the provincial government ... the problem is theirs."

During the two-day, closed, ministerial conference which ends today Allmand announced the formation of an national advisory network for correctional manpower planning, training and development.

He said the network will be composed of 14 top federal and provincial officials who will review staffing of Canada's prisons and corrections institutions.

The costs will be shared 50 per cent by the federal government and 50 per cent by the provinces and territories prorated on the basis of the number of corrections staff they employ.

The first project of the advisory network will be to oversee a study by James Albert of Carlton University in Ottawa of existing correctional training programs.

Allmand said the main objectives of the study would be to improve the performance of corrections staff and attract staff of high calibre to the service.

NO 'UDDER' DEALER CAN MAKE THIS OFFER

DETROIT (AP) — How do you price a cow to be sold to an auto dealer?

The farmer's "list price" was:

Basic cow, $2. Two-tone exterior, $45. Extra stomach, $75. Product storage compartment, $60. Dispersive device, four spigots at $10 each, $40. Genuine cowhide upholstery, $125. Dual horns, $15. Automatic fly swatter, $35. Total, $595.

'Mackasey Flu' Bug Strikes

Inside postal workers in Victoria, Vancouver and some Vancouver Island post offices booked off sick today, beginning what one of their leaders called a 24-hour bout of "Mackasey flu", a reference to Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey.

A total of 24 inside postal workers in the Victoria area booked off sick today, slowing down the city mail sorting process and leaving some customer wickets unmanned.

In Sidney, all three members of Canadian Union of Postal Workers phoned in sick early today.

Some CUPW members in Nanaimo and Campbell River also participated in the book off, but post offices in Duncan, Ladysmith, Port Alberni, Courtenay and Port Hardy were not affected.

In Ottawa, Mackasey said the Canadian Union of Postal Workers should rid itself of a small group responsible for "patterns of violence."

Mackasey told the Commons that "95 per cent who are decent, law-abiding citizens will sooner or later have to stand up and be counted and rid their own house of the five per cent who have no place in the legitimate trade union in the first instance."

He was responding to questions from Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon Souris) about acts of violence in the CUPW "as indicated by the vandalism inflicted on the house of the national secretary treasurer of the union recently."

A public relations officer inside the main plant in Vancouver said about 88 per cent of the 600 employes, didn't turn up for work.

He said 98 per cent of the workers in the foreward division where mail is dispatched for centres outside the city booked off and 65 per cent in the city division where mail is sorted for greater Vancouver delivery stayed away.

The Victoria spokesman said workers were mostly city sortation and wicket clerks. The 24 people off work represent about half of the total number of employees in those two areas.

Three of the seven wicket clerks in the main post office failed to report for work and signs asked customers to have patience as they waited in line to buy stamps and mail parcels.

Elsewhere across the country, the move to have inside postal workers book off met with a spotty response.

There was no particular pattern as some offices remained fully manned — some had all clerks and sorters off the job and others had vary-

BEIRUT BATTLE CONTINUES

BEIRUT (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas and the private army of Lebanon's right-wing Falangist party battled for the fourth day today with mortars, machine-guns and bazookas after the government failed to put a buffer force between them.

The casualty toll rose to more than 25 dead and 150 wounded.

Residents on the eastern outskirts of Beirut said special police forces that tried to establish a buffer zone between the warring factions Thursday night withdrew when they were caught in a crossfire.

This morning they were reported observing the shooting but not participating.

Israel reported the first clash in more than six months along the eastern border with Jordan.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said Arab gunners ambushed an Israeli patrol Thursday, wounding an Israeli soldier in the village of Naharayn about 60 miles northeast of Jerusalem near the Sea of Galilee.

A Break For Small Business

The B.C. Legislature gave unanimous approval in principle today to a bill which would increase the tax on utilized capital of corporations to one-tifth of one per cent from one-tenth of one per cent.

The legislation would also exempt from capital tax all corporations with less than $100,000 of taxable paid-up capital compared to the current exemption of $25,000.

Premier Dave Barrett said the legislation resulted from a study of the impact of the capital tax on small businesses.

He said the government would be looking at other means of assisting small businesses.

The legislature also gave unanimous approval in principle to a bill which would exempt from succession duty taxes property given to the provincial government, municipality or regional district.

Barrett berated the Social Credit members for their stated policy of abolishing succession duties if they were returned to power.

"If you vote Social Credit, the rich are going to get away without paying their fair share," he said.

The premier said if people want to leave the province because of its succession duty laws they are welcome to go, but if they stay "they have to pay their fair share."

He said the money collected from the succession duty taxes goes to pay for pharmacare, a program, he said, which cost $18 million last year to provide free prescription drugs to those 65 and over.

He said it was only right that the rich help to finance the needs of the province's elderly citizens.

FEATHERS FLYING

BOGOTA (AP) — Overstocked poultry producers proposed whetting the Colombian appetite for their product by parachuting 1,000 live chickens over the city Sunday.

Anyone lucky enough to catch one could keep it, they said.

But the publicity campaign caught the attention of the Society for the Protection of Animals, which protested that the birds might be injured in the descent.

City hall agreed. It said the chicken drop is still on, but no live birds — they must be killed first.

NEWS BRIEFS

Trio Shot Dead

ST. BRUNO, Que. (CP) — Three men and two women were found shot to death late Thursday night in a rented bungalow in this community, 15 miles southeast of Montreal. A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said early today it was "still too early to talk about the case as a gangland settling of accounts."

Talks Break Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract talks between the Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the pulp and paper industrial relations bureau broke off today following a wildcat walkout at Kamloops, Wednesday. About 8,000 PPWC members working in sawmills, plywood plants and pulp mills across the province are affected by the contract talks.

Gov't 'Breaking Law' On Rent Grant Cutoff

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The provincial government is breaking its own laws by stopping payment of the $30 renter's resourcd grants in mid-year, Liberal leader David Anderson charged Thursday.

Tenants who apply for the grant are being told by letter that because of forth coming changes in housing legislation the grant has been interrupted, said Anderson.

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson later said in an interview that although grants to senior citizens are being continued, the $30 renter's grant has been stopped.

Because of legislation which likely will provide a formula allowing renters to claim a $100 deduction on income tax returns, the renter's grants for this year will not be issued, he said.

Applicants are thanked for their application in a department letter signed by H. C. Rounds, director of finance for the department.

"We will advise you when we receive any additional information on the proposed legislation referred to in the budget speech," says the letter.

The department anticipates the claim would be made on 1975 income tax returns, it adds.

He said it is a "weird situation" when grant applications to some renters were approved, and later applicants were turned down.

The minister's only excuse, Anderon said, is that he believes the law may be changed. "But he's abrogating the law now."

Local Liberals To Oppose Unity

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Greater Victoria Liberal associations will send full contingents to their party policy convention this weekend in Richmond and all will oppose Liberal participation in the unity movement.

About 500 delegates are expected to attend the two-day conference which was planned long in advance of the recent resignations of three Liberal MLAs.

Party president Doreen Braverman said Thursday departure of the three is bound to be a major concern of the convention delegates but she and other party spokesmen insist the new policy resolutions will still be the main focus of debate.

Party policy is even more important now, she said, to prove the Liberals are a moderate alternative to the other free enterprise parties.

No challenge of David Anderson's leadership is expected at the convention, said Braverman, but anyone has the right to do so at 24 hour's notice.

The issue of unity and the defection of MLAs Garde Gardom, Pat McGeer and Allan Williams are expected to come up on the floor of the convention Saturday, when the delegates debate "direction of the party."

Braverman said no resolutions were submitted in support of joining a unity or coalition party but several constituencies sent in motions calling for rejection of unity.

A composite resolution to be discussed Saturday reads:

"That the Liberal party in B.C. rejects any suggestion that it surrender its responsibility to the people of B.C. by entry into any form of coalition, accommodation, collusion or arrangement with any other political group, extant or proposed, in B.C."

Presidents of the four Greater Victoria Liberal constituency organizations confirmed Thursday they will be sending full delegations to the convention.

All four indicated their members are opposed to any movement towards unity of the free enterprise parties.

Irma Dann of the Victoria association said about 20 to 25 of her members will attend the convention.

U.S. LEAVES LAOS

VIENTIANE (AP) — A planeload of women and children took off from Vientiane today, launching the evacuation of many of the 1,000 United States citizens in Laos.

The Communist-dominated government announced that Washington had agreed to withdraw all U.S. AID personnel except a few experts and to dismantle the 24-year-old AID program in this country.

Eighteen women and 61 children were aboard the first chartered Laotioan jetliner that took off for Bangkok seven hours late because government clearance was delayed without explanation.

The husbands of the women, all employees of the U.S. AID program, will not leave until all their dependents have been evacuated.

The number of Americans to be evacuated was not known, but State Secretary Henry Kissinger said the U.S. presence in the land-locked kingdom that has come under Communist domination in the last month would be substantially reduced.

There are about 1,000 Americans in Laos, including 320 government employees, 150 private civilians and 500 dependents.

Plunge Kills 28

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — A packed truck carrying pilgrims to a religious service plunged over a 500-foot precipice, killing 28 persons, Dominica police said Thursday. Police in this British possession in the Caribbean's leeward islands said 12 others were injured, many of them critically.

Fingers Crossed for Lunar Show of Decade

But at this point the outlook is cloudy, plus the chance of light rain to make things worse.

Forecasters say there may be some clearing toward evening, giving a 50 per cent chance of seeing the moon, but it will be cool and weathermen advise wearing a sweater if you drive up Mt. Tolmie or stroll out Cattle Point to see the sight.

If clouds are scattered, however, the opportunity for more interesting pictures presents itself. Amateur photographers may be advised to seek a good vantage point to set up their tripods, with something like a cityscape or trees to give perspective.

Although this will be a total eclipse, the earth's shadow into which the moon will pass will have refracted light which with atmospheric filtering will produce a coppery color and make color photos more interesting than black and white.

The eclipse spans 3½ hours from 9 p.m., permitting a series of shots showing the different stages and progression from white to yellow, tan, copper, deep red and back to white under ideal viewing conditions. Darkest moon will occur at 10:48.

Everyone in North America may see this lunar spectacle, provided they are not screened by cloud or fog.

As a rough guide to amateur photographers, George Ball, the director of telescopes for the Victoria chapter, Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, suggests using ASA 400 black and white or high speed Ektachrome transparency film.

For the uneclipsed, bright moon, settings may be 1-1,000 sec. at f8, slowing to 1-500 sec. as the eclipse gets under way, 1-25 as the darker shadow moves across the moon, and between 2 and 6 seconds at mid-point of the total eclipse.

Strong Gains At Toronto

The widely-based industrial index was up .72 to 186.96, base metals .20 to 73.52 and western oils .08 to 179.86. The gold index, which advanced almost 40 points in the last three days, was off 4.37 to 416.66.

Prices were higher Thursday after a three-day slump, with the industrial index gaining more than a point.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.26 million shares, down slightly from 1.28 million at the same time Thursday.

Advances outnumbered declines 187 to 139 with 224 issues unchanged.

Trading remained halted from the open in shares of International Mogul Mines and of Coldstream Mines, at the companies' request pending announcement of their year-end financial results. International Mogul common last traded at $2.35 and the preferred at $8½. Coldstream, which has a 38.2 per cent interest in International Mogul, last traded at 85 cents.

Bellying Up to the Cash Bar

High finance and Premier Barrett's waistline somehow protruded into the same city council debate Thursday, when Ald. Mike Young accused the finance committee of helping "pot-bellied" politicians play rugby but giving only niggardly assistance to junior golfers.

Young was referring to the committee's recommendation that a $200 grant be given to the Royal Canadian Golf Association, to defray organization costs for the Canadian junior and juvenile golf championships to be played at Gorge Vale Golf Club Aug. 26-30.

The association had asked for $500, and Young wanted to know why only half that sum was recommended for approval.

Earlier this year, he recalled, council had seen fit to hand over $250 to the Ebb Tide Rugby Football Club, a group of "prosperous, pot-bellied businessmen and politicians," to help the club host an over-40 match and tour by the visiting Fu Wak Club of Japan.

That was just a weekend visit, Young said, yet the city was proposing to give an equal amount to a national sporting event lasting an entire week and attracting more than 70 young participants.

Mayor Peter Pollen agreed the gesture was somewhat "parsimonious." But the purpose of the earlier support for the rugby club, he reminded Young, was to "try to knock some sense into one of its members"—an obvious crack at the expense of the rugger-playing premier.

"It was a total waste of money," Pollen added.

Young's arguments won the day. Council approved the full $500 grant.

Region Still in Dark On Highland Plans

Victoria Times
SECOND SECTION

The capital regional board remains in the dark about provincial plans for housing development in the Highlands district after release of the provincial housing department's first annual report Thursday.

The report, tabled in th legislature by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, notes that 1,136 acres have been assembled in the Highlands northwest of Victoria to ensure an orderly supply of reasonably-priced housing sites.

The land is part of 5,510 acres bought by the government across the province last year, including 2,600 in Burke Mountain community, Coquitlam and 750 acres in North Vancouver.

"But your guess is, as good as ours as to what plans there are for the Highlands," regional planner Peter Hammer said today.

A planning study of the area for the province undertaken by Vancouver consultants has been completed but the region has not been told of its results, he said.

Nicolson has said earlier that the province wants to assemble about 3,000 acres in the Highlands in a long-term housing program. Hammer said there are some large properties involving Rayonier he thinks the department has not been able to acquire yet.

The regional staff hope to get more information on the Highlands plans soon because an over-all plan for the western community is now being developed, encompassing Colwood, Langford, Metchosin and the Highlands.

The province also owns land in the Colwood area and the regional district doesn't know whether provincial priorities will call for it to be developed first, Hammer said.

The housing department report said that, recognizing the shortage of serviced land is the basic reason for inflated land prices, "top priority was given to land assembly and servicing. To this end, the $10 million Housing Incentive Fund was established.

Land price breakdowns, however, were not included in the report.

The department was involved in 258 projects during its first year of operation and assisted in the creation of 2,052 social housing units.

The total includes 310 provincial family rental units, 584 provincial senior citizens' rental units, 447 non-profit senior citizens' units, 419 special care beds and 292 par value co-operative units.

The report says there are 15,662 units in the planning and construction stages.

The department developed 845 lots in residential subdivisions and 10 mobile home pads. Another 1,549 residential lots and 804 spaces for mobile homes were in the development and planning stages.

The report said rigid municipal zoning and building bylaws were major obstacles to the home conversion program available to homeowners in Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster. There were 1,076 inquiries, but only 17 applications for loans approved.

Of the 219 applications for leasehold mortgage loans during the first two months, the program was operating, 162 loans were approved.

Applications for the provincial home acquistion grants and loans in 1974, "reflected the financial climate," the report states.

The lack of available first mortgage funds and the high interest rate of these mortgages slowed down house sales and construction.

A slight easing of mortgage funds in the last three months of the year increased applications by about 10 per cent.

The $80 renters' resource grant was extended to 54,689 senior citizens, while 93,774 eligible tenants received the $30 grant in 1974.

Saanich Strike Vote Coming

Saanich municipal employees, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, voted Thursday night to take a strike vote.

The 375 employees, who have been back on the job for about three weeks after being locked out for three months, are disturbed and dissatisfied with the attitude of the Saanich municipal employers, CUPE business agent Tom Smith said today.

The Saanich CUPE local voted in late April to turn down the contract package offered by Greater Victoria municipal negotiators and held out for further negotiations dealing with strictly local matters rather than accept the area-wide settlment.

The vote on whether to take a strike vote was apparently close.

The timing of the vote was left in the hands of the local executive, Smith said, and will likely be taken some time next week.

The employees returned to work with the understanding that negotiations would continue on the local matters.

Since then, Smith said today, only one negotiation session has been held.

"The employer is not prepared to sit down with the bargaining committee and discuss the problems in an attempt to reach a resolution."

Two Not Guilty of Robbery

But Face Penalty For Theft, Assault

Two Victoria men were found not guilty Thursday by a county court jury of robbery with violence.

But William Lloyd Christie, 623 Raynor, was convicted of common assault and theft and John Alexander Devine, 1201 Lockley, was found guilty of theft.

Both men were accused of robbery with violence involving the theft of a wallet and contents and four rifles from John Howard McGee, 1621 Island Highway.

They were picked up by police walking along a Victoria West street on a Sunday afternoon, last Jan. 19, carrying the unloaded rifles over their shoulders.

Christie will be sentenced by Judge Montague Drake Monday and Devine will be sentenced June 16, after a pre-sentence report is prepared.

The jury did not specify whether it was theft over or under $200 and Judge Drake gave the benefit to the accused and ruled it would be theft under $200.

Before retiring for what turned out to be a four-hour deliberation, the jury heard crown prosecutor Bob Johnston say the case involved a number of red herrings.

The accused, together with Devine's son, had gone to McGee's motel suite with a bottle and there was a conversation about a gun and at some point Christie hit McGee more than once and they left with four rifles, a credit card and other items.

It was "not worthy of belief" that they just went there for a social drink or that it was a minor scuffle. Both accused said they were drunk, Johnston said.

Doug Christie, who defended Christie, said there were many contradictions in McGee's testimony and that he often answered questions in court with his own questions, "a standard technique to avoid contradictions in previous statements."

Devine had reason to believe McGee had two of his guns and, at one point, Christie described McGee as "crooked as a dog's hind leg, to put it bluntly."

Doug Macfarlane, representing Devine, said McGee "continually" contradicted himself and Devine felt he had a right to take the four rifles until he got his other two back from McGee. The violence was "a very minor incident with minor injuries" and did not lead to any theft.

"This was just a drunken, disorderly mess," he said, and McGee couldn't be accepted as a peace-loving person.

Not-So-Swifties Ready for Race To Big Party

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

At least 30 skippers and crews will whoop it up alongside in Sooke harbor Saturday night instead of pacing it out with the remainder of the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca fleets.

The partying types are members of the newly-formed Nearly Royal and Almost Ancient Sooke Harbor Sailing Society.

They'll be out on the start line off Victoria Saturday morning, most of the boats having sailed the Swiftsure more times than they care to remember.

They'll get their start 30 minutes after the Juan de Fuca classic begins, sailing a 33-mile race to Sheringham Point, rounding there to return to Sooke for a celebration.

The men aboard the Swiftsure veteran Norwester of Seattle are the ones who triggered the idea of a third race.

Irving Clark explains, "Some of the larger older boats had stopped coming up to Swiftsure because they were no longer competitive with the new racing machines."

★ ★ ★

Clark, who's sailed Swiftsure 17 times, said he and buddies like Robert Mooney, who's also done Swiftsure more times than he cares to remember, felt they were due for a change of scenery on the route.

"This is an invitation race," Mooney said, "Boats have to be 10 years old or older and 32 feet or more."

Among the old Swiftsure campaigners taking part in the NRAASHSS race will be such well-known boats as Sea Fever, Windbird and Al Laird's Big Bird from Vancouver.

In order not to confuse the other racers, the old-timers have agreed to fly a special red and blue pennant and keep out of the way at all times.

"I still think we can have a pretty good race in 33 miles," Mooney said, "And it will be great to be warm for once on Saturday night."

Pancakes Start Saturday's Funfest

—2 to 4 p.m. Inter-Cultural Association's variety show, Centennial Square.

—3 to 6 p.m., B.C. wrist-wrestling championships, Bastion Square.

—3 to 4 p.m., Fred Usher's variety show, Broad Street mall.

—4:30 to 5:30 p.m., George McDowell's, Tam O'Shanter Show, Centennial Square.

—5:30 to 7:30 p.m., The Rube Band, Centennial Square.

—7 p.m. to dusk, Entertainment featuring Willie Swami, Africana, and the Vancouver Hungarian Society dancers, Centennial Square.

—7 p.m. to 1 a.m., Penny Farthing Inn, Memorial Arena.

—8 p.m., Victoria Actors Society's Move Over Mrs., Markham, McPherson Playhouse.

—9 p.m., Fort Victoria Ball, Bay Street Armoury.

A program change tonight will see the Highrock junior secondary and Esquimalt senior secondary school band, directed by Gerry Bryant, performing from 8:15 to 9:30 p.m. in Centennial Square. The Victoria Police Community Band had been scheduled to play.

RRAP Rap All Set For Victoria West

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is going to the people in Vic West to explain and take applications for the Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program.

Victor Virak, in charge of the local area, will be at the human resources office on Alston Road for the next three Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

He said today this may be the first of other "store front offices" to explain the RRAP program.

Owners and landlords may take out loans up to $5,000 per housing unit at an interest rate of 8 per cent to make repairs on substandard homes or suites to bring them up to local health and safety standards.

Bennett Out

Opposition leader Bill Bennett was discharged from Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday and said today he hopes to be back in the legislature next week.

Bennett injured his back last Sunday when he was thrown from a steer at a rodeo near Kelowna.

He said today that he has been instructed to continue out-patient treatment for the injury over the next several days but "I'm going to do my best to be back in the legislature as early as possible next week."

Q: Could you please tell me what happened to the ferry Kalakala that used to run between Victoria and Port Angeles? D. W.

A: The streamlined aluminum vessel, once operated by Washington State Ferries, looked like a candidate for a science fiction movie. However, her retirement was a little less glamorous—she's up in Alaska being used as a barge.

OUTER AREAS HOPING FOR BUS RELIABILITY

Three buses from the provincial transit fleet will be used by the provincially-owned Pacific Commuter Company to operate services in the Sooke, Colwood, Langford and Metchosin areas starting June 1, the government announced Thursday.

The services will replace the present private transit system serving those areas, operated by South West Coach Lines Ltd. Under a recent ruling of the B.C. Motor Carrier Commission, South West's transit and charter licences will be terminated May 31.

The government announcement said the intention is to maintain present routes, schedules and fares. Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said earlier this month that a shortage of buses would preclude any early improvements in service to the western communities.

Residents speculate, however, that one improvement will be noticeable immediately — in the general reliability of the service provided.

Various mechanical problems have plagued South West's fleet and travellers have repeatedly complained about non-appearing buses, late schedules and similar inadequacies.

From a Doomed Fir Tree, Winter Fuel

UNTIL LAST WEEK, we were content to leave the maimed Douglas fir at the edge of our bush lot to nature's courses. But a subdivision is marching inland across the second-growth flat, and houses are springing up where the blacktail deer once browsed.

We studied the tree with the curious scar climbing its trunk, and wondered what to do about it.

Topping the fir struck us as a dubious half-measure. Its tall brown column would still present a hazard to power lines and roofs when the big winds blew. It would have to come down, we decided, and the sooner the better.

"I'll bring up the chain saw," I said without enthusiasm. "With any kind of luck, I can drop that tree inside our property line."

Win looked at the overhead wires, then at the house going up next lot along.

"Not to hurt your feelings," she said, "but I think we should call Ernie Alexander."

A man learns his limitations. I remembered an oversized alder that defied the law of gravity and my efforts to topple it by lodging in the fork of its neighbor. Gratefully, I accepted Win's suggestion. The fir with the cleft trunk was better left to a specialist.

So we called Ernie, a power saw virtuoso who fells difficult trees with routine precision. He was pretty busy—had a clearing job in the works down the highway. But he would try to drop around for a look at our problem fir.

Ernie made his inspection that evening. While the Doberman pup that rides with him unravelled woods scents, he surveyed the tree from all angles. We swatted at little black flies and waited the verdict.

Ernie has a feeling for trees. More than once he has refused to drop a healthy specimen which in his judgment adorns the place where it stands. In the case of our fir with the split in its side, however, he entertained no doubts.

Too bad, but it should come down. Its old wound was more than skindeep. Rot was setting in, a fact which he demonstrated with a stick poked into the cleft.

Up at the wood-lot, he cinched on climber's belt and spurs, slung a coil of rope over his shoulder, and levitated up the fir. The difficult looks easy when an expert undertakes it. Ernie, leaning into his belt while he secured the rope 50 feet up the trunk, was a top-rated highrigger before the mobile steel spar replaced the wooden spar tree.

It would be necessary to fell the tree against its lean. The rope, its other end made fast to an alder down the road, would steer it in the way that it whould go.

There was a time, Ernie told us while he lifted chainsaw, axe and wedges out of his car, when he considered 22 tree jobs no more than a reasonable days work. But one of his wrists was giving him trouble. Today, he doubted that he was good for more than about 17 trees at a stretch.

The stage was set. Ernie moved in on the fir with his saw. It bit into the fir butt with a sustained whine.

"He's making his undercut," I explained to Win while we brushed away hungry no-see-ums. "I'd have spotted it farther around."

"Yes, dear," Win said, with a glance at the power lines.

Ernie cuffed a slice of fir trunk from the cut with the back of his axe. He moved around to the other side. The saw resumed its whining. Presently the tree shivered. It began to lean away from the stump, so slowly that for a moment it appeared to be floating in air. Then the long shaft crashed to earth a neat few inches inside our property line.

The concentric rings on the stump told a story. Ernie, tracing with a finger, interpreted for us.

The fir had grown well in its sapling years. Then—see how narrow the next couple of rings were?—there'd been a setback, maybe due to drought. After that, growth had been normal until the tree suffered the damage that led to its downfall.

It was 73 years old. By Ernie's ring-count, disaster had struck in the late 1930s, probably with flame as its agent. A major wood fire had licked through the area back then.

We have lost a tree, and will miss its top lording over the lesser growth when next we go up that way. But in death it will not be wasted. Split for our fireplace, its wood will help warm our house though a winter.

BOWLING to Australia's Greg Chappell, generally regarded as the world's premier cricket batsmen is Kortwright Richards of the Western Canada Selects at St. Michael's University School pitch Thursday afternoon. Australian Cricket Stand Dampened by Chill Rain

Bennett was disappointed that steady rain washed out what could have been an exciting exhibition match with Western Canada Thursday. And he was confident Australia would do well in the forthcoming World Cup cricket series in England and in the county and test matches against the host country.

Fans watched huddled under umbrellas, beneath leafy trees or from their cars ringing the picturesque St. Michael University School pitch as the Australian batsmen battled first a cruel wind and then drizzle on their way to a total of 167 runs for the loss of five wickets before the match was abandoned.

The weather had a hand in that, but so too did the accurate bowling of Victoria's Kortwright Richards and Vancouver's Dave Simmons.

The opening fast bowlers kept the ball on the wicket and forced the Aussies to exercise caution. Simmons had classy Aussie opener Rick McCosker caught behind by wicketkeeper Basdeo Nandee of Edmonton for only 11 runs. That was Simmons' only wicket of the match at a cost of 46 runs.

Richards proved even more of a bother to the Australians, bowling opener Bruce Lair for only three runs, then getting Alan Turner leg-before-wicket for 14. He finished with two for 35.

The visitors looked in trouble with the slow start. In fact, they had lost two wickets for 22 runs and by the time the third wicket fell, they'd only reached 47.

But then in came Greg Chappell, widely regarded as the finest batsman in the world today, and he raced to a quick 47 with some classic cuts and leg glances before being clean-bowled by Tim Lord of Cowichan.

With partner Doug Walters, Chappell combined in a 55-run stand that swept the score to 102 for four. Not long after, Lord scored another key blow for Western Canda when he had Walters caught by Tim Murari of Vancouver after the Australian had made 21 runs. Lord finished with two wickets for 25 runs.

The Australians' idea was to knock up a quick score and then destroy the local batting with their hostile attack, just as they had done in Vancouver the day before when speedy Jeff Thomson took four for 15, including a hattrick, and Gary Gilmour got four for five.

But the weather had other plans.

Just as the visitors were really starting to hit out and step up their run-rate, the rain got heavier.

Ross Edwards was on 37 not out and Richie Robinson had 24 not out when an early tea break was taken. They didn't get a chance to bat again.

Probably even more disappointing, though, for the 300 or so fans was the fact that they didn't get an opportunity to see fast bowling sensation Dennis Lillee in action against the Western Canada batsmen.

After three matches in Toronto, the Australians go to Britain for the World Cup and for 11 county games and four test matches with England. Bennett and his boys are really confident.

"Naturally we're confident because we've beaten the best countries in the world at cricket recently," says the tour manager. "We beat England comfortably in Australia last time and feel we can do it again over there."

One Victory A Season Doesn't Make...But!

The party was a little late in getting heated up at Memorial on Wednesday, but the anniversary finally turned out to be a success. Not "smashing", but a thriller, nonetheless, as the Irish nipped Burrards 15-14.

This was the Shamrocks' home opener in their 25th season and, befitting the occasion, they kept everyone on tenter-hooks until the very end.

For the Irish, it was almost a brand new start, even from as late as last year. Because at the executive level everything has that new look, including the coach. Well, Archie Browning may not be entirely new, because he is a hall-of-famer, was a Shamrock for many seasons as a player, played in seven Mann Cup finals and was with the Irish when they captured the cup in that glorious season of 1955.

Since then, of course, the search for the Holy Grail of lacrosse has been in vain. Or until this year? That was the question.

And frankly, right from the start of the evening and even though the Irish had won their first two games on the road, it didn't look too promising for the green and white; and before the first ball was faced off too. First, someone changed the starting time without telling everyone; secondly, not all the invited guests for the opener showed; then the chappie in charge of playing the national anthem misplaced the tape, or the record, or whatever (he located it later); and shortly before the start of the contest it was announced that the 30-second shooting clocks weren't synchronized and that time would be kept at the scorer's bench.

George Returned The Favor

But that's the price of an opener; and it wasn't too much later either that Burrards, to use the vernacular of the times, "showed they had come to play."

Meanwhile, the Irish were tighter than a bowstring, not playing too well, and fortunate indeed to be as close as they were as long as they were. Or as Browning said afterwards: "Yes, I told the team that they played their best lacrosse in the final 12-13 minutes and that's the way they should be playing all the time. Before that, we had problems."

If there was a key point in the game, it might have been late in the second period, although the scoresheet won't show it. Because it was around the 16-minute mark, just after goalie George Grover had allowed Burrards two goals and an 11-9 lead that Grover called to his coach, indicating he was willing to take a rest. But Browning waved him off and the game proceeded. Minutes later, Burrards got a two-on-nothing break and, when Mike Smith shot for the corner, Grover got his foot on the ball, and was back in business, in fine style.

"I didn't feel it was Grover's fault," Browning said following the game. "He had been playing well enough." Grover, for his part, admitted he was willing to give way, but certainly was a happy young man when Browning waved him back. "It made me feel good that he showed that much confidence in me," he said.

Some Pluses To Consider

So the Irish were still in deep trouble early in the third period, mainly due to an inability to control faceoffs and generally being outhustled on loose balls. Besides, they were down 13-10 when the turnabout occurred.

Quickly the Irish started to run as they can run and, spearheaded by a vastly improved Mike Beaulac, came fighting back. Beaulac rapped in a pair, rookie Mike Walsh another, then Ron MacNeil and, with the Irish shorthanded and serving a penalty, Beaulac fed a perfect pass to Ranjit Dillon for the winner. It was quite a finish and got the Rocks off the hook, figuratively and literally.

So, will 1975 be a banner year? It could be, regardless of what happened at New Westminster on Thursday. Because a couple of other things were evident Wednesday that augur well for the future. The Irish did come back from apparent defeat, and from being outplayed; Ranjit Dillon, who said afterwards, "gee, I'm tired", is still as shifty as ever even if he does feel older at 31; the re-emergence of Grover as a goalkeeper of talent gives the team a strong one-two tandem, Skip Chapman being the other; and if young Walsh isn't already a prime candidate for rookie-of-the-year honors, then someone else must have been wearing No. 19.

It could be a number to remember.

80 Sports Cars Run at Western

Approximately 80 entries from California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington and B.C., including members of the host Victoria Motor Sports Club, will be competing in the Castrol Island Gran Prix this weekend at Western Speedway.

The International Conference of Sports Car Clubs-sanctioned event opens with practice sessions at 11 a.m. Saturday and continues with two novice races at 2:30 p.m. There will be no admission charge for spectators Saturday.

A full slate of seven races, with about 20 cars in each bout, gets underway at 1 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 per person of $5 per car load.

The nine-tenths of a mile road track at Western is considered challenging by ICSCC drivers because of its relative shortness and tight turns. This means the more powerful Corvettes and Camaros are quite often beaten by smaller cars having a better cornering ability.

This is the fourth out of 10 races scheduled this season for ICSCC drivers around the Pacific Northwest.

Optimists Top Cowichan Team

Rules Body Studies Kershaw's New Car

Gary Kershaw's new 1969 Chevelle is under the scrutiny of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association technical committee this week to make sure it complies with this year's new rules for super stock cars at Western Speedway.

The committee checks out a car each week on the average, but if there is anything illegal about Kershaw's car he stands to lose what money and points he picked up last Monday in winning a pair of main events.

Despite the check, Kershaw will be behind the wheel of the car Saturday night at Western for the regular claimer and super stock program. Time trials are at 7 with racing at 8.

Driver standings:

SUPER STOCKS

1.	Tiny Johnston, '64 Ford	474
2.	Neil Montgomery, '62 Ford	460
3.	Gary Kershaw, '69 Chevelle	415
4.	Bob Collins, '59 T-Bird	396
5.	Al Wade, '63 Plymouth	370
6.	Bill Price, '64 Chevelle	253
7.	Rocky Collins, '67 Chevelle	237
8.	Orton Ker, '69 Torina	236
9.	Art Reedy, '57 Chev	209
10.	Phil Filopovic, '66 Buick	198

CLAIMERS

1. Rick Haskell, 608; 2. Gary Bemister, 396; 3. Bill Bartley, 339; 4. Ernie Schoor, 336; 5. Bill Hitchcox, 332.

Home Still Sweet

BUFFALO (CP) — There has been no place like home for Buffalo Sabres during this year's Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Sabres now have won all eight of their post-season games in front of their home fans at War Memorial Auditorium, with the latest a 4-2 win Thursday night over Philadelphia Flyers to even their best-of-seven final at 2-2.

The Sabres lost the first two games of the National Hockey League championship final in Philadelphia but returned to home ice Tuesday night to win 5-4 in overtime.

"We knew these two games in Buffalo would be must games for us," said Sabres coach Floyd Smith. "We came up with the effort that we needed."

Smith did not feel his club got off to a good start in Thursday night's game despite the fact they had good chances in the first half of the first period.

"I don't think we had a shot on goal in the final eight minutes of the first period," Smith said. "But then we regrouped and we got one goal and we were set."

Philadelphia's Andre Dupont scored the lone goal of the opening period but the Sabres came back to take a 3-2 lead in the second period on goals by Jerry Korab, Gilbert Perreault and Jim Lorentz while Ross Lonsberry got Philadelphia's second goal.

Danny Gare completed the scoring into an empty Flyers net in the final minute of play.

Dupont's goal came on the Flyers' third shot of the opening period. At one stage, the Sabres had an 8-1 edge in shots, but could not get the puck by Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent.

"I should have had the shot," said Desjardins. "The first goal was a bad one. I thought I could have had it."

It was one of the few mistakes Desjardins made all night as he returned to action after a shaky performance in Tuesday's game when he gave up three first-period goals before being replaced by Roger Crozier.

"I shot the puck in and Dudley beat the defenceman to the puck," said Lorentz. "I think he got a shot and Parent controlled the rebound but I don't think he deflected it the way he wanted to so it came right to me and I had the whole side to score."

Lorentz said he was worried about the Sabres' performance in the final period when it appeared the Flyers were taking control.

"When you get up on them they don't quit," Lorentz said. "We sort of laid back there for a while. Maybe we played it too cautious in our own end."

Lonsberry had the best chance to tie the score for the Flyers with three minutes to play as he took a lead pass from Bobby Clarke and broke in on goal.

"As far as I'm concerned that breakaway was just as good as a save even though the shot was wide," said Desjardins. "He shot it when he was by the net."

The first major penalties of the series came in the second period when Buffalo's Jim Schoenfeld and the Flyers' Dave Schultz squared off in the first bout while Dudley and Kelly tangled in the other. The Schultz-Schoenfeld affair was no more than a wrestling match but Dudley and Kelly used their fists in a wild-swinging bout.

Five Cougars Caught In WHA Sudden Draft

Centre Mel Bridgman and defenceman Rick LaPointe were first-round choices and three other players from Victoria Cougars were picked in the second round during a secret telephone draft held Thursday by the World Hockey Association.

Bridgman, who won the Western Canada League scoring title last season, was fourth pick overall and top choice of Denver Spurs while LaPointe was picked up by Toronto Toros.

LaPointe was the 11th player chosen out of 45 in a draft dominated by western players.

Twenty-eight of the 45 players named were plucked from the WCHL.

Other Victoria players selected, all going in the second round, were forwards Peter Morris (Edmonton Oilers—17th overall), Don Cairns (Indianpolis Racers—21st) and defenceman Kim Clackson (Racers—24th).

Victoria-product Dennis McLean, who completed his junior career with Calgary Centennials, went to Calgary Cowboys, who took over the Vancouver Blazers franchise.

The No. 1 draft choice was Claude Larose, a 69-goal scorer with Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Junior "A" League last season, who went to Cincinnati Stingers, an expansion club last season.

One WHA official admitted the sudden move was designed to catch the rival National Hockey League off guard.

"It gives the teams time to talk to the players before the NHL clubs," he said. The NHL draft will be held in Montreal early next month.

Players drafted from the WCHL:

CINCINNATI STINGERS: Larry Hendrick, goal, Calgary Centennials.
INDIANAPOLIS RACERS: Kim Clackson, defence VICTORIA COUGARS; Bryan Maxwell, defence, Medicine Hat Tigers; Don Cairns, forward, VICTORIA.
BALTIMORE BLADES: Don Ashby, centre, Calgary; Gord Laxton, goal, New Westminster Bruins.
CLEVELAND CRUSADERS: Ralph Klassen, centre, Saskatoon Blues Pats.
CALGARY COWBOYS: Dennis McLean, forward, Calgary.
WINNIPEG JETS: Brad Gassoff, forward, Kamloops.
MINNESOTA FIGHTING SAINTS: Greg Neeld, forward, Calgary.
SAN DIEGO MARINERS: Bob Watson, defence, Flin Flon.
NEW ENGLAND WHALERS: Terry McDonald, defence, Kamloops; Dan Arndt, forward, Saskatoon.
QUEBEC NORDIQUES: None from WCHL.
HOUSTON AEROS: None from WCHL.

IRISH STREAK OVER

NEW WESTMINSTER — New Westminster Salmonbellies extending a winning streak to six games by tripping Victoria Shamrocks 16-13 in a Western Lacrosse Association game Thursday night at Queen's Park Arena.

Shamrocks, unbeaten in their first three games this season, held a 6-5 lead after the first period but the league-leading Salmonbellies bounced back to tie the game 10-10 going into the final 20 minutes.

Wayne Goss, who led New Westminster with four goals and three assists, scored the go-ahead goal at 4:57 of the third period.

Tom Black, Ranjit Dillon, Ron MacNeil and Bob Turkington paced the Shamrocks with two goals each.

Skip Jolly finished with 40 saves, including 19 in the opening period, for Salmonbellies, who kept Victoria off the scoreboard for 10 minutes and 22 seconds in the crucial third period.

Victorian Picketing Halted

Picketing employees of the Victorian newspaper returned to work this morning, following a Labor Relations Board ruling Thursday.

The board ordered the seven employees, members of Local 226 of the International Typographical Union, to return to their jobs "without recriminations" because of their picketing activity.

The picket line was set up Tuesday morning and the ITU employees claimed that 11 union members had been laid off and that the layoffs constituted a lockout.

Publisher John Damgaard took the case to the LRB, asking that the picket lines be removed and saying there was no lockout.

The board ordered the picket line removed and also set up a negotiation meeting, the first in several months, to be held in Vancouver Tuesday. LRB officials will attend the negotiation meeting.

Damgaard said today not all of the seven employees had yet returned to their jobs as Friday is not a full production day.

A 'HUMAN' FISH WITH FINGERS AND TOES

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A fish with arms, legs and fingers has set fisher-folk agog in the Kilwa area of Soutehrn Tanzania.

Biologists are puzzled over how to classify the creature.

The Tanzanian press reported a week ago that a fisherman, Mohamed Sefu, brought his net in and landed this fish-like creature of a type never previously seen in the area.

Reports reaching Dar Es Salaam, the Tanzanaian capital, said it had two legs with ten toes on each and two arms with five fingers on each. The arms protruded from its chest, where there was also one eye. On its right side there was another eye which glowed brightly at night.

It also had a small horn, like that of a cow, one ear, and a hump. A large, toothless mouth and a beard under its chin completed the description.

The reports did not give the creature's measurement, or any idea of its size.

When landed it was alive, and stayed alive for some time. Tanzanian officials said it would be preserved and put on display in the national museum.

Lisbon Resolve Sought

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's military rulers today invited the rival Socialist and Communist parties to confer in an attempt to resolve the country's political crisis.

The ruling Revolutionary Council, after being in almost constant session for three days, also said in a communique that the military leaders had no intention of allowing a new dictatorship to be established.

Before the rival parties could even appear for an attempt at reconciliation, however, the Communists accused the Socialists of serving the interests of reaction.

"The leadership of the Socialist party takes a great responsibility for the consequences of such an orientation," the Communists said in a statement.

"The activities of the Socialist party could lead to the impossibility of governing in coalition and of governing with the present system of power."

Meanwhile, the national radio said military forces sent to a poor neighborhood to seek out suspected criminals had killed two persons.

It said troops opened fire on a car when the driver disobeyed an order to stop. Two men in the car were killed and two others in the car were wounded and one of the survivors had a criminal record, the radio said.

More than 40,000 people marched in Lisbon Thursday night in support of Socialist demands that the leftist military government's "drife toward Communist dictatorship" be blocked.

Measles Outbreak Hits City

Greater Victoria is in the midst of an outbreak of rubeola, better known as red measles, with cases likely numbering over 500, regional health officer Allan Arneil said Thursday.

And across the province there is an outbreak of rubella or German measles although cases are not nearly so prevalent locally. While German measles is the less severe of the two diseases, it constitutes a special hazard when contracted by women in the early stage of pregnancy because it can damage the fetus.

Dr. Arneil said over 200 cases of red measles have been reported to his office. Because many cases go unreported, he estimates there are probably over 500 cases in the district.

Red measles, usually a disease of early childhood, has hit children of every age group, even teenagers, and that is unusual, said Arneil.

It produces a rash, high temperature, coughing and other chest complaints, leaving its victims quite sick for four or five days and generally below par for about two weeks.

Absenteeism in local classes has been running 7 per cent above normal in some cases as a result of rubeola.

Arneil said immunization against red measles is available from regional health clinics or one's family doctor. Preliminary figures suggest a person immunized reduces chances of infection to about one-quarter of the odds facing those not immunized.

Que. Labor Violence Crackdown

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec national assembly gave third and final reading Thursday to legislation giving the Bourassa government a powerful weapon in its war against violence and corruption in the province's troubled construction industry.

By an 81-7 vote, the national assembly approved substantial changes to existing labor laws, placing restrictions on who may hold union office and putting the burden of proof on the accused in court cases involving illegal strikes and lockouts.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette admitted to reporters the legislation was tough but said it was necessary to bring peace to the industry.

Under the law, conviction for murder, attempted murder, aggravated theft, manslaughter, extortion, embezzlement, kidnapping or conspiracy to commit any of those offences, disqualifies a person from holding union office for life. Only if persons convicted of such crimes obtain a pardon from the National Parole Board may they be eligible to represent a union.

Convictions for theft, breaking and entering, drug trafficking, arson, intimidation, aggravated assault and public mischief causing bodily harm render a person ineligible for five years after the sentence is served.

The law applies to union officials now holding office.

Any person illegally occupying a union post may be fined at least $1,000 a day and be jailed for at least two years.

If a worker or union official takes part in an illegal work stoppage during the life of a contract, or if an employer declares an illegal lockout, he would be presumed guilty and bear the burden of proving his innocence.

Legal action under this provision is the prerogative of the justice department.

—Union stewards must be elected by workers on a construction site instead of being appointed by the union hierarchy.

—Union members are required to handle and install any materials supplied by an employer. Fines of between $500 and $10,000 per day may be imposed for failure to comply.

—An employer or his representative may not offer, give or promise to give to a union official a loan, reward or extra benefit. Likewise, union officials cannot seek or accept extra favors from emploeyrs. Conviction could result in fines ranging from $5,000 to $10,000.

In addition, an employer or his representative, or a union official, convicted of any form of bribery or influence-peddling would be banned from representing his association for five years.

Car Gauges Go Metric In 1977

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government will order all new cars and motorcycles sold in Canada to be equipped with metric speedometers and odometers starting Sept. 1, 1977.

The change to calibration in kilometres will coincide with the scheduled conversion of highway signs by the provinces, The Globe and Mail said in an Ottawa report. Sign conversions have started in some parts of Canada.

A kilometer is three-fifths of a mile, so a speedometer reading 100 kph would indicate a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Skinny Dipper Stung

MIAMI (UPI) — Problems with a shark cage and a painful sting by a Portuguese man-of-war today threatened to end Ben Huggard's 165-mile skinny dip swim up the Gulfstream from the Florida Keys to Freeport, Grand Bahama Island.

The 20-by-10-foot steel mesh cage the 35-year-old plainclothes policeman from Freeport, N.Y., was swimming in to protect him from man-eating sharks began falling apart.

Plastic foam flotation panels supporting the shark cage, which was being towed in the water some 50 feet behind the support boat Finales, started breaking loose. Scuba divers worked to replace the flotation panels as Huggard continued to swim.

As the burly blond cop stroked steadily northward, wearing only a swim cap and goggles and showing no apparent signs of fatigue, he was stung across the arms and chest by a Portugese man-of-war that floated through the steel mesh and bars on the shark cage.

Huggard cried out in pain from the sting and trainer Dick Boullianne leaped into the water, held Huggard to the side of the cage and treated the chain-like sting marks with a meat tenderizer and a liberal splashing of bourbon whiskey. Huggard continued the swim.

There is no doctor aboard the support boat, but treatment of man-of-war stings with meat tenderizer is an accepted and well-established practice. If untreated, man-of-war stings can cause respiratory problems.

Big Three Recalling '75 Models

Times News Services

It's recall time for the big three of the automotive industry.

General Motors and Ford are recalling a variety of models and Chrysler Corporation in Sacramento has been ordered by the California air resources board to recall 11,000 cars because of "continuing and massive" smog violations.

It was the second state-ordered recall against Chrysler this year for violation of pollution standards. Involved are 1975 Plymouth Valiants, Dusters, Furys, Road-Runners, and Gran Furys, Dodge Darts, Chargers, Coronets and Monacos and Chrysler Cordobas, Newports, New Yorkers, Imperials and Town and Country station wagons.

In Detroit, GM announced it is recalling about 50,000 current model Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles and Buicks because some models may contain steering, accelerator and air conditioning defects.

In Oshawa, Ont., a General Motors spokesman said about 2,100 cars are being recalled in Canada, including Chevrolet Novas, Pontiac Firebirds, Buick Appolos and Skylarks, Oldsmobile Omegas, Pontiac Venturas and, Skylarks and Cameros.

Ford in Detroit announced the recall of 45,000 Capri I and Capri II models because of a potential defect that could result in the loss of front braking power.

Before the Judge

Daniel Charles O'Sullivan, 21, of 140 Joseph, in what Judge Fred Green called "one of the most tragic cases I have ever seen of the effects of heroin," was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Thursday to one year in prison.

"This is one final gesture of hope that perhaps your client may yet be saved to be a useful member of society," Green told defence lawyer Jeff Green.

O'Sullivan had pleaded guilty May 3 to six break-ins between April 13 and May 1 at local homes where $4,000 in cash and goods were taken to support his heroin habit.

Evidence revealed he had become a heroin addict at the age of 15 and had a lengthy record of breaking and entering and theft convictions to pay for his habit.

Each time in prison O'Sullivan managed to kick the habit, but once out and in the company of his friends he again reverted to heroin.

The pre-sentence report warned that "Danny is in danger of becoming institutionalized . . . it is a revolving door pattern that can become endless."

O'Sullivan still has 10 months to serve from a previous sentence received under similar conditions. Once he has completed his time, he will be under a two-year probation.

Conditions of probation are that O'Sullivan is to have no contact with users or possessors of drugs and to serve parole outside Vancouver or Victoria, to avoid the comany and influence of his "old friends."

Preliminary hearing was set for July 30 for James Ronald Page, 27, of 476 Dupplin, charged with the attempted murder May 15 of Vancouver resident Philip Brennan, 29.

Aug. 28 and 29 have been set as the preliminary hearing dates for Ivy Marie Long, 48, of 3841 Epsom, charged with the attempted murder of her husband Warren, 51, in their residence.

Mrs. Long is free on her own recognizance in the sum of $3,000.

Bail was refused a 39-year-old man who was charged Tuesday with theft and possession under $200, both of which were alleged to have been committed the morning after he had been released on bail on four other charges.

Lang said Samuel London, of no fixed address, stole a pair of shoes last Friday from Stewart's Shoes, 1315 Broad.

London had been released the day before on his own recognizance in the sum of $250 after he was arrested for being unlawfully at large while on his own undertaking for charges of theft, possession of stolen property and wilful damage.

Lang suggested that if bail had not been granted last Thursday, the new offences with which London is faced might not have been committeed.

Green decided detention was necessary in the public interest.

Lang said Drummond left Canada Nov. 20 and married Cooper in Idaho the following day.

Defence lawyer David Lisson elected trail by judge and jury for Drummond and she was remanded to Aug. 6 for preliminary hearing.

★ ★ ★

James Lawrence Dixon, 28, of 7080 West Saanich Road, pleaded not guilty to 15 counts of false pretences and one count of obtaining transportation through fraud.

The total amount involved was $1,036.

Trial has been set for August 1.

Judge William Ostler granted a conditional discharge for Alan Russel Jones, 24, of 1576 Midgard, who was found guilty after trial for mischief. The sole condition was a four-month term of probation.

At a stop light at Fort and Oak Bay, Jones, a karate instructor, got out of his car and put a $100 dent in the roof of the other car.

★ ★ ★

Shauneen Donna Dayton, 18, of 2980 Sooke Road, was granted a conditional discharge by Judge Harold Alder.

She had pleaded guilty May 1 to making a statement to Saanich police with intent to mislead and divert suspicion from herself.

Dayton was at an illegal drag race on Central Saanich Road at 2 a.m. Feb. 21 when two police cars approached the scene. The drag-racing cars scattered.

Dayton was a passenger in her own car and it collided with another in the flight. Both cars got away.

She phoned police two hours later to say her car had been parked all night at the Red Lion, 3366 Douglas, and had been damaged by a hit-and-run driver.

Dayton was asked to take the car to Saanich police headquarters the next day but did not. She later admitted to police she had invented the story because she was afraid to tell her father the truth.

"I know it was a foolish thing to do but I didn't know drag races were against the law and when the police came I got scared," she said.

The sole condition to her discharge was a six-month probation period.

Speakers Gather

NO 'UDDER' DEALER CAN MAKE THIS OFFER

DETROIT (AP) — How do you price a cow to be sold to an auto dealer?

The farmer's "list price" was:

Basic cow, $2. Two-tone exterior, $45. Extra stomach, $75. Product storage compartment, $60. Dispersive device, four spigots at $10 each, $40. Genuine cowhide upholstery, $125. Dual horns, $15. Automatic fly swatter, $35. Total, $595.

Higher RCMP Tab Hinted for B.C.

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The British Columbia government will be asked to assume a larger share of the costs of provincial policing by the RCMP, solicitor general Warren Allmand said Thursday.

In an interview with the Times during a recess at the federal-provincial corrections ministers' conference being held at the Empress Hotel, Allmand said the province will be asked to pay more than 50 per cent of such costs.

His cost-sharing proposal, details of which he declined to release, is bound to meet with disfavor by B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald who earlier announced he would go "right to the mat" with the federal government over the cost of the RCMP to the province.

Under the present 10-year contract which came into effect in 1966 the province was required to pay 40 per cent of the RCMP policing costs the first year, the rate increasing one per cent each year.

Negotiations are now underway for a new contract replacing the existing one which expires next year.

Allmand said the province should pay more as the RCMP was becoming increasingly more involved in provincial policing duties.

However, Macdonald, citing a critical police manpower shortage in the province, has maintained the need for more federal funds was never greater.

Allmand indicated his department was not prepared to take the initiative in increasing the RCMP staff engaged in provincial policing duties, though added there had been staff increases in the areas under federal jurisdiction such as the drug and commercial crime sections.

The B.C. Police Commission has said more than 1,700 officers were needed to bring the RCMP strength in the provicne up to par with the national average.

Allmand blamed the shortage on the previous Socred administration which, he said, consistently ignored RCMP recommendations to increase the police strength in the province.

"We are willing to supply the men as soon as we are able to train them," he said, "but it's up to the provincial government . . . the problem is theirs."

During the two-day, closed, ministerial conference which ends today Allmand announced the formation of an national advisory network for correctional manpower planning, training and development.

He said the network will be composed of 14 top federal and provincial officials who will review staffing of Canada's prisons and corrections institutions.

The costs will be shared 50 per cent by the federal government and 50 per cent by the provinces and territories prorated on the basis of the number of corrections staff they employ.

The first project of the advisory network will be to oversee a study by James Albert of Carlton University in Ottawa of existing correctional training programs.

Allmand said the main objectives of the study would be to improve the performance of corrections staff and attract staff of high calibre to the service.

'Mackasey Flu' Bug Strikes

Inside postal workers in Victoria, Vancouver and some Vancouver Island post offices booked off sick today, beginning what one of their leaders called a 24-hour bout of "Mackasey flu", a reference to Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey.

A total of 24 inside postal workers in the Victoria area booked off sick, slowing down the city mail sorting process and leaving some customer wickets unmanned.

In Sidney, all three members of Canadian Union of Postal Workers phoned in sick early today.

Some CUPW members in Nanaimo and Campbell River also participated in the book off, but post offices in Duncan, Ladysmith, Port Alberni, Courtenay and Port Hardy were not affected.

In Ottawa, Mackasey said the Canadian Union of Postal Workers should rid itself of a small group responsible for "patterns of violence."

Mackasey told the Commons that "95 per cent who are decent, law-abiding citizens will sooner or later have to stand up and be counted and rid their own house of the five per cent who have no place in the legitimate trade union in the first instance."

He was responding to questions from Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon Souris) about acts of violence in the CUPW "as indicated by the vandalism inflicted on the house of the national secretary treasurer of the union recently."

A public relations officer inside the main plant in Vancouver said about 88 per cent of the 600 employes, didn't turn up for work.

He said 98 per cent of the workers in the foreward division where mail is dispatched for centres outside the city booked off and 65 per cent in the city division where mail is sorted for greater Vancouver delivery stayed away.

The Victoria spokesman said workers were mostly city sortation and wicket clerks. The 24 people off work represent about half of the total number of employees in those two areas.

Three of the seven wicket clerks in the main post office failed to report for work and signs asked customers to have patience as they waited in line to buy stamps and mail parcels.

Elsewhere across the country, the move to have inside postal workers book off met with a spotty response.

There was no particular pattern as some offices remained fully manned — some had all clerks and sorters off the job and others had vary-

LEBANESE MILITARY TAKEOVER

BEIRUT (AP) — A military government was formed in Lebanon tonight under Nureddin Rifai, a retired police colonel, to deal with a bloody war between rightist Lebanese militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas, it was officially announced.

The casualty toll rose to more than 25 dead and 150 wounded.

Residents on the eastern outskirts of Beirut said special police forces that tried to establish a buffer zone between the warring factions Thursday night withdrew when they were caught in a crossfire.

This morning they were reported observing the shooting but not participating.

Israel reported the first clash in more than six months along the eastern border with Jordan.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said Arab gunners ambushed an Israeli patrol Thursday, wounding an Israeli soldier in the village of Naharayn about 60 miles northeast of Jerusalem near the Sea of Galilee.

A Break For Small Business

By The Canadian Press

The B.C. legislature gave unanimous approval in principle today to a bill which would increase the tax on utililized capital of corporations to one-tifth of one per cent from one-tenth of one per cent.

The legislation would also exempt from capital tax all corporations with less than $100,000 of taxable paid-up capital compared to the current exemption of $25,000.

Premier Dave Barrett said the legislation resulted from a study of the impact of the capital tax on small businesses.

He said the government would be looking at other means of assisting small businesses.

The legislature also gave unanimous approval in principle to a bill which would exempt from succession duty taxes property given to the provincial government, municipality or regional district.

Barrett berated the Social Credit members for their stated policy of abolishing succession duties if they were returned to power.

"If you vote Social Credit, the rich are going to get away without paying their fair share," he said.

The premier said if people want to leave the province because of its succession duty laws they are welcome to go, but if they stay "they have to pay their fair share."

He said the money collected from the succession duty taxes goes to pay for pharmacare, a program, he said, which cost $18 million last year to provide free prescription drugs to those 65 and over.

He said it was only right that the rich help to finance the needs of the province's elderly citizens.

FEATHERS FLYING

BOGOTA (AP) — Overstocked poultry producers proposed whetting the Colombian appetite for their product by parachuting 1,000 live chickens over the city Sunday.

Anyone lucky enough to catch one could keep it, they said.

But the publicity campaign caught the attention of the Society for the Protection of Animals, which protested that the birds might be injured in the descent.

City hall agreed. It said the chicken drop is still on, but no live birds — they must be killed first.

NEWS BRIEFS

Trio Shot Dead

ST. BRUNO, Que. (CP) — Three men and two women were found shot to death late Thursday night in a rented bungalow in this community, 15 miles southeast of Montreal. A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said early today it was "still too early to talk about the case as a gangland settling of accounts."

Talks Break Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract talks between the Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the pulp and paper industrial relations bureau broke off today following a wildcat walkout at Kamloops, Wednesday. About 8,000 PPWC members working in sawmills, plywood plants and pulp mills across the province are affected by the contract talks.

Gov't 'Breaking Law' On Rent Grant Cutoff

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The provincial government is breaking its own laws by stopping payment of the $30 renter's resource grants in mid-year, Liberal leader David Anderson charged Thursday.

Tenants who apply for the grant are being told by letter that because of forthcoming changes in housing legislation the grant has been interrupted, said Anderson.

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson later said in an interview that although grants to senior citizens are being continued, the $30 renter's grant has been stopped.

Because of legislation which likely will provide a formula allowing renters to claim a $100 deduction on income tax returns, the renter's grants for this year will not be issued, he said.

Applicants are thanked for their application in a department letter signed by H. C. Rounds, director of finance for the department.

"We will advise you when we receive any additional information on the proposed legislation referred to in the budget speech," says the letter.

The department anticipates the claim would be made on 1975 income tax returns, it adds.

He said it is a "weird situation" when grant applications to some renters were approved, and later applicants were turned down.

The minister's only excuse, Anderon said, is that he believes the law may be changed. "But he's abrogating the law now."

Local Liberals To Oppose Unity

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Greater Victoria Liberal associations will send full contingents to their party policy convention this weekend in Richmond and all will oppose Liberal participation in the unity movement.

About 500 delegates are expected to attend the two-day conference which was planned long in advance of the recent resignations of three Liberal MLAs.

Party president Doreen Braverman said Thursday departure of the three is bound to be a major concern of the convention delegates but she and other party spokesmen insist the new policy resolutions will still be the main focus of debate.

Party policy is even more important now, she said, to prove the Liberals are a moderate alternative to the other free enterprise parties.

No challenge of David Anderson's leadership is expected at the convention, said Braverman, but anyone has the right to do so at 24 hour's notice.

The issue of unity and the defection of MLAs Garde Gardom, Pat McGeer and Allan Williams are expected to come up on the floor of the convention Saturday, when the delegates debate "direction of the party."

Braverman said no resolutions were submitted in support of joining a unity or coalition party but several constituencies sent in motions calling for rejection of unity.

A composite resolution to be discussed Saturday reads:

"That the Liberal party in B.C. rejects any suggestion that it surrender its responsibility to the people of B.C. by entry into any form of coalition, accommodation, collusion or arrangement with any other political group, extant or proposed, in B.C."

Presidents of the four Greater Victoria Liberal constituency organizations confirmed Thursday they will be sending full delegations to the convention.

All four indicated their members are opposed to any movement towards unity of the free enterprise parties.

Irma Dann of the Victoria association said about 20 to 25 of her members will attend the convention.

U.S. LEAVES LAOS

VIENTIANE (AP) — A planeload of women and children took off from Vientiane today, launching the evacuation of many of the 1,000 United States citizens in Laos.

The Communist-dominated government announced that Washington had agreed to withdraw all U.S. AID personnel except a few experts and to dismantle the 24-year-old AID program in this country.

Eighteen women and 61 children were aboard the first chartered Laotian jetliner that took off for Bangkok seven hours late because government clearance was delayed without explanation.

The husbands of the women, all employees of the U.S. AID program, will not leave until all their dependents have been evacuated.

The number of Americans to be evacuated was not known, but State Secretary Henry Kissinger said the U.S. presence in the land-locked kingdom that has come under Communist domination in the last month would be substantially reduced.

There are about 1,000 Americans in Laos, including 320 government employees, 150 private civilians and 500 dependents.

Plunge Kills 28

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — A packed truck carrying pilgrims to a religious service plunged over a 500-foot precipice, killing 28 persons, Dominica police said Thursday. Police in this British possession in the Caribbean's Leeward Islands said 12 others were injured, many of them critically.

Fingers Crossed for Lunar Show of Decade

But at this point the outlook is cloudy, plus the chance of light rain to make things worse.

Forecasters say there may be some clearing toward evening, giving a 50 per cent chance of seeing the moon, but it will be cool and weathermen advise wearing a sweater if you drive up Mt. Tolmie or stroll out Cattle Point to see the sight.

If clouds are scattered, however, the opportunity for more interesting pictures presents itself. Amateur photographers may be advised to seek a good vantage point to set up their tripods, with something like a cityscape or trees to give perspective.

Although this will be a total eclipse, the earth's shadow into which the moon will pass will have refracted light which with atmospheric filtering will produce a coppery color and make color photos more interesting than black and white.

The eclipse spans 3½ hours from 9 p.m., permitting a series of shots showing the different stages and progression from white to yellow, tan, copper, deep red and back to white under ideal viewing conditions. Darkest moon will occur at 10:48.

Everyone in North America may see this lunar spectacle, provided they are not screened by cloud or fog.

As a rough guide to amateur photographers, George Ball, the director of telescopes for the Victoria chapter, Royal Astrosomical Society of Canada, suggests using ASA 400 black and white or high speed Ektachrome transparency film.

For the uneclipsed, bright moon, settings may be 1-1,000 sec. at f8, slowing to 1-500 sec. as the eclipse gets under way, 1-25 as the darker shadow moves across the moon, and between 2 and 6 seconds at mid-point of the total eclipse.

Higher RCMP Tab Hinted for B.C.

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The British Columbia government will be asked to assume a larger share of the costs of provincial policing by the RCMP, solicitor general Warren Allmand said Thursday.

In an interview with the Times during a recess at the federal-provincial corrections ministers' conference being held at the Empress Hotel, Allmand said the province will be asked to pay more than 50 per cent of such costs.

His cost-sharing proposal, details of which he declined to release, is bound to meet with disfavor by B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald who earlier announced he would go "right to the mat" with the federal government over the cost of the RCMP to the province.

Under the present 10-year contract which came into effect in 1966 the province was required to pay 40 per cent of the RCMP policing costs the first year, the rate increasing one per cent each year.

Negotiations are now underway for a new contract replacing the existing one which expires next year.

Allmand said the province should pay more as the RCMP was becoming increasingly more involved in provincial policing duties.

However, Macdonald, citing a critical police manpower shortage in the province, has maintained the need for more federal funds was never greater.

Allmand indicated his department was not prepared to take the initiative in increasing the RCMP staff engaged in provincial policing duties, though added there had been staff increases in the areas under federal jurisdiction such as the drug and commercial crime sections.

The B.C. Police Commission has said more than 1,700 officers were needed to bring the RCMP strength in the provicne up to par with the national average.

Allmand blamed the shortage on the previous Socred administration which, he said, consistently ignored RCMP recommendations to increase the police strength in the province.

"We are willing to supply the men as soon as we are able to train them," he said, "but it's up to the provincial government . . . the problem is theirs."

During the two-day, closed, ministerial conference which ends today Allmand announced the formation of an national advisory network for correctional manpower planning, training and development.

He said the network will be composed of 14 top federal and provincial officials who will review staffing of Canada's prisons and corrections institutions.

The costs will be shared 50 per cent by the federal government and 50 per cent by the provinces and territories prorated on the basis of the number of corrections staff they employ.

The first project of the advisory network will be to oversee a study by James Albert of Carlton University in Ottawa of existing correctional training programs.

Allmand said the main objectives of the study would be to improve the performance of corrections staff and attract staff of high calibre to the service.

DETROIT (AP) — How do you price a cow to be sold to an auto dealer?

The farmer's "list price" was:

Basic cow, $2. Two-tone exterior, $45. Extra stomach, $75. Product storage compartment, $60. Dispersive device, four spigots at $10 each, $40. Genuine cowhide upholstery, $125. Dual horns, $15. Automatic fly swatter, $35. Total, $595.

'Mackasey Flu' Bug Strikes

Inside postal workers in Victoria, Vancouver and some Vancouver Island post offices booked off sick today, beginning what one of their leaders called a 24-hour bout of "Mackasey flu", a reference to Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey.

A total of 24 inside postal workers in the Victoria area booked off sick, slowing down the city mail sorting process and leaving some customer wickets unmanned.

In Sidney, all three members of Canadian Union of Postal Workers phoned in sick early today.

Some CUPW members in Nanaimo and Campbell River also participated in the book off, but post offices in Duncan, Ladysmith, Port Alberni, Courtenay and Port Hardy were not affected.

In Ottawa, Mackasey said the Canadian Union of Postal Workers should rid itself of a small group responsible for "patterns of violence."

Mackasey told the Commons that "95 per cent who are decent, law-abiding citizens will sooner or later have to stand up and be counted and rid their own house of the five per cent who have no place in the legitimate trade union in the first instance."

He was responding to questions from Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon Souris) about acts of violence in the CUPW "as indicated by the vandalism inflicted on the house of the national secretary treasurer of the union recently."

A public relations officer inside the main plant in Vancouver said about 88 per cent of the 600 employes, didn't turn up for work.

He said 98 per cent of the workers in the foreward division where mail is dispatched for centres outside the city booked off and 65 per cent in the city division where mail is sorted for greater Vancouver delivery stayed away.

The Victoria spokesman said workers were mostly city sortation and wicket clerks. The 24 people off work represent about half of the total number of employees in those two areas.

Three of the seven wicket clerks in the main post office failed to report for work and signs asked customers to have patience as they waited in line to buy stamps and mail parcels.

Elsewhere across the country, the move to have inside postal workers book off met with a spotty response.

There was no particular pattern as some offices remained fully manned — some had all clerks and sorters off the job and others had vary-

LEBANESE MILITARY TAKEOVER

BEIRUT (AP) — A military government was formed in Lebanon tonight under Nureddin Rifai, a retired police colonel, to deal with a bloody war between rightist Lebanese militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas, it was officially announced.

The casualty toll rose to more than 25 dead and 150 wounded.

Residents on the eastern outskirts of Beirut said special police forces that tried to establish a buffer zone between the warring factions Thursday night withdrew when they were caught in a crossfire.

This morning they were reported observing the shooting but not participating.

Israel reported the first clash in more than six months along the eastern border with Jordan.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said Arab gunners ambushed an Israeli patrol Thursday, wounding an Israeli soldier in the village of Baharayn about 60 miles northeast of Jerusalem near the Sea of Galilee.

A Break For Small Business

By The Canadian Press

The B.C. legislature gave unanimous approval in principle today to a bill which would increase the tax on utilized capital of corporations to one-fifth of one per cent from one-tenth of one per cent.

The legislation would also exempt from capital tax all corporations with less than $100,000 of taxable paid-up capital compared to the current exemption of $25,000.

Premier Dave Barrett said the legislation resulted from a study of the impact of the capital tax on small businesses.

He said the government would be looking at other means of assisting small businesses.

The legislature also gave unanimous approval in principle to a bill which would exempt from succession duty taxes property given to the provincial government, municipality or regional district.

Barrett berated the Social Credit members for their stated policy of abolishing succession duties if they were returned to power.

"If you vote Social Credit, the rich are going to get away without paying their fair share," he said.

The premier said if people want to leave the province because of its succession duty laws they are welcome to go, but if they stay "they have to pay their fair share."

He said the money collected from the succession duty taxes goes to pay for pharmacare, a program, he said, which cost $18 million last year to provide free prescription drugs to those 65 and over.

He said it was only right that the rich help to finance the needs of the province's elderly citizens.

FEATHERS 'FLYING

BOGOTA (AP) — Overstocked poultry producers proposed whetting the Colombian appetite for their product by parachuting 1,000 live chickens over the city Sunday.

Anyone lucky enough to catch one could keep it, they said.

But the publicity campaign caught the attention of the Society for the Protection of Animals, which protested that the birds might be injured in the descent.

City hall agreed. It said the chicken drop is still on, but no live birds — they must be killed first.

Trio Shot Dead

ST. BRUNO, Que. (CP) — Three men and two women were found shot to death late Thursday night in a rented bungalow in this community, 15 miles southeast of Montreal. A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said early today it was "still too early to talk about the case as a gangland settling of accounts."

Talks Break Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract talks between the Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the pulp and paper industrial relations bureau broke off today following a wildcat walkout at Kamloops, Wednesday. About 8,000 PPWC members working in sawmills, plywood plants and pulp mills across the province are affected by the contract talks.

Gov't 'Breaking Law' On Rent Grant Cutoff

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The provincial government is breaking its own laws by stopping payment of the $30 renter's resource grants in mid-year, Liberal leader David Anderson charged Thursday.

Tenants who apply for the grant are being told by letter that because of forthcoming changes in housing legislation the grant has been interrupted, said Anderson.

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson later said in an interview that although grants to senior citizens are being continued, the $30 renter's grant has been stopped.

Because of legislation which likely will provide a formula allowing renters to claim a $100 deduction on income tax returns, the renter's grants for this year will not be issued, he said.

Applicants are thanked for their application in a department letter signed by H. C. Rounds, director of finance for the department.

"We will advise you when we receive any additional information on the proposed legislation referred to in the budget speech," says the letter.

The department anticipates the claim would be made on 1975 income tax returns, it adds.

He said it is a "weird situation" when grant applications to some renters were approved, and later applicants were turned down.

The minister's only excuse, Anderon said, is that he believes the law may be changed. "But he's abrogating the law now."

Local Liberals To Oppose Unity

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Greater Victoria Liberal associations will send full contingents to their party policy convention this weekend in Richmond and all will oppose Liberal participation in the unity movement.

About 500 delegates are expected to attend the two-day conference which was planned long in advance of the recent resignations of three Liberal MLAs.

Party president Doreen Braverman said Thursday departure of the three is bound to be a major concern of the convention delegates but she and other party spokesmen insist the new policy resolutions will still be the main focus of debate.

Party policy is even more important now, she said, to prove the Liberals are a moderate alternative to the other free enterprise parties.

No challenge of David Anderson's leadership is expected at the convention, said Braverman, but anyone has the right to do so at 24 hour's notice.

The issue of unity and the defection of MLAs Garde Gardom, Pat McGeer and Allan Williams are expected to come up on the floor of the convention Saturday, when the delegates debate "direction of the party."

Braverman said no resolutions were submitted in support of joining a unity or coalition party but several constituencies sent in motions calling for rejection of unity.

A composite resolution to be discussed Saturday reads:

"That the Liberal party in B.C. rejects any suggestion that it surrender its responsibility to the people of B.C. by entry into any form of coalition, accommodation, collusion or arrangement with any other political group, extant or proposed, in B.C."

Presidents of the four Greater Victoria Liberal constituency organizations confirmed Thursday they will be sending full delegations to the convention.

All four indicated their members are opposed to any movement towards unity of the free enterprise parties.

Irma Dann of the Victoria association said about 20 to 25 of her members will attend the convention.

U.S. LEAVES LAOS

VIENTIANE (AP) — A planeload of women and children took off from Vientiane today, launching the evacuation of many of the 1,000 United States citizens in Laos.

The Communist-dominated government announced that Washington had agreed to withdraw all U.S. AID personnel except a few experts and to dismantle the 24-year-old AID program in this country.

Eighteen women and 61 children were aboard the first chartered Laotian jetliner that took off for Bangkok seven hours late because government clearance was delayed without explanation.

The husbands of the women, all employees of the U.S. AID program, will not leave until all their dependents have been evacuated.

The number of Americans to be evacuated was not known, but State Secretary Henry Kissinger said the U.S. presence in the land-locked kingdom that has come under Communist domination in the last month would be substantially reduced.

There are about 1,000 Americans in Laos, including 320 government employees, 150 private civilians and 500 dependents.

Plunge Kills 28

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — A packed truck carrying pilgrims to a religious service plunged over a 500-foot precipice, killing 28 persons, Dominica police said Thursday. Police in this British possession in the Caribbean's Leeward Islands said 12 others were injured, many of them critically.

Fingers Crossed for Lunar Show of Decade

But at this point the outlook is cloudy, plus the chance of light rain to make things worse.

Forecasters say there may be some clearing toward evening, giving a 50 per cent chance of seeing the moon, but it will be cool and weathermen advise wearing a sweater if you drive up Mt. Tolmie or stroll out Cattle Point to see the sight.

If clouds are scattered, however, the opportunity for more interesting pictures presents itself. Amateur photographers may be advised to seek a good vantage point to set up their tripods, with something like a cityscape or trees to give perspective.

Although this will be a total eclipse, the earth's shadow into which the moon will pass will have refracted light which with atmospheric filtering will produce a coppery color and make color photos more interesting than black and white.

The eclipse spans 3½ hours from 9 p.m., permitting a series of shots showing the different stages and progression from white to yellow, tan, copper, deep red and back to white under ideal viewing conditions. Darkest moon will occur at 10:48.

Everyone in North America may see this lunar spectacle, provided they are not screened by cloud or fog.

As a rough guide to amateur photographers, George Ball, the director of telescopes for the Victoria chapter, Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, suggests using ASA 400 black and white or high speed Ektachrome transparency film.

For the uneclipsed, bright moon, settings may be 1-1,000 sec. at f8, slowing to 1-500 sec. as the eclipse gets under way, 1-25 as the darker shadow moves across the moon, and between 2 and 6 seconds at mid-point of the total eclipse.

The Little Fugitive (xxx), on 1 at 2. A touching and often amusing 1953 drama about a 12-year-old boy who runs away to Coney Island after thinking he was responsible for the death of his brother. Perceptive, and brilliantly acted by a non-professional cast.

Way, Way Out (x), on 7 at 6. A silly 1966 Jerry Lewis comedy about Americans vs. the Russians on the moon.

River of Gold (x), on 12 at 7:30. Dick Rambo and Roger Davis star in this boring 1971 made-for-television adventure about a hunt for underwater treasure in Mexico. Ray Milland and Suzanne Pleshette co-star.

Breakfast at Tiffany's (xxx), on 4 at 9. An entertaining, sophisticated 1961 comedy, based on Truman Capote's wistful story about the adventures of a madcap but captivating New York playgirl called Holly Golightly, beautifully played by Audrey Hepburn. George Peppard and Patricia Neal co-star.

Ulzana's Raid (xxx), on 5 and 6 at 9. This deceptively ordinary 1972 cavalry vs. the Indians yarn turns into a tense, well-acted and ultimately absorbing drama. Burt Lancaster is cast as an Indian scout who assists an inexperienced soldier in trying to roust renegades responsible for revenge, rape and murder, with the search ending in an exciting climax.

Red Sky at Morning (xx), on 8 at 9. A nostalgic excursion about a teenage boy coming of age in 1944 New Mexico, starring Richard Thomas, Claire Bloom, Desi Arnaz Jr., and Richard Crenna. Filmed in 1971, before Richard Thomas signed up with The Waltons.

It's Good to be Alive (xxx), on 7 at 11. A made-for-television drama that tells the story of ex-Brooklyn Dodgers catcher Roy Campanella, whose baseball career ended with a tragic 1958 car accident that left him a quadriplegic. The story focuses on his physical and emotional struggle eo rebuild his life, and features fine performances by Paul Winfield (Sounder), Ruby Dee and Lou Gossett.

She Done Him Wrong (xxx), on 11 at 11. Mae West and Cary Grant (her favorite leading man) star in this 1933 comedy classic, set in the Bowery of the Gay Nineties. (It is said that this is Miss West's favorite film.)

Red Sky at Morning (xx), on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier this evening for details.)

Ocean's 11 (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Members of the so-called Sinatra "Clan" (Frank, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Joey Bishop and Peter Lawford) star in this 1960 comedy-drama about a group of ex-war buddies who try and pull off a daring Las Vegas robbery. Fairly entertaining, but the film has the slight edge of being a big inside joke.

A Flea in Her Ear (xx), on 8 at midnight. Rex Harrison, Louis Jourdan and Rosemary Harris star in this European-made 1968 film rendering of the French sex farce, set in the 1900s, about the philandering spouse, the vengeful wife and numerous misunderstandings.

David Copperfield (xxx), on 6 at 1:15. A 1970 British-made movie adaptation of the Charles Dickens classic, about the adventures of a young man in 19th century England, starring Robin Phillips, Susan Hampshire and Dame Edith Evans.

One More Time (xx), on 8 at 2 a.m. A 1970 sequel to the comedy Salt and Pepper, about a pair of London detectives, starring Peter Lawford and Sammy Davis Jr.

North West Mounted Police (xxx), on 7 at 2:20. Cecil B. DeMille's lavish and colorful 1940 tribute to the Mounties, starring Gary Cooper and Madeleine Carroll. Shallow in plot but action-packed and entertaining.

Rod Serling narrates this repeat telecast of Cousteau's A Sound of Dolphins, a documentary about the capture of a dolphin named Babillee — her intensive care while she pines for a mate, and her rapid recovery when a male is finally placed in her enclosure. The program also includes a look at the dolphin as man's best friend of the sea. (60 mins.)

John Allan Cameron, on 8 at 8. Debut of a new music series starring Canadian folksinger John Allan Cameron. (30 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 8. Inside the Golden Gate, a science documentary focusing on a U.S. geological survey team as it tours San Francisco Bay, studying the effects of landfills and pollutants on the area's ecological system. (60 mins.)

UN Day Concert, on 9 at 9. Coverage of the October 1974 world premiere of Three Spaces, a piece inspired by the haiku poetry of the late Dag Hammarskjold and composed by three Japanese musicians. Seiji Ozawa conducts the New Japan Philharmonic and the Tobo String Quartet. The concert also includes Beethoven's String Quartet in F Major. (90 mins.)

The World of Gilbert and Sullivan, on 2 at 10. The Mikado, a comic operetta about romance and the law — Japanese style, as performed by the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, and narrated by Wayne and Shuster. (60 mins.)

Larry Solway, on 8 at 11:30. A conversation of noted science-fiction writer Isaac Asimov. (30 mins.)

Sammy and Company, on 4 at midnight. Host Sammy Davis Jr. welcomes Jack Albertson, Eydie Gorme, Roy Clark and actor Michael Callan to tonight's show. (90 mins.)

Canadian Singer Gets Own Show

The happy sounds of "down east" music are here, as John Allan Cameron hosts his own show, John Allan Cameron, premiering Saturday, May 24 at 8 p.m. on the CTV Television Network.

Cape Breton's favorite son brings his own special brand of folk music to the television screen each week, as well as presenting his guests, noted artists in the folk world — people such as Edith Butler, Adam Mitchell, Stringband, Jesse Winchester and others. The premiere show will feature Liam Clancy, a first-rate singer, story-teller and the youngest member of the Clancy Brothers folk group.

Appearing regularly will be Les Danseurs Du Saint Laurent, a folkloric dance group under the direction of Philippe Bruneau, and the Cape Breton Symphony, comprised of four talented down-east fiddlers.

The unique sounds of Cape Breton and the Atlantic provinces — music alive and rich with the old Scots-Irish traditions of the Maritimes and the new idioms of Canadian song — this is John Allan Cameron's music.

John Allan was born and raised in Inverness County on Cape Breton Island. His musical heritage happened naturally as he absorbed the traditions of his friends, neighbors and family. At St. Francis Xavier University in Nova Scotia, he began entertaining coffee house audiences, and from there he went on to appearances at the Mariposa and Newport Folk Festivals, the Grand Ol' Opry in Nashville (where he received a standing ovation), a concert in Japan, tours with Anne Murray, television appearances, two record albums with Columbia, and, finally his own television show on CTV.

Cameron says of his show that "an awful lot of television variety shows have been generally the same for the past 10 years, with the same guests year in and year out. I would like to shake things up a little bit. There are all kinds of interesting Canadian and American musicians who have not had television exposure, and this is a chance for Canadian audiences to get to know them."

CBS Signs Five-Year Horse Racing Package

The most comprehensive national television racing package, covering The Belmont Stakes and nine other major New York Racing Association stakes events, will be broadcast on the CBS Television Network between Saturday, June 7 and mid-fall, it was announced by Robert Wussler, Vice President, CBS Television Sports, and Thomas J. Fitzgerald, President of the NYRA.

The schedule of events, with nearly 1,125,000 dollars in purse money, represents most of the premiere events on the schedule at Belmont Park, Saratoga and Aqueduct race tracks.

In 1975, the first year of a five-year contract, the events scheduled to be broadcast begins with the 107th running of the 150,000 dollar Belmont Stakes, the third leg of The Triple Crown for 3-year-olds, at Belmont Park Saturday, June 7 (2:00-3:00 p.m.). The race is at a mile and one-half.

Today's Highlights

World At War, on 7 at 7. 1940-41, the Nazi occupation of Holland begins to take its toll on the people. Film clips and interviews with Dutch civilians recall the destruction of Rotterdam, the growth of the Dutch Nazi movement and the strike protesting the roundup of Dutch Jews. (60 mins.)

Alley Celebrates Ellington, on 8 at 7. Dancers from the Repertory Workshop of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Centre perform six works inspired by the music of the late Duke Ellington. Choreographed by Alvin Ailey, this acclaimed dance tribute to the "Duke" is hosted by Gladys Knight (of the Pips). (60 mins.)

CBS News Special, on 7 and 12 at 7:30. The Ups and Downs of Henry Kissinger, a documentary focusing on the diplomatic achievements and setbacks of the U.S. Secretary of State. The report includes interviews with Kissinger, with his critics and former colleagues; an examination of "shuttle diplomacy," in the Middle East and Indochina; and a review of the SALT negotiations with the Soviet Union. (60 mins.)

Evening at Symphony, on 9 at 7:30. Conductor Michael Tilson Thomas and pianist Misha Dichter combine their talents with the Boston Symphony Orchestra for a performance of Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor. (60 mins.)

Canada: Five Portraits, on 8 at 8. Repeat telecast of CTV's five-part series on the various geographical regions on Canada. Tonight: The Mountains — a look at the people of British Columbia and how our economy and society are shaped by the rugged terrain of the province. (The entire series will be telecast through this coming week.) (60 mins.)

Drama Special, on 2 and 6 at 8:30. The original cast of director Jose Quintero's acclaimed 1973 Broadway revival of Eugene O'Neill's powerful and moving play, A Moon for the Misbegotten, recreate their stage roles in this special television version. Set in a rundown farmhouse in 1923, the drama is dominated by three characters superbly played by Jason Robards, Colleen Dewhurst and Ed Flanders. (2½ hrs.)

Indianapolis 500, on 4 at 8:30. Taped coverage of today's racing action, seen earlier today on Channel 8. (2 hrs.)

Movies

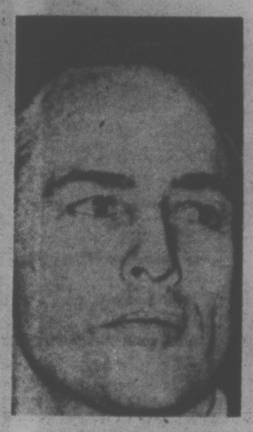
I Married a Woman, on 4 at 2. No rating available on this 1958 domestic comedy about a harried executive trying to cope with his wife and an unhappy client, starring George Gobel, Diana Dors and Adolphe Menjou.

UFO, on 11 at 2. A 1956 documentary account of an actual Air Force investigation into flying saucers observed in Utah and Montana.

Footsteps (xx), on 8 at 2:30. Action clips, well-staged practice sessions and knowledgeable football talk blend with character study in this 1972 made-for-TV drama about a football coach trying for a comeback at a small college. Cast includes Richard Crenna and Joanna Pettet.

'Neath Arizona Skies (x), on 11 at 3:30. A 1934 John Wayne western, one of dozens of low-budget efforts he made during the thirties and early forties.

Guys and Dolls (xxx), on 12 at 9. A colorful assortment of Damon Runyon characters enhance this entertaining 1955 musical about a gambler and his involvement with a floating crap game and a pretty Salvation Army lady. A lavish production starring Marlon Brando, Jean Simmons, Frank Sinatra and Vivian Blaine.



MARLON BRANDO
. . . on 12 at 9 p.m.

The Fabulous Dorseys (xx), on 4 at 11:30. If big band music is your thing, then you will enjoy this 1947 biography starring Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey as the famous bandleaders who fought each other as they fought to the top. Good tunes, but not much on plot and co-starring Janet Blair.

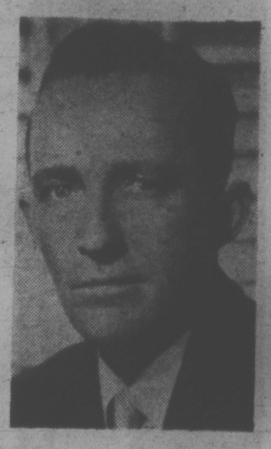
Waterhole No. 3 (xxx), on 7 at 11:30. An offbeat but often funny 1967 western spoof starring James Coburn, Carroll O'Connor (All in the Family) and Joan Blondell.

Waco (x), on 12 at 11:30. A routine 1966 western with Howard Keel in the title role of a gunfighter who cleans up a small town steeped in corruption, and Jane Russell as a preacher's wife. Keel, best known for singing roles, flops as a dramatic actor in this badly directed effort.

Road to Zanzibar (xxxx), on 2 at 11:45. Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour star in this 1941 satire on all the jungle movies you have ever seen. It's the funniest of all the "Road" series, with Bing and Bob touring Africa as a pair of carnival hustlers.

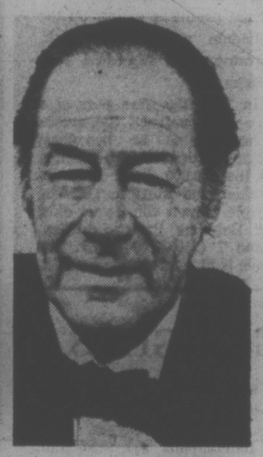
A Flea in Her Ear (xx), on 6 at 11:50. Rex Harrison, Louis Jourdan and Rosemary Harris star in this European-made 1968 film rendering of the French sex farce, set in the 1900s, about the philandering husband, the vengeful wife and various misunderstandings.

Tribes (xxx), on 5 at midnight. An absorbing, well-made and Emmy-winning 1970 television drama about a drafted hippie in a Marine boot camp and his conflict with a tough drill sergeant. The young man (Jan-Michael Vincent) can't be broken, and his survival methods are adopted by his barracks mates, much to the consternation of the drill instructor (Darren McGavin).



BING CROSBY
. . . on 2 at 11:45 p.m.

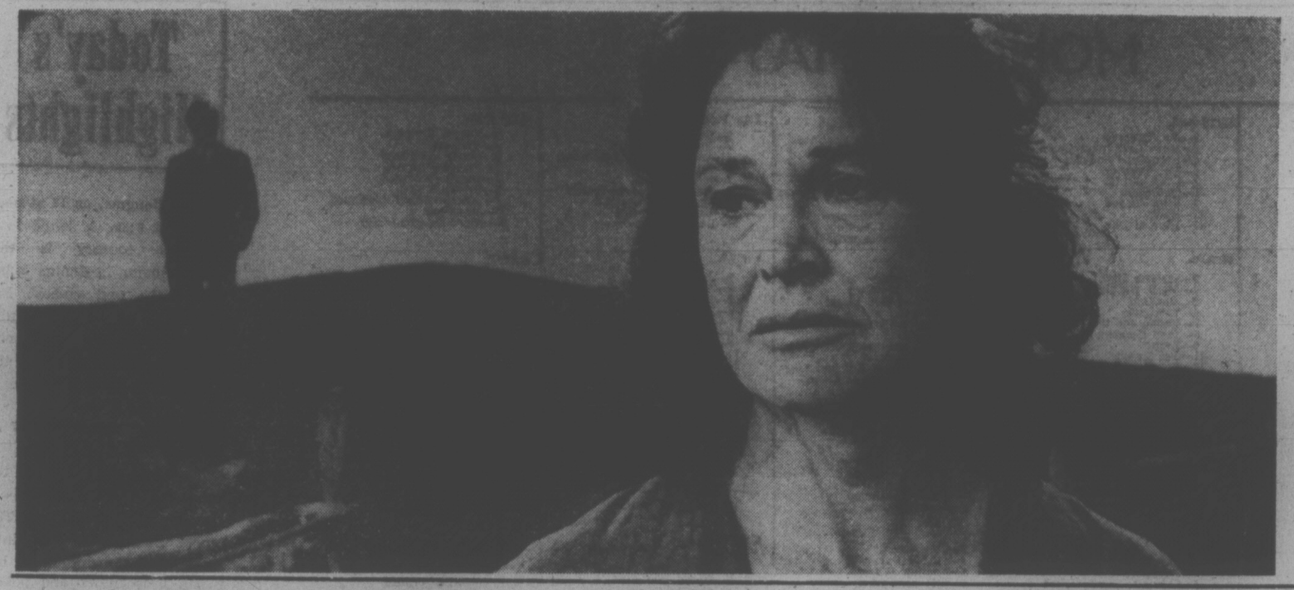
David Copperfield (xxx), on 8 at midnight. A 1970 British-made film adaptation of the Charles Dickens classic, about the adventures of a young man in 19th century England, starring Robin Phillips, Susan Hampshire and Dame Edith Evans.



REX HARRISON
. . . on 6 at 11:50 p.m.

Hazard, on 7 at 1:30. No rating available on this 1948 comedy about a charming lady gambler on a cross-country escape from her debts, starring Paulette Goddard and Macdonald Carey.

One More Time (xx), on 6 at 1:50. A 1970 sequel to the comedy-crime-drama Salt and Pepper, starring Peter Lawford and Sammy Davis Jr. as a pair of London detectives.



Drama Special

Colleen Dewhurst recreates her Tony Award-winning portrayal in Eugene O'Neill's, A Moon for the Misbegotten, a television version of the acclaimed 1973 Broadway revival on Sunday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6. Starring with Miss Dewhurst are Jason Robards and Ed Flanders, also from the Broadway cast.

Canada—A Portrait in Geography

CTV's Canada: Five Portraits explores our beautiful, vast country from the picturesque Rockies to the historic sea ports of the Maritimes examining how the Canadian people are influenced by their country's geography. Receiving its encore presentation, the series begins Sunday, May 25, 8:00-9:00 p.m. with The Mountains followed in order by The Prairies, Monday, May 26, 10:00-11:00 p.m., The Shield, Tuesday, May 27, 7:00-8:00 p.m., The St. Lawrence, Friday, May 30, 10:00-11:00 p.m. and The Atlantic, Saturday, May 31, 7:00-8:00 p.m.

An abundance of spectacular scenery in Canada can be found in the mountain ranges of British Columbia where the "Canada: Five Portraits" series begins. The harsh and often hostile environment of the mountains dictates the economic and social life in and around them. It also poses a barrier to communication that persists to this day.

From the very beginning, the picture of the Prairies has been a lonely one with modest farm houses set forlornly in an empty, flat landscape. While the land the people live on reaps great wealth, everything they produce must pass to the Pacific Coast or come east to Central Ontario. The Prairies, part two in the series, investigates the way of life and the economics of these people.

The third episode is The Shield. Its presence is not felt nearly as much as the rivers or mountains, yet it dictates where the majority of us live. This program takes a look at the area of Central Canada, a region that has grown into the wealthiest part of the nation.

The St. Lawrence is one of the most important rivers in North America, because of its location. Episode four in the series, The St. Lawrence, traces the growth of population along the St. Lawrence valley and the effect the river has been on the people who live along its banks.

The narrator for the entire series is Gordon Pinsent and the original music score is by Louis Applebaum.

DANCE RECITAL SALUTES DUKE

CTV presents an Emmy-nominated special on May 25, 7:00-8:00 p.m., entitled Ailey Celebrates Ellington, an hour of dance set to the music of Duke Ellington. Noted choreographer Alvin Ailey, whose Alvin Ailey City Centre Dance Theatre in New York has been widely acclaimed, was commissioned to create six new dances as a tribute to the "Duke" who died last May 24 at the age of 75.

The Alvin Ailey Workshop, a company of young dancers between the ages of 17 and 21, will perform the special.

Gladys Knight (without the Pips) is host-narrator, and Alvin Ailey makes a cameo appearance.

The choice of Ellington's material exemplifies what is universally considered the most varied and beautiful in all jazz. Compositions interpreted are Such Sweet Thunder, Night Creatures, The Mooche, Black Beauty, The Shepherd, Creole Love Call, The Blues (Ain't), and Praise God and Dance from his second sacred concert.

Before the advent of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre, modern dance companies in America had a minimal audience. In 1970 Ailey's modern dance company was the first to tour the Soviet Union and the dancers ended a six-week tour with a Leningrad audience chanting "Thank you, thank you" during a 23-minute ovation.

The following year in New York, the Ailey Company had the largest advance sale of any modern dance company at the New York City Centre, then topped that figure the following spring. In August 1972 the renamed Alvin Ailey City Centre Dance Theatre joined such noted ballet companies as the New York City Ballet and the Joffrey as dance constituents of the City Centre of Music and Drama, Inc.

Ups and Downs Of Shuttle Diplomacy

A CBS News Special, The Ups and Downs of Henry Kissinger, will look at the status and prestige of the Secretary of State in the light of recent developments in Indochina and in the Middle East, on Sunday, May 25 (7:30-8:30 P.M.) on the CBS Television Network. Principal Correspondent will be Charles Collingwood.

A section dealing with the diplomatic and military events in Indochina during the Nixon and Ford Administrations — in which Kissinger was intimately involved — will be narrated by Bernard Kalb, who was Far Eastern Correspondent for CBS News for many years and is now assigned to the CBS News Washington Bureau.

The Middle East section will be covered by Diplomatic Correspondent Marvin Kalb, who has accompanied Secretary Kissinger on a half-dozen trips to the Middle East, shuttling between Israel and the Arab states in search of some progress toward a settlement of their differences.

Dan Rather, who covered the White House while Kissinger served there as Special Assistant to the President and Chairman of the National Security Council, will write and narrate a section on the Kissinger style.

Collingwood, who was CBS News Chief European Correspondent for 10 years, covered the SALT talks in Helsinki and Vienna and will describe how Kissinger operated in that area.

HENRY KISSINGER

LIVE COVERAGE of the Indianapolis 500 will be carried on Sunday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 8. Pictured here are two top contenders—three-time winner A. J. Foyt (left) and 1974 champion Johnny Rutherford. Channel 4 will carry taped coverage at 8:30 p.m.

Movies

Running Target (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. An above average western drama, about a sheriff leading a posse after four escaped convicts, filmed in 1956 with good performances by Arthur Franz and Doris Dowling.

Red, Hot and Blue (xx), on 11 at 1. Betty Hutton and Victor Mature star in this 1949 comedy about a young actress who gets involved with a gangster's murder. Pleasant, but mainly a showcase for Miss Hutton's brassy talents.

The Young Mr. Pitt (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Robert Donat plays the title role in this 1942 English-made story about the early political career of William Pitt Jr., who was Prime Minister of England at 24. An excellent supporting cast includes Robert Morley and John Mills.

Sky Heist, on 5 at 9. An unpreviewed 1975 made-for-television crime-drama about a ten million dollar gold theft and the hijacking of a police helicopter, starring Don Meredith, Joseph Campanella, Stephanie Powers and Frank Gorshin.

Wild Is the Wind (xxx), on 11 at 9. A strong cast (Anna Magnani, Anthony Quinn and Anthony Franciosa) star in this earthy 1957 drama about jealousy and passions on a Nevada sheep ranch. Quinn plays a widowed rancher who brings Miss Magnani from Italy as his new wife, who finds herself attracted to his young foreman.

Murder Motel, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this made-for-TV mystery movie about a brother and sister, fleeing with stolen company funds, who seek refuge in a motel where they encounter a lethal kind of room service. Cast includes Robyn Millan, Derek Francis and Edward Judd.

The Norliss Tapes (xx), on 12 at 11:30. Roy Thinnes plays a writer who investigates reports of the supernatural in this 1973 mystery about a dead sculptor who appeares to be very much alive. Supporting cast includes Angie Dickinson and Claude Akins.

No Man Is an Island (xxx), on 2 at midnight. A 1962 story based on fact about a Navy radioman who is trapped by the outbreak of the Second World War, and becomes a one-man army in the hills of Guam. Jeffrey Hunter stars and the location filming in the Phillippines is an added asset.

JOANNE WOODWARD
. . . on 8 at Midnight

Adventures of the Queen, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1975 made-for-television drama about a psychotic threatening to blow up a cruise ship. Filmed aboard the Queen Mary with Robert Stack, David Hedison, Bradford Dillman, Ralph Bellamy and Sorrell Brooke.

The Black Knight (xx), on 7 at midnight. A juvenile 1954 adventure about knighthood in the days of King Arthur, starring Alan Ladd and Patricia Medina. Ladd plays the title role as if he were still on the Texas range.

A Big Hand For a Little Lady (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Joanne Woodward, Henry Fonda and Jason Robards star in this clever, well-played 1966 tale about a poker game that will keep you on the edge of your seat. Fonda and his wife arrive in Laredo during an annual big-stakes poker game, and before you can shuffle a deck, Fonda is in the game, losing his homestead money, and has a heart attack. Wife Joanne takes over and there is a surprise ending, so don't miss it.

Alias Nick Beal (xxx), on 7 at 1:40. An absorbing 1949 drama about an honest district attorney who is sidetracked in his crime crusade by a mysterious stranger with Satanlike ideas. Well-made fantasy with good performances by Ray Milland, Thomas Mitchell and Adurey Totter.

The Magnificent Seven (xxx), on 8 at 2. An interesting 1960 western based on the marvelous Japanese film, Seven Samurai, about a band of gunfighters who are enlisted to protect a small Mexican village from thieving bandits. Excellent performances are turned in by Yul Brynner, Eli Wallach, Steve McQueen, Horst Buchholz, Robert Vaughn, James Coburn and Charles Bronson. This movie spawned several sequels, but none as good as this one.

The Bachelor Party (xxx), on 6 at 2:05. Paddy Chayefsky (Marty) wrote the screenplay for this sober and revealing look at life, about a married bookkeeper who reluctantly joins a party his friends are throwing for a prospective groom. Filmed in 1957 with excellent performances by Don Murray, E. G. Marshall, Jack Warden, Larry Blyden and Carolyn Jones.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas, on 12 at noon and 7 at 6:30. A salute to a different country is this week's theme beginning today with Mike and co-host Pat Cooper in a salute to Italy. Guests includes Henry Fonda and Aldo Gucci, creator of the Gucci fashion line. (90 mins.)

CBS News Special, on 7 at 8. The District Attorney — a behind-the-scenes view of the pressures, problems and politics of the job of DA. The report includes a look into an alleged "partnership" between prosecutors and police in gathering evidence; the impact of the news media; politics in the office, and charges of conflict of interest. (60 mins.)

Thin Edge, on 9 at 8. Sexuality: The Human Heritage — a report on the biological factors and social pressures that can shape a person's sexual identity. The program includes a discussion by teenagers and homosexuals on the impact of society's moral standards; and a look at the effects of menopause and old age on sexuality. (60 mins.)

Getting Through: Aging, on 9 at 9. In a follow-up to thin-edge, a look at the problems of aging and sources of relief available to senior citizens. (30 mins.)

One of a Kind, on 9 at 9:30. Orange Blossom Special, and Dark Hollow are two of several selections from this bluegrass concert with fiddler Richard Greene, guitarist Clarence White, mandolinist David Diadem and bass player Stuart Schulman.

V.I.P., on 2 and 6 at 10. Return of the series hosted by Lorraine Thomson who interviews well-known people who have appeared as mystery guests on Front Page Challenge. Tonight she talks with champion racing driver Jackie Stewart and actor-singer Anthony Newley. (30 mins.)

Canada: Five Portraits, on 8 at 10. Continuing with the series examining Canada from the point of view of geography. Tonight: The Prairies, exploring the life styles of the region's people and the influence of the land on their lives. (60 mins.)

Status of Children in Canada, on 2 and 6 at 10:30. Debut of an eight-part series on children and their role in society, highlighted by humor, but offering serious observations on childhood. (30 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Actor Kirk Douglas sub-hosts for Johnny and welcomes among his guests his son Michael, and Michael's long-time girl friend actress Brenda Vaccaro. (90 mins.)

No Civil Rights

The Status Of Children in Canada

To most adults, children are not quite people. And since the world is run by adults, most children in Western societies have no power over their own lives. Some even live under the constant threat of physical punishment.

These rights, and others, and the need to change our views about children are explored in an eight-part study called The Status of Children in Canada, which begins on the network Monday, May 26 at 10:30 p.m. with Paul Soles, Ed Reid, and Rita Deverell as hosts.

The first program, subtitled The Invention Called Childhood, deals with the historical evolution of the state of childhood and shows how the idea of childhood is a comparatively recent development in civilisation. The guest expert on this program is Dr. Sam Rabinovitch, Director of the Children's Learning Centre at McGill University and special consultant to the children's section of CBC Television.

On June 2, Children — The Invisible Population, focuses on the denial to children of civil rights. This program draws on the ideas of two authors who have written books on the subject: Dr. Richard Farson, author of "Birthrights — A Bill of Rights for Children," and John Holt, author of "Escape From Childhood — The Needs and Rights of Children." Both men, in different approaches, advocate the idea of children having from birth the same civil rights as those enjoyed by adults.

June 9: The Child and the Law. An examination of how the law clearly discriminates against children, especially in the area of delinquency, treating them far harsher than adults in the name of 'protection'.

June 16: School Vs. Education — are Canadian schools designed to help children prepare for the real world, or are they indoctrination factories to keep children in their place and out of the labor market? This program features a report by Kay Bentley, a 29-year-old youth worker for the United Church who went back to school posing as a teenager.

June 23: Freedom Is What You Call It. Some of the more extreme views of Richard Farson and John Holt — such as children having the right to manage money and own property and to vote — will be fully explored.

June 30: Post-Partum Depression. Birth has traditionally been viewed as a woman's greatest joy. Now it is being recognised that for many women — perhaps 65 per cent — the experience brings on serious depression and feelings of inadequacy. This is usually not openly discussed because most people regard these feelings as unnatural. Interviewed on this program are Janet Quinlan and Joan Robertson of the Vancouver post-partum counselling centre.

June 7: The Perfect Parent Myth. — a discussion with parents, children, and others with ideas on the subject, on how to be a parent and all the factors that influence the way we raise our children.

July 14: Towards the Perfect Playground. The concluding program shows that children learn more about life from play than they do from school, television, or their parents. The growth of our cities usually means that children are deprived of space for free expression through play. Some of the problems of urbanization are discussed here and the program looks at one type of solution — the experimental adventure playground established last summer at the Harbour Front, Toronto.

The eight programs in this series were written, produced, and directed by Myles White. Based on the series shown earlier this year on the afternoon program Take 30, they have been specially re-structured for the evening audience. The response to the afternoon series was impressive, with hundreds of letters received from both adults and children.

Following The Status of Children in Canada will be four programs from another Take 30 series, again revised for evening viewing, called Hard Times. This four-parter, beginning Monday, July 21 at 10:30 p.m., deals with the great Depression of the 30s as it affected Canada and consists of interviews with people who survived those years, recalling both the worst and the best that emerged from them.

PBS Explains Harlem Film Cancellation

Harlem: Voices, Faces, a Swedish documentary originally scheduled for May 19 at 8 p.m. was cancelled.

Jay Iselin, President of WNET-New York, offered the following explanation for the withdrawal of the Harlem: Voices, Faces program: "This film is a strong impressionistic statement about an American community. In the interests of fairness and understanding, we believe that the film should be appropriately framed at the time of its airing. Toward that end, the station planned to follow the film with a knowledgeable panel to evaluate the information and explore the issues raised. We regret to report that after considerable effort we have not been able to assemble a suitable discussion group. Accordingly, the station is withdrawing the film until it is able to provide appropriate surrounding material for it."

LORRAINE THOMSON

VIP SERIES BACK ON CBC

V.I.P. stands for "very interesting people" and the popular CBC television summer series, hosted by Lorraine Thomson, returns to the network Monday, May 26 at 10 p.m. for its third season.

Lorraine talks on her opening show with champion race car driver Jackie Stewart, who reveals some inside techniques for winning races, and movie star Anthony Newley, who says he changed from a hard-working child performer into a "theatrical nut case" before he found himself again.

V.I.P. host Lorraine Thomson, former dancer and actress, did all the interviews with "mystery guests of CBC-TV's Front Page Challenge series this past season.

Each night, after Front Page Challenge was finished and the studio audience was gone, Lorraine interviewed Nevada brothel madam Beverley Harrell and civil rights advocate Jerry Rubin, Martha Mitchell, wife of former U.S. attorney-general, John Mitchell; retired Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning, British MP and broadcaster Clement Freud, grandson of Sigmund Freud the famous psychiatrist; Lady Sarah Churchill, daughter of Sir Winston Churchill; Dr. Joyce Brothers, psychologist; former champion runner and first to break the four-minute mile, Sir Roger Bannister; Errol Barrow, Prime Minister of Barbados, and many more.

V.I.P. is a chance to know a lot more about very interesting people behind the world's headlines.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas, on 12 at noon and 7 at 6:30. Continuing with this week's salutes to different countries, host Mike Douglas and co-host actor Jose Ferrer single out Puerto Rico, and welcome among their guest Jose Feliciano, comedian John Byner, and Vera Clemente, widow of baseball's Roberto Clemente. (90 mins.)

Canada: Five Portraits, on 8 at 7. The Canadian Shield, part three of a five-part series focusing on the various geographical regions of Canada. The Shield is the inverted horseshoe surrounding Hudson Bay and covering nearly half of Canada. Cameras explore the seemingly endless swamp and muskeg wilderness and look at the hardy life styles of the Eskimos and others inhabiting the region. (60 mins.)

The Way It Was, on 9 at 8. Recalling the biggest upset in college football history, the 1946 Army-Navy game, one of the most exciting in this PBS sports retrospective series.

ABC Theatre Special, on 4 at 8:30. The original cast of director Jose Quintero's acclaimed Broadway revival of Eugene O'Neill's moving play, A Moon for the Misbegotten, re-create their 1973 stage roles for this special television version. Set in a rundown 1923 Connecticut farmhouse, the drama is dominated by three main characters, brilliantly portrayed by Jason Robards, Colleen Dewhurst and Ed Flanders: Jim Tyrone, a drunkenly self-destructive actor; Josie Hogan, a coarse spinster romantically drawn to him; and Josie's cantankerous father Phil, who schemes to bring the mismatched couple together. (2½ hrs.)

National Geographic, on 8 at 8:30. Search for the Great Apes, a look at the work of two women animal behavioralists, Dian Fossey and Birute Galdikas-Brindamour. Filmed over a period of seven years, the program follows their search for the mountain gorilla in Rwanda, Africa; and the orangutan in Eastern Borneo. (60 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 8:30. A look at history's first artists — Cro-Magnon men — who painted on cavern walls some 10,000 years ago. The program includes examples of their works at an excavation in the Dordogne section of France. (60 mins.)

To See Ourselves, on 2 and 6 at 9:30. In Exile, a drama about one day in the life of a tramp, starring Chris Wiggins. (30 mins.)

Martin Agronsky in Great Britain, on 9 at 10:30. Host Agronsky discusses the state of the British economy with Campbell Adamson of the Confederation of British Industry; and Brian Walden, Conservative MP. (30 mins.)

CBS News Special, on 12 at 10:30. The District Attorney — a behind-the-courtroom view of the pressures, problems and politics of the job. The report looks into an alleged "partnership" between prosecutors and police in gathering evidence; the impact of the news media; politics in the office; and charges of conflict of interest. (60 mins.)

Movies

Lilies of the Field (xxxx), on 8 at 12:45. An acclaimed, heart-warming 1963 drama about an itinerant handyman who helps some German nuns build a desert chapel. An Oscar went to Sidney Poitier for his performance, and he is beautifully matched by a equally fine one by Lilia Skala as the Mother Superior.

Aaron Slick From Punkin Crick (xx), on 11 at 1. A routine musical-comedy, filmed in 1952 with Alan Young, Dinah Shore and Guy Mitchell.

So This Is Love (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A mediocre 1953 biography of the early years (1917-28) in the career of opera singer Grace Moore, starring Kathryn Grayson and Merv Griffin. As a talk show host Merv is great, but as an actor he was awful.

City Beneath the Sea (xx), on 12 at 8. Stuart Whitman and Robert Wagner star in this 1974 made-for-TV drama about a plot to steal U.S. gold supplies from a submerged storehouse in the sea — circa 2023.

SIDNEY POITIER
. . . on 8 at 12:45 p.m.

Punch and Jody, on 5 at 8:30. No rating available on this 1974 made-for-TV drama starring Glenn Ford as a circus roustabout who learns that he is the guardian of a teen-age girl. Ruth Roman and Pam Griffin co-star.

The Vagabond King (xx), on 11 at 9. An elaborate but empty 1956 operetta about Francois Villon, the 15th-century poet and vagabond, starring Oreste, Kathryn Grayson and Rita Moreno. The tunes are pleasant, but the treatment is strictly small-time.

The Next Voice You See, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this made-for-TV mystery movie staring Bradford Dillman as a blind jazz pianist who suddenly recognizes the voice of the man responsible for the loss of his sight and the death of his wife.

Maroc 7 (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A slow-moving 1967 chase drama about a secret agent on the trail of jewel thieves, starring Gene Barry, Cyd Charisse, Elsa Martinelli and Denholm Elliott.

The Easy Life (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. Excellent direction and fine acting highlights this fascinating 1963 Italian-made study of conflicting personalities, about a lighthearted extrovert who has an unusal effect on a serious young law student when they are thrown together by chance. The story holds your attention all the way, even though the performances of Vittorio Gassman, Jean-Louis Trintignant and Catherine Spaak are dubbed into English.

The Children's Hour (xxx), on 6 at midnight. Audrey Hepburn and Shirley MacLaine star in this 1961 movie rendering of Lillian Hellman's play about malicious gossip that brings ruin and near-tragedy to two teachers at an all-girls school. The once daring theme is less effective today, partly because lesbianism is no longer such an unmentionable subject, but it is still an excellent drama.

AUDREY HEPBURN
. . . on 6 at Midnight

The Eddy Duchin Story (xxx), on 7 at midnight. Tyrone Power's excellent performance overcomes the sentimental overtones in this 1956 story of the life and times of the Thirties bandleader and pianist. Supporting cast includes Kim Novak, Victoria Shaw and James Whitmore.

Revenge, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1971 thriller starring Shelley Winters as a deranged mother plotting to kill the man she thinks seduced her daughter. Made for television and co-starring Stuart Whitman, Bradford Dillman and Carol Rossen.

Guns of the Magnificent (xx), on 8 at 1:30. Routine 1969 western sequel to the Magnificent Seven, set in 19th century Mexico, and starring George Kennedy, James Whitmore and Monte Markham.

Captain John Smith and Pocahontas (xx), on 6 at 2:30. A stilted 1956 telling of the romance between the legendary English officer and the Indian princess, starring Anthony Dexter and Jody Lawrance.

The Ghost Breakers (xx), on 7 at 2:30. A 1940 comedy mixture of fun and chills, set on an eerie Cuban estate and starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard.

Law Series Renewed After Weeks of NBC Indecision

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

A series called Petrocelli had something less than an auspicious start last September. It had its premiere the second week of September matched against (CBS-TVs The Manhunter and ABC-TVs Get Christ Love.

The first audience estimates from the A. C. Nielsen company had Manhunter in first place, Get Christie Love in second, and that left only third, and last, place for Petrocelli.

Things were precisely reversed at season's end. The Manhunter was dropped early and, worse, replaced by second-time-around re-runs of Burt Reynolds in Dan August. Get Christie Love was shifted to Friday night, swapping places with Baretta, but even that didn't help. Get Christie Love didn't get a chance for second season.

And "Petrocelli"? Well, NBC didn't exactly light up the skies with blazing confidence and appreciation. The network in its first fall schedule, said it "couldn't decide" whether to renew Petrocelli or, just maybe, assign the time period to singer Mac Davis.

The holdup, we learned later, was the price tag, and once that was settled, the network decided to renew Petrocelli.

It decided, first, to move the show to 10 p.m., Monday, but after CBS-TV issued a fall scheduled with Kate McShane at 10 p.m., Wednesday, the NBC-TV folks said, "Gee, thanks," and slotted Petrocelli right back in his old 10 p.m., Wednesday, home.

Comedienne Anne Meara, the partner of Jerry Stiller, plays attorney Kate McShane. But the movie failed to ring up extraordinary ratings, and some observers were surprised that the film was picked to be a series.

In moving Petrocelli back to Wednesday night, NBC programmers were betting that Petrocelli will be able to draw more viewers than Kate McShane or the new ABC entry Starsky and Hutch.

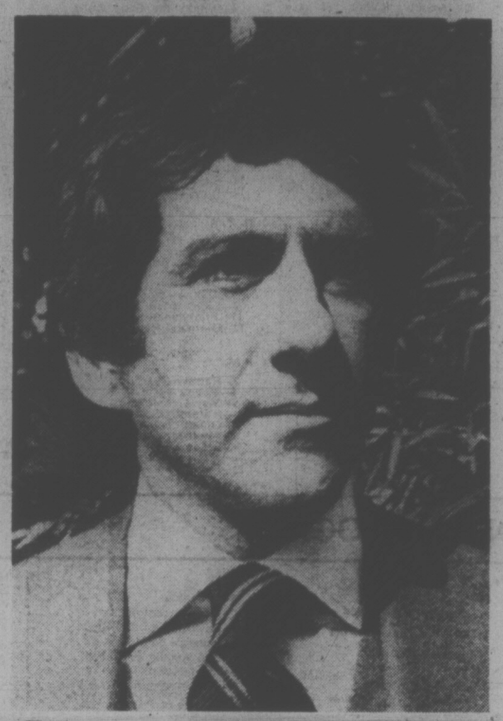
By most of television's rules, just by lasting into a second season Petrocelli becomes the favorite to lead ratings in its time period. Usually about two-thirds of all new programs are dropped after one season, and after that the survivors tend to continue.

The public reacts to surviving shows the way it reacts to politicians running for re-election, and just as incumbents are more often re-elected than not, so do long-running shows tend to keep running until the producer or star or creator gets desperate for his residual income and kills the series.

E. Jack Neuman, who developed Petrocelli for TV, came up with something slightly different. In most episodes there are several versions of the same story.

The viewer sees a crime from the point of view of the defendant and later from a second person's point of view; finally Harvard Law School's Tony Petrocelli provides the "true" version, which always clears his client. Virtue triumphs, even if attorney Petrocelli survives without ever collecting a fee.

Not that he needs much money, except for the fancy wardrobes which he apparently has tailored by the dozen. He drives to work in a camper, and he's building his future home with his own hands. He gets help from his wife, but Tony is the son of a bricklayer, and he's the only truly skilled laborer on the job.



Barry Newman—Petrocelli

To play Tony Petrocelli, the native New Yorker who moved to a southwest cattle town to pursue his law career, Paramount Television and NBC-TV chose actor Barry Newman. Why? Because he's a native of Boston and went to school at Brandies University, where he won a degree in anthropoligy.

Newman moved to New York for graduate study at Columbia University, but as things so often happen, he was sidetracked when a friend took him to visit an acting workshop run by the redoubtable Lee Strasberg. Newman visited a second time, and stayed.

Getting back to the tough going that his series had, a check of the weekly ratings shows that Petrocelli suffered unduly from six pre-emptions.

It was replaced by an episode of The Law; by a special on Carl Sanburg's Lincoln; by a Tennessee Ernie Ford visit to the Soviet Union; by specials featuring Flip Wilson and Bob Hope, and by one of the games of the baseball World Series.

He began gaining audiences late in the season, and his renewal is one more argument against trigger-happy program executives who insist on killing new shows if they fail to produce big ratings in the first two or three weeks.

GREAT APES FOCUS OF DOCUMENTARY

Of all other creatures on earth it is the ape with whom, we as humans, feel the closest kinship.

Tuesday, May 27, 8:30-9:30 p.m. CTV will telecast a National Geographic Society Special entitled Search For The Great Apes".

Dedicated to the late Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, a pioneer in the search of man's past and of his common ancestor the ape, this special is the result of seven years filming.

Search For The Great Apes focuses on two women, Dian Fossey and Birute Galdikas-Brindamour, who through their persistence have located the largest of the great apes —the mountain gorilla and the orangutan.

Birute's project, on the orangutan, (sole curvivor of the Asiatic great apes) is twofold: to unravel the mysteries of this little known animal and also to seek out and rehabilitate the orangutan so that it can venture back to the surrounding jungles.

Dian, working in Africa, has gained the curiosity and eventual trust of the mountain gorilla through her continuing determination.

Shattering the gorilla's image as a killer of man, she opens the door to our understanding and admiration of this animal who in many ways is man's closest nonrelative.

Search For The Great Apes is a continuing legacy left by a great man with a great cause and through this film, we witness the risks involved for two women who have followed Dr. Leakey's lead.

Wall Street Week Wins Special Award

Wall Street Week, seen Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. on Channel Nine, has received a 1975 Janus award for "excellence in financial news programming." The special recognition was presented to the program's producer — the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting, at the National Mortgage Banking Conference in New York.

The series — which features the expertise of host Louis Rukeyser and of visiting experts — attracts a large and complex audience, both locally and nationally.

A bronze statuette of the Roman God Janus is presented annually by the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America to recognize broadcasting stations and networks whose financial news programs have made a significant contribution to community understanding of commerce and finance.

Movies

The Revolt of the Slaves (x), on 8 at 12:45. A 1961 Italian-made spectacle about the Christians struggle for religious freedom in pagan Rome, starring Rhonda Fleming and Lang Jeffries.

The Redhead and the Cowboy (xx), on 11 at 1. Glenn Ford and Rhonda Fleming star in this predictable 1950 western about a wrangler who get involved with a Southern spy at the close of the Civil War.

Rope of Sand (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Action fans will like this hard-boiled 1949 melodrama about a search for diamonds in South Africa, with a good tough guy cast that includes Burt Lancaster, Peter Lorre, Sam Jaffe and Claude Rains.

Joe Kidd (xx), on 8 at 9. A moderately interesting 1972 western with Clint Eastwood giving still another of his "quiet cowboy with a quick gun" portrayals. The setting is New Mexico at the turn of the century and the plot centres on the Spanish-Americans fighting the land barons for what they believe to be their property. The film has a flashy, violent finale and is highlighted by beautiful photography of the High Sierras.

CLINT EASTWOOD
. . . on 8 at 9 p.m.

Submarine Command (xx), on 11 at 9. William Holden stars in this 1951 Korean War drama about a submarine commander haunted by a previous past war life-or-death decision. The story unfolds rather slowly but it should keep your interest.

Joy House (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. French director Rene Clement is only half successful in making this macabre 1965 suspense yarn work — but the half that does is worthwhile. It's a chiller set in a Gothic chateau full of misfits, well played by Jane Fonda, Alain Delon, Lola Albright and Sorrell Brooke.

If a Man Answers (xx), on 2 at midnight. Bobby Darin and Sandra Dee were married to each other when they made this lightweight 1962 comedy about a playgirl who marries a carefree photographer, and resorts to extreme measures to keep him in line.

The Thousand Plane Raid (x), on 6 at midnight. Routine 1969 Second World War action drama starring Christopher George and Laraine Stevens.

The Challenge, on 7 at midnight. Two secret agents, one an American and one an Asian, combine their talents to try and save the world from nuclear annihilation, in this 1970 drama, starring Darren McGavin, Mako, James Whitmore and Broderick Crawford.

Run Silent, Run Deep (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Exciting photography and good performances add to the suspense in this interesting 1958 drama about sumarine warfare and the bitter conflict between a sub commander and

Streets of Laredo (xxx), on 7 at 1:45. An entertaining 1949 western about two outlaws who have gone straight meet up with thier former partner after many years, who is still on the wrong side of the law. Good performances are turned in by William Holden, Macdonald Carey and William Bendix.

The Big Knife (xxxx), on 6 at 2. Clifford Odets wrote the screenplay for this perceptive indictment of Hollywood, about a star who tries to break with a grasping producer with near-tragic results. Filmed in 1955 with an excellent cast that includes Jack Palance, Wendell Corey and Ida Lupino.

The Rider in the Night, on 8 at 2. No rating available on this 1962 South African-made adventure set during the Boer War, and starring Annette de Villiers and Johan van Heerden.

Damned If They Do—Damned If They Don't

By EMILY FISHER

WASHINGTON — In nine months, the Hudson Brothers — Bill, 25, Mark, 24, Brett, 22 — have acquired fame and wealth, and new troubles with their new stardom.

A year ago they might have been any ambitious and starving rock trio on the West Coast except they stuck to a straight-laced life of church and prayer, swore by the older virtues of family, monogamy and decency, and lived between gigs with their mothers in Portland, Ore. "God bless her soul," they say habitually.

Since their TV debut last summer, however, a series of five one-hour CBS specials called "The Hudson Brothers Show," they have acquired a Mercedes, a Jaguar and a $265,000 English Tudor mansion with a large pool in Bel Air. They wonder whether to outfit their new estate with "a young French maid" or an elderly "mammy," and they go to parties with Paul McCartney.

Their manager suggested that they do this. "You're stars now," he told them. "So act like stars."

They embraced the Hollywood situation, which is what their album by that name slaps.

"Hollywood Situation," which has sold about a million copies since Casablanca Records released it last year, led Rolling Stone to call the brothers "the out-of-nowhere musical sensations of the year." It has a harsh rock sound, the sort the younger Beatles might have made had they matured in the '70s.

And its a noise the brothers are proud of, in a way that they are not proud of their slapdash comedy routines on TV. "The show last summer was your Sonny and Cher format, razzamatazz slickie with no musical or acting validity." Ordered to lip synch, they refused and were told, "It's part of the look. Amplifiers are ugly."

They lip synched. It was, after all, their first big break. The Hudson Brothers Razzle Dazzle Comedy Show, a Saturday morning half-hour of songs and skits, (channel 9 at 11:30) was their second. And this break brought more troubles.

"We're packaged, sold as a product, a Monkees. We've got to be cute and wholesome." They act accordingly.

They say they have been tagged by the L.A. pop scene as squares, and that the show business people parties they attend — where guests light gasoline over polls and play at immolating each other, sniff cocaine and slip off — are so self-consciously slick that they leave feeling sick. "The look is all there," they say. "Elton John doing anything to be different, and everyone else doing it because they're afraid they'll be dropped cold if they don't." Still they do.

They grew up like any red-blooded boys dreaming of stardom, and they can't remember when the dreams weren't there. But the stardom of which they dreamed was that of a Hepburn or Tracy, they say, "where the entertainer plays himself, and doesn't just sell a smooth image." In their adolescence Elvis Presley set off a wealth of such dreams.

So they spent 10 years of sweat and hunger on the road — they say, "with the pimps, the whores, the dope peddlers, crooked managers and lawyers, sleeping in vans and vacant jails." For four years more they lived on and off in Oakwood, Los Angeles, a swinging singles complex with walls painted fluorescent green and floors carpeted wall to wall in flaming orange, and where "everyone was on the make. Full time."

The "us" is rooted in Portland, "in a very Italian household." There church was a weekly ritual, and the family was especially close because their father, the one non-Italian of the brood, had deserted the family one morning 20 years ago on Bill's first day of school.

It was, they say, a life where moderation was rare and people squalled instead of cried, and where singing came as naturally as any passion. "Like the whole place was a stage," says Mark. The brothers had played hockey, football and basketball together, triple dates, got flu together. They say they sneezed together and fought murderously.

Now they end each show with a "Thank you, Mother," they finish each other's thoughts, jokes, even many-syllabled words, and they use the "we" always. "We've been inseparable since birth."

They hate awards shows, they say, and yet they would not at all mind receiving an award on one.

Stalin—Creator or Criminal?

Joseph Stalin was one of the most terrifying and fascinating personalities of the twentieth century. A filmed portrait of the man who has been called both "the greatest criminal in history" and the "creator of modern Russia" will be re-broadcast on KCTS-9 May 28 at 9 p.m.

This 2½-hour documentary tries to find out what the real Stalin was like. Stalin presents his life story — how the romantic idealist and Georgian patriot became a Lenin man; how the simple yet shrewd peasant turned revolutionary; and how the State-Party-Police machine ran away with him.

While attempting to give a psychological profile of the dictator and his split personality, the show also offers some explanation for the inexplicable political massacres under his reign. The special dissects and analyses aspects of the Soviet system which are highly relevant to Stalin's rule and essential in any evaluation of his role and personality.

In this production, straight documentary evidence — library film, stills, and textbooks — is combined with more subjective material — poems, literary texts and folk songs — to present a composite impression of history.

The narrator is Michael Gough, who with Sebastian Shaw, Lee Montague, and Peter Copley act as spokepersons for various viewpoints in Russian history. Jill Balcon recites a cycle of poems by the Russian poet Anna Akhmatova. Akhmatova's former husband, himself a poet, was shot for alleged conspiracy in an anti-bolshevik plot. In 1931, her son was arrested on a charge never fully revealed. Released and re-arrested three times, he was finally fully freed in 1956. Her "Requiem" poem cycle is a tragic personal evocation of those times.

GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER—A comedy pilot based on the well-known film, will be telecast on Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 4. Leslie Charleson and Bill Overton (above) star as the newlyweds John and Joanna Prentiss.

PBS ENCORES OSCAR WINNER

An unique experiment in the visual presentation of classical music — where cameras follow the music, rather than the musicians — will be seen May 28 at 8:30 p.m. as Channel Nine presents The Bolero. Conductor Zubin Mehta leads the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in this Academy Award winning visual exploration.

The Bolero begins backstage, as Mehta and the players rehearse. Mehta discusses his interpretation of Ravel's score, and explains the particular challenge Bolero presents to conductors. The music begins — and the camera moves from player to player. But as volume and intensity build, the camera draws viewers into the musical centre of The Bolero.

Originally broadcast by PBS in 1973, this half-hour film was produced by Allan Miller, associate conductor of the Denver Symphony Orchestra. He and filmmaker William Fertik, visual interpreter for the PBS Vibrations series, strive to erase the image of an orchestra as a black and white mass. Miller's goal "to create an awareness of the difference in sounds between the instruments" was accomplished by letting the camera do the work of sound interpretation.

Movies

Man With the Gun (xx), on 8 at 12:45. An absorbing but somewhat ponderous 1955 western drama about a gunslinger who rides into town looking for his wife, and stays to combat the lawless element. A good cast (Robert Mitchum, Jan Sterling, Henry Hull) does more for the story than the story does for the stars.

Here Come the Girls (xx), on 11 at 1. Fairly amusing 1953 comedy starring Bob Hope as a chorus boy who is suddenly moved into the limelight as the leading man when the show's star is threatened by a killer. Tony Martin and Arlene Dahl co-star.

The Racers (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Kirk Douglas stars in this contrived 1955 drama about the personal and professional conflicts of the breed who thrive in the European sports car racing world. The two stars are for the exciting car racing sequences as they may appeal to fans of this kind of action.

Terror on the 40th Floor, on 5 at 9. A kind of poor man's Towering Inferno, about the panic that spreads as fast as the flames when a group of party goers are trapped on the top floor of a blazing skyscraper. Made for TV in 1974, and starring John Forsythe, Joseph Campanella, Don Meredith and Anjanette Comer.

JAMES MASON
. . . on 2 at 1 a.m.

The Little Foxes (xxxx), on 7 at 9. A must for drama fans is this superb 1941 film based on Lillian Hellman's strong play about the double-dealings of a Southern family presided over by a strong-willed belle, a part tailor-made for Bette Davis. Her performance is altogether bitchy and quite wonderful, and she receives excellent support from Herbert Marshall, Teresa Wright, Dana Andrews and Dan Duryea.

The Brighton Strangler, on 11 at 9. No rating available on this 1945 thriller about a brain-damaged actor who begins to live his stage role — that of a deranged killer. John Loder stars.

Hello Down There (x), on 12 at 9:30. A silly 1969 comedy about the mis-adventures of a Florida family testing an underwater home, starring Tony Randall, Janet Leigh and Jim Backus.

Onionhead (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1958 service comedy set aboard a Coast Guard buoy tender, starring Andy Griffith, Walter Matthau and Felicia Farr.

Return to Paradise (xx), on 6 at midnight. Gary Cooper stars in this 1953 film rendering of James A. Mitchener's romantic tale about a wanderer and his happy years in the South Pacific.

Underworld U.S.A. (xxx), on 7 at midnight. A 1961 crime-drama that covers familiar ground (a youngster joins the syndicate to avenge his father's death), but does so expertly thanks to a good script and excellent performances by Cliff Robertson, Dolores Dorn and Beatrice Kay.

The Double Man (xx), on 8 at midnight. Yul Brynner plays a CIA agent investigating his son's death in the Austrian Alps, in this 1967 English-made spy thriller.

Odd Man Out (xxxx), on 2 at 1. A gripping 1947 drama about the last hours of a wounded fugitive from a hold-up during the Irish rebellion, starring James Mason and Kathleen Ryan. Almost painful in its suspense, tragic and not soon forgotten.

The Blue Dahlia (xxx), on 7 at 1:55. An entertaining well-made 1946 melodrama about an ex-serviceman who must clear himself of suspicion in the murder of his unfaithful wife, starring Alan Ladd and Veronica Lake.

Separate Tables (xxxx), on 8 at 2:15. A faithful 1957 film version of Terrence Rattigan's two one-act plays about the guests of a British seaside resort and their individual dramas. Flawless performances are turned in by David Niven (Oscar winner), Deborah Kerr, Burt Lancaster, Rita Hayworth and Wendy Hiller.

DAVID NIVEN
. . . on 8 at 2:15 a.m.

The Ceremony (xx), on 6 at 2:20. Laurence Harvey directed and stars in this grim and gloomy 1964 drama about murder, robbery and jealousy, involving two brothers and a woman trying to escape the law in Tangiers. Robert Walker and Sarah Miles co-star.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas, on 12 at noon and 7 at 6:30. Continuing with this week's spotlight on a different country every day, Mike Douglas and co-host actor James Earl Jones salute Africa. The program includes an African fashion show and a demonstration of African cooking. (90 mins.)

SHELLEY WINTERS
. . . on 2 at 9 p.m.

Carol Burnett, on 2 and 6 at 8. Carol and her regulars Harvey Korman and Vicki Lawrence welcome singer Helen Reddy and comedian John Byner. (60 mins.)

Bill Moyers' Journal: International Report, on 9 at 8. Second of a two-part portrait of life in Japan with host Bill Moyers talking with Prime Minister Takeo Miki. The program also includes a glimpse of the play by dramatist and novelist Kobo Abe (Woman in the Dunes.) (60 mins.)

Chico and the Man, on 2 at 9. Shelley Winters guests stars on tonight's episode of this popular comedy series starring Freddie Prinze and Jack Albertson. (30 mins.)

In Performance at Wolf Trap, on 9 at 9. An all-Tchaikovsky concert with Andre Kostelanetz conducting the National Symphony Orchestra. Part of the program includes selections from Nutcracker Suite, with English actress Rohan McCullough joining the orchestra to recite Ogden Nash's whimsical verses about the girl whose gift of a nutcracker turns into a prince. (60 mins.)

Maclear, on 8 at 9:30. A repeat of host-correspondent Michael Maclear's report on the history of the Canada-U.S. defence-production sharing agreement, and how it has affected the Canadian economy. (30 mins.)

Video: The New Wave, on 9 at 10. An anthology of experimental works by 30 television filmmakers. (60 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. Long-harbored dreams comes to life as celebrities (Walter Matthau, football star Dick Butkus) and just plain folks realize their fondest wishes — thanks to the magic of television. (90 mins.)

TV HAS MADE HIM RICH

Actor Left Hollywood And Never Looked Back

Buddy Ebsen

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

"Burnaby Jones is a tough old bird with no helpers. So every week it is this poor old coot against the world."

Buddy Ebsen, 71, was explaining the success of his most recent television series. It arrived Jan. 28, 1973, another — they said — in a long list of cops 'n' robbers programs, and of no particular distinction. But it came to stay.

Ebsen recalls that he jumped right into the middle of this series. "We had no pilot (sample of a series). We didn't make a movie for TV. We just started and made 13 shows."

What he didn't add is that Barnaby Jones won a renewal for the 1973-74 season and another for the next season.

Barnaby Jones, then, is a lot like a tough old coot named Buddy Ebsen. He's been through, finished and n e.ver-to-work-again-in-Hollywood at least twice.

Ebsen was taking a break recently on a set of Quin Martin Productions at the Goldwyn Studios. I asked him to tell the story about his defiance of Louis B. Mayer, once the "Hollywood Rajah," the ruler of M-G-M and the most powerful executive in motion pictures.

Ebsen picked up the story: "Mr. Mayer offered me a seven-year contract. It had an option for seven more years, and he was willing to pay me $2,000 a week. The trouble started when he said to me, 'Of course, we can't do all this for you unless we own you.'"

Ebsen grinned a self-deprecatory grin at the memory and continued:

"I said, 'You can't own me. I won't be a piece of goods on your counter,' and I walked out."

With the manner of an older man recalling the foolishness of youth, Ebsen jumped to the following winter and an icy, snow-stormy night after he and sister Vilma had finished working a club in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania. They were driving to the next date when the windshield wipers stopped working.

"So there I am, trying to drive; trying to clean the windshield with a pocket comb. I was soaked, and I was freezing."

Ebsen's sense of humor came to the rescue. I thought about what I had left in Los Angeles and I began to laugh — like a fool. And right into the ice, the snow, the wind, I yelled: "L.B. Mayer's not telling me what to do.'"

What Ebsen did was to join Skeets Gallagher for a four-year run in a face called Ladies' Night in a Turkish Bath. Ebsen says it ran for 14 months in Chicago alone, and with a top ticket of $2.75, "it set box office records that still stand."

Another thing Ebsen did was to sign up for wartime duty with the U.S. Coast Guard. A lifetime of studying seamanship and sailing enabled him to become the First Lieutenant on the USS Pocatello, on hazardous duty in the Pacific. He was the ship's executive officer for the last two years of World War II.

A revival of "Showboat" kept him working for two years before he decided to try Hollywood again. "I spent from 1947 to 1953 fighting studio heads," he said.

In all, Ebsen didn't work in a feature motion picture for 12 years. "Friends" advised him to forget acting and go into real estate. But Ebsen worked summer stock "and a lot of primitive TV" and, as usual, was his own man.

All that changed, however, when Walt Disney found exactly what he wanted and cast Ebsen as the co-star of Fess Parker in The Ballad of Davy Crockett. At long last, Ebsen was back, and things opened quickly, bountifully.

A strong, dignified portrayal of a wronged husband in Breakfast at Tiffany's was seen by producer Martin Ransohoff, who just happened to be badly in need of a strong, dignified mountaineer. The result was The Beverly Hillbillies, which ran for nine seasons and made Buddy Ebsen a rich man.

He brought the same qualities to Barnaby Jones, and even though L. B. Mayer has been dead for a long time. Ebsen still takes great pride in belonging only to himself.

His great pleasure in life is his 35-foot, 3-inch catamaran, Polynesian Concept, in which he won the 1968 Trans-Pacific (Transpac) race from California to Hawaii. The twin-hulled catamaran cost $55,000, and he beat a craft owned by James Arness, Seasmoke, which had cost $175,000.

Washington Post

BRITISH ACTRESS Rohan McCullough and Andre Kostelanetz and the National Symphony Orchestra in a presentation of Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 9.

CONVICTED WATERGATE BURGLAR Frank Sturgis, a former part-time employee of the CIA, is among those interviewed for the ABC News Closeup: The CIA, to be telecast on Friday at 10 p.m. on Channel 4. This special report on the CIA—what it is and how it operates — also examines the way U.S. presidents have used the agency and Congress has supervised it.

Tchaikovsky Concert On Wolf Trap Series

Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite, performed by Andre Kostelanetz and the National Symphony Orchestra, is featured on In Performance at Wolf Trap, May 29 at 9 p.m. on KCTS-9. The version presented is a modern revision, complete with verses by Ogden Nash, commissioned by Kostelanetz who found the original Nutcracker confusing because of the numerous plots and subplots. British actress Rohan McCullough (Sunday Bloody Sunday) recites the verses in this more understandable version.

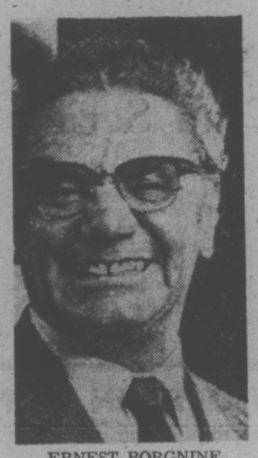
Movies

Marty (xxxx), on 8 at 12:45. Paddy Chayefsky wrote the screenplay for this poignant and beautifully acted 1955 drama about two lonely people who have almost resigned themselves to never being truly loved. Both the film and Ernest Borgnine's performance were awarded Oscars.

The Perils of Pauline, on 11 at 1. No rating available on this 1947 biography of Pearl White, silent screen star of several cliff-hanging serials, starring Betty Hutton and John Lund.

Dial M for Murder (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. Alfred Hitchcock directed this excellent 1954 screen version of the exciting Broadway play about a man who ingeniously plots the murder of his wife, starring Ray Miland and Grace Kelly.

Dracula (xxx), on 7 at 9. Jack Palance plays the title role in this 1973 made-for-television version of the Bram Stoker Gothic tale of the "Prince of Darkness." Palance, as the terrifying Count, captures both the sensitivity and the aristocratic evil of the character, and the on-location filming in Yugoslava and England supports the mood and atmosphere of eerie ritual.



ERNEST BORGNINE
. . . on 8 at 12:45 p.m.

Darling (xxxx), on 12 at 9. Julie Christie won an Oscar for her excellent performance in this perceptive, and deftly written portrait of a young London model who decides to climb the social ladder two steps at a time. An honest and often amusing comment on the manners and morals of our time and richly deserving of all the awards it won. Filmed in 1965 with an excellent supporting cast that includes Dirk Bogard and Laurence Harvey.

Mary, Mary (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1963 film rendering of the long-running Broadway play about a dashing movie star who complicates matters when it appears that a book publisher still loves his ex-wife, and vice versa. Fairly entertaining with a competent cast that includes Debbie Reynolds, Barry Nelson and Michael Rennie.

I Bury the Living, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1958 chiller starring Richard Boone as a cemetary manager plotting his victims deaths.

The Blob (xx), on 7 at midnight. A gooey glob of ooze flops down from outer space and devours people in this adolescent 1958 thriller starring . . . are you ready? . . . Steve McQueen.

JULIE CHRISTIE
. . on 12 at 9 pm.

Ghost of Sierra de Cobra, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1964 mystery about a blind man plagued by ghostly phone calls, starring Martin Landau and Diane Baker.

Dead Men Tell No Tales (xx), on 6 at 1:35. A 1971 made-for-television mystery drama about a man who becomes a target for killers who mistake him for someone else, starring Christopher George and Judy Carne.

Secrets of the Chateau, on 7 at 1:40. No rating available on this 1934 whodunit about the theft of a rare Bible at an old mansion in France, starring Clark Williams and Claire Dodd.

The Bridge at Remagen (xx), on 8 at 1:40. Excellent camerawork highlights this familiar 1969 war drama based on fact, about the efforts of Allied soldiers to commandeer an important tactical bridge from German hands before it is destroyed, starring George Segal, Robert Vaughn, Ben Gazzara and Bradford Dillman.

California (xxx), on 7 at 3 a.m. Barbara Stanwyck and Ray Milland star in this riproaring 1934 western set in early California when greedy men did not want the territory to become a state. Anthony Quinn has a small role in this still entertaining saga.

1:03 (AM) Bush and the Salon — Col. By and the Rideau Canal, a dramatic account of the building of the Rideau Canal in the 1830s, written by Miller and Margaret Stewart. The canal, which stretched from Bytown (Ottawa) to Kingston, was built by Col John By of the Royal Engineers. The project was a large and hazardous undertaking as the program explains; the area had to be cleared, diseases, such as malaria, plagued the builders, and dams were broken. Col. By was recalled to England before the Canal was officially opened, because of alleged mismanagement, but he was eventually vindicated. Stars Robert Christie, Corinne Langston, Sandy Webster and Leslie Yeo. Songs by Oscar Brand.

5:30 (FM) Touch the Earth — Syliva Tyson hosts this series of contemporary folk music. Today: Bill Usher talks to Estelle Klein about the artists who've appeared at the Mariposa Folk Festival over the years, and gives a rundown of this year's Festival.

Part 3: Vancouver Recital — Barbara Haimberger, cello; Music by Henze and Martinu.

10:03 (FM) Ideas — First of five programs on The Observer Observed: What is the place of knowledge in the transformation of man and society? Philosophers, physicists, biologists and psychiatrists are heard in discussions and interviews at an international sumposium in Oct. 1974 at Brockwood Park Education Centre, England. The main theme is developed along several lines :dream appreciation rather than dream interpretation; energy and dreamless sleep; experiences during long-distance running; logical models of human activity, meditation and the self, and is the division between thinker and thought, the observer and observed fictitious?

10:30 (AM) Great Canadian Gold Rush—Featuring Who's Who — Part III: An interview with the group's drummer, Keith Moon. Host is Terry David Mulligan in Vancouver.

TUESDAY

10:03 (FM) Interview—Bert Nelson talks with Dr. Peter McLean. "Aerophobia", or fear of flying is discussed. A Psychologist in the Department of Psychiatry at UBC, Dr. McLean is also a pilot, who in private practise, lectures and seminars helps people overcome Aerophobia.

10:30 (FM) People in Landscape—The Forbiddden Plateau. Here we have something about the legend connected with this beautiful piece of landscape, not far from Comox and adjacent to Strathcona Park.

8:03 (AM) CBC Tuesday Night—Part 1: It all ends Up in a Shopping Bag — By Paul Kligman, a memorial tribute to the author's father, a warm tragicomic portrait of a man his son never really knew or understood. The father, played by Kligman himself, was a Russian immigrant who ran a small grocery store in Winnipeg; he was bitterly disappointed when his son chose to follow an acting career, rather than stay in business with him. The play opens with Pall, played by Richard Davidson, flying home to arrange his father's funeral. Directed by John Reeves. The play has just been published as a novel by McClelland and Stewart.

Part 2: A CBC Broadcast Recording — Featuring Edmonton singer-songwriter Bob Ruzicka in some of his own compositions.

Musical examples from Frescobaldi, Handel, Paisello, and Canteloube. Part II — Michael Davidson, piano: Impromtu in C minor, Op. 90, No. 1, and Impromtu in E flat, Op. 90, No. 2 (Schubert); Transcriptions by Liszt: Lose Himmel Meine Seele (Lassen); La Regatta Veneziana (Rossini); Isolde's Liebestod (Wagner).

7:00 (FM) Radio International — Hosts: Harry Mannis and Jan Tennant. A program about Haiti. In a recent, intensive tour of Haiti, free-lance broadcaster Helen Wooldridge talked to Haitians about their country and found enormous complexities beyond the superficial image the outside world knows. In a daily diary she narrates the evolution of her emotions, from initial despair at the all-pervasive poverty to respect and even love for this mysterious little republic. Includes sounds she recorded of "ra ra" bands, the drumming of the world's finest congo drummer, authentic voodoo music and the infectious beat of meringue combos. She interviews painter Nehemy-Jean, an internationally known leader of the Haitian art movement; writer and composer Pierre Oblain; journalist Aubelin Jolicoeur, best-known as Petit Pierre the colourful figure in the Graham Greene novel, The Comedians; and high voodoo priest Max Veauvoir who also holds an honours degree in chemical engineering, and others.

8:03 (AM) Between Ourselves — Water — and its relevance to western Canada is the subject, how it is used as a resource and political tool, and how it figures prominently in western Canadian mythology. Produced by Claudia Gibson in Winnipeg.

9:03 (FM) The Bush and the Salon — Col. By and the Rideau Canal, a dramatic account of the building of the Rideau Canal in the 1830s, written by Miller and Margaret Stewart. With Robert Christie as Col. By, Corinne Langston as Mrs. By, Sandy Webster and Leslie Yeo. Canal songs of the time are adapted and sung by Oscar Brand.

10:30 (AM) Major Progression — A weekly 90-minute rock music show from Winnipeg. The program will have a variety of features covering almost every aspect of the music scene and will feature to a high degree music by Canadian artists. There will be a weekly billboard of musical events with information about the major concerts across the country; reviews of new record albums; and interviews with musical personalities. The program will also have commentaries on various aspects of the music industry; record companies and publishers; and how a record is promoted to hit status. Hosts are Jim Millican and Lee Major.

11:03 (FM) A Little Night Music — Host: Andrew Marshall in Toronto. Tonight: Julian Bream, guitar and lute: Five Bagatelles for Guitar, (Walton); Concerto in D for guitar and orchestra (Vivaldi) (Julian Bream Consort); work by Mozart.

Tuesday Night Repeats Drama

Paul Kligman's autobiographical drama about his ambivalent relationship with his shopkeeper father, It All Ends Up In A Shopping Bag, was first aired on CBC Tuesday Night in September of 1973. At that time he was working on a book version of his story; it has just been published by McClelland and Stewart. Judging by early reviews, Kligman's first attempt at serious writing will bring new laurels to his already established reputation as an actor, comedian and singer.

It All Ends Up In A Shopping Bag will be re-broadcast on CBC Tuesday night, May 27 at 8:03 p.m.; Thursday, May 29 at 8:03 p.m. on CBC-FM's Encore. Production is by John Reeves.

In this memorial tribute to a man his son never really knew or understood, Kligman plays his father Morris, a bad-tempered loner who found it difficult to communicate with his young son who helped out in the store in Winnipeg's North End. Paul is played by Richard Davidson.
